BOLIVIANS KILL 500 OF FOE IN CHACO SECTOR

More Than 20,000 Troops of Both Sides Gird for Major Battle.

1,500 LIVES TAKEN IN LAST TWO WEEKS

Paraguayans Stopped Dead in Tracks After Series of Successes.

La Paz, Bolivia, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—A band of 500 Paraguayan cavalrymen has been annihilated by Bolivian infantry machine gunners in the Saavedra sector of the Gran Chaco, the government claimed today. The cavalrymen were caught between two flanks of Bolivian infantry and could not escape, the communique said.

Saavedra Front, Gran Chaco, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—More than 20,000 Bolivian and Paraguayan troops girded tonight for a major battle to end the long-drawn-out war of the Gran Chaco, which has taken more than 1,500 lives in the last two weeks.

The Bolivians were entrenched in a rectangular area covering about 5 square miles. They have checked temporarily the westward drive of the Paraguayans. Reinforcements have been summoned by both sides. The major battle of the entire campaign appears to be only a matter of hours away.

Field Strewn With Bodies.

There has been little fighting during the last few days, but the battlefield is strewn with bodies. No effort was made to remove them.

War Minister Rojas tonight estimated that 1,850 Paraguayans and about 3,000 Bolivians are either dead, wounded or missing.

The Bolivians have been working feverishly, digging themselves in, determined to check the steady advance of the Paraguayan Light Infantry. Paraguayans have occupied consecutively a chain of five forts—Fernandez, Plantanillos, Jayucuba, Bolivar and Loa.

The Bolivian entrenchments stretch toward Fort Munoz and the Paraguayans are drawn up concavely in the center, facing Fort Saavedra, their present objective.

Concentrated in Center.

Light batteries are concentrated in the center of their position. Mobile units, mainly cavalry, are operating on the flanks.

The Paraguayans, since their capture of Fort Boqueron several weeks ago, have met success after success. Now they have been stopped dead in their tracks. Their leaders are determined to push on through the jungle, driving the Bolivians ahead of them. The Bolivians are equally determined to resist with every source of energy at their command.

The two republics now are in the sixth month of their undeclared war for possession of the Chaco, title to which was left indefinite under Spanish rule. The fighting, which started last spring, has continued in spite of the combined efforts of all other New World nations, directed by a committee of neutrals at Washington.

(Associated Press.)

Bolivia's rejection of Paraguay's proposal that each belligerent in the undeclared Chaco war defray the expenses of its soldiers captured by the other yesterday resulted in Paraguay's withdrawal of its suggestion and the

Bitz, of Lindbergh Case Fame, Held in Jail Plot

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Irving Bitz, a police character who figured as an underworld intermediary in the Lindbergh kidnaping case, was arrested today in a Brooklyn rooming house. With Bitz was Herman Bennick, who told police he was a salesman and gave his address as Manhattan.

The men were questioned by police on reports of a delivery plot in the Brooklyn City prison. They had with them a powerful pair of binoculars. The walls of the prison could be seen from the window of their room. Bitz and Salvy Spitale were engaged by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh as underworld intermediaries during the investigation of the baby kidnaping.

Herriot Hopes to Ask Duce to Parley Soon

Premier States His Desire to Patch Up Differences Between France and Italy, and Stresses Harmony of Latin People.

(Copyright, 1932, by the United Press.)

Paris, Nov. 22.—A long-delayed meeting between Premier Edouard Herriot of France and Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy, presaging a new era of friendship between the neighbor nations, is probable within the near future, it was learned today.

France, through that meeting, hopes to restore a feeling of neighborliness with Italy that will react favorably for both countries.

Andre Tardieu and Aristide Briand, during their time as premier, never actively sought to meet Mussolini. But Herriot, pleased by the Italian reaction to his Toulouse and Paris speeches in which he praised Italy and admitted she had been treated unjustly in the framing of the peace treaties, is now anxious for such a meeting.

The French premier hopes shortly to invite Mussolini to partake in a discussion of a few points of difference between the two nations—differences which have been accentuated by bitter newspaper comment both in France and Italy.

Herriot, in an exclusive interview today, stressed his desire to patch up these differences. And political observers pointed to the return of Senator Henry Berenger from Rome, where he conferred with Mussolini and other Fascist government officials. Berenger is chairman of the Senate foreign affairs committee.

"France at present," Premier Herriot said, "is examining sympathetically and objectively the possibility of an agreement with Italy on the questions at issue, many of which date back to the war. France realizes Italy hasn't always been treated, since 1918, as an ally and a friend who bore heavy burden efficiently during the World War.

"Without interfering or expressing an opinion on Italy's internal affairs, France realizes that Italy has made enormous progress in recent years.

"Latin people should live in perfect harmony, as France lives with Roumania, Spain, Portugal and the Latin-American nations. Therefore all the French would welcome a complete understanding with Italy. • • • We must treat Italy as a great nation and recognize the ties of blood.

"France is anxious that pin-pricking foreign policies be discontinued. We mustn't underestimate or forget Italy's share in the World War."

Observers consider that France has only two things to ask of Italy:

First, support of the French arms plan at Geneva, and, second, support of France's war debt position before England and the United States.

ARLINGTON DEALERS WIN GASOLINE CUT

District Price Reduction Is Met in County; Higher Tax Here Wanted.

Gasoline filling station proprietors of Arlington County, Va., won their fight for gasoline rates equitable with those of the District 24 hours after they had organized to defeat the unequal rates which threatened their business. The reduction in price, to become equal with that of Washington, was announced at noon yesterday by oil companies.

The dealers Monday night formed the Suburban Gasoline Dealers Association, because a price reduction for the District, made Saturday, would have forced them to sell gasoline at a loss in order to compete with filling stations on this side of the river.

The association will not rest on its laurels, however, as a committee has been named to confer with Senators Carter Glass and Claude A. Swanson to gain their support of the Mapes bill, which would make District motorists pay a 4-cent tax on gasoline, instead of 2 cents. The Virginia tax is 5 cents in addition to the Federal tax of 1 cent. Members of the committee are Joseph D. McDonnell, chairman; William E. Bell, R. A. Boss and F. P. Ruppert.

The association will meet Friday night in the Rucker Building at Clarendon.

GOV. ROOSEVELT WANTS BEER AT SHORT SESSION

Desires Passage of Bill as Soon as Possible, Associate Says.

GANGSTER PROBLEM MAKES APPEARANCE

Garner Sees Early Action; O'Connor Predicts Fight Over Distribution.

(Associated Press.)

The question of how beer is to be distributed if Congress makes the beverage legal is the subject of a dispute between some brewers and proponents of legislation to modify the Volstead law.

Old-time advocates of beer are viewing the problem as serious. They regard it as involving the price at which it is to be sold and the amount of revenue it will give the Treasury. Recent antiprohibitionist converts are more optimistic of quick action at the coming session.

On the other hand, big brewers preparing for a resumption of business in coming months have expressed fears to Dr. James M. Doran, director of industrial alcohol, that "gangsters" will seek to "muscle-in" on their business.

Question of Gangsters.

Reports have reached the brewers that the gangsters plan to obtain permits to manufacture beer when it is legalized and they have expressed concern over whether their salesmen can compete with the machine guns of the modern outlaw.

Meanwhile, Representative O'Connor, coauthor of the O'Connor-Hull bill, rejected by the House last session, en route to Washington with President-elect Roosevelt, said: "There is a big fight going on behind the scenes between the brewers and members of Congress on how beer is to be distributed."

Returning to Washington yesterday to prepare for the coming session, Speaker John N. Garner, the Vice President-elect, reiterated his prediction that this Congress would legalize beer of "about 2.75 or 3 per cent" alcoholic content.

Prediction on Revenue.

He "guessed" that beer revenue would net $250,000,000 to $300,000,000 annually. "We are going to pass a beer bill," Garner asserted.

It was also authoritatively learned that President-elect Roosevelt is anxious for the present Congress to enact beer legislation. A close associate said: "He wants to put the pary's platform in effect as soon as possible and he wants the Treasury to receive revenue from beer."

Discussing the distribution question, O'Connor said:

"When we brought the beer bill up last year, the brewers said they could make a reasonable profit on it at 10

Italian Debt Talk Fails of Decision

Duce and Fascist Council Are Unable to Agree in Two-Hour Parley.

Rome, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Failing to reach a decision on Italy's debt policy toward the United States at a two-hour session beginning last midnight, Premier Mussolini and the Fascist grand council will attack the problem again tonight.

The question is whether the government will stand with France and Britain and ask postponement of the interest payment due December 15, or will pay regardless of the action taken by Paris and London. Next month Italy owes only six months interest, or $1,245,000, but the Government's decision involves the same principle as confronts other debtor nations. The next principal payment is due June 15, 1933.

It was said today that the government was ready to pay the December instaliment if no postponement was forthcoming from the United States. The premier frequently has said he is determined to carry out the debt agreement, but recently he remarked that the debt could not be paid if German reparations were cut off.

Denmark Break Halted, Prison Damaged by Fire

Copenhagen, Denmark, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Police and soldiers put down a mutiny in the century-old Akershus Prison this afternoon, but the institution was badly damaged by fire started by the mutineers.

The desperate prisoners used clubs and anything they could find as weapons in bitter fighting, which lasted more than an hour. Buildings were ignited with red-hot iron bars from the smithy.

Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, personal physician to the late President Wilson, will be recommended to Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley, for the chairmanship of the Roosevelt inaugural committee.

Mr. Costello, as chairman of a committee appointed to consider the matter of the inaugural chairman, reported that his committee had agreed upon Admiral Grayson. This report was adopted subject to the acceptance of Admiral Grayson and the approval of Chairman Farley.

JONES' SENATE SEAT GOES TO GRAMMER

G. O. P. Lumberman Named, Giving Republican Majority in Short Session.

Olympia, Wash., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Gov. Roland Hartley today appointed Maj. E. S. Grammer, Seattle lumberman, and Republican, to succeed the late Senator Wesley L. Jones, of Seattle, thus assuring a Republican majority in the Senate during the coming short session of Congress.

The line-up will be:

Republicans, 48; Democrats, 47; Farmer-Labor, 1.

Grammer is an executive of the Flora Logging Co., of Seattle. During the World War he was connected with the spruce products division of the War Department.

Born in Missouri in 1868, Grammer, the son of a Civil and Mexican War veteran, came to Seattle in 1887.

Grammer issued the following statement:

"In accepting this appointment, I want our governor and people of the State to know that I appreciate fully the confidence and high honor conferred on me by the appointment as well as the new responsibility this acceptance acknowledges.

"As a voter and citizen and Republican, I expect to work with President Hoover and other Republicans in the Senate, feeling that it is my duty to support legislation which I think may be beneficial to our industries and helpful to our citizens.

"With the help of God I shall so work."

Maj. Grammer declined to comment on his attitude toward the prohibition question, the bonus or war debts.

Maj. Grammer, who conferred with the governor this afternoon, said the

8 on Vessel Are Saved; One Dies Trying Rescue

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Eight of nine men aboard the fishing schooner Sea Rover, ashore on a bar near the Little Island Coast Guard Station, were rescued early today. The ninth lost his life in a heroic effort to swim 200 yards ashore with a line. His sacrifice was needless, it turned out, for Coast Guardsmen placed a breeches buoy aboard the schooner and brought the eight remaining members of the crew safely ashore.

The schooner ran on the bar at midnight, with the wind blowing 40 miles an hour. She had 150 barrels of fish aboard.

Help Is Rushed To Fishing Craft

Schooner Is Reported to Have Capsized Near Potomac's Mouth.

A patrol boat of the United States Coast Guard, stationed at Norfolk, Va., set out under full steam shortly before dark last night to reach the mouth of the Potomac River off Smith Point, Va., where a few hours earlier the fishing schooner Rappahannock, with all hands on board, was reported to have capsized.

No word of its movements had been received at a late hour. First information of the tragedy was flashed to the Navy Department yesterday afternoon. No details were given and naval officials were unable to estimate the size of the schooner's crew.

The Rappahannock, according to records, was constructed in 1903. Until recently she was operated by the Morris Fisher Co., of Norfolk. Officials of that company, however, declared they no longer own the craft, as they are not engaged in fishing operations this year.

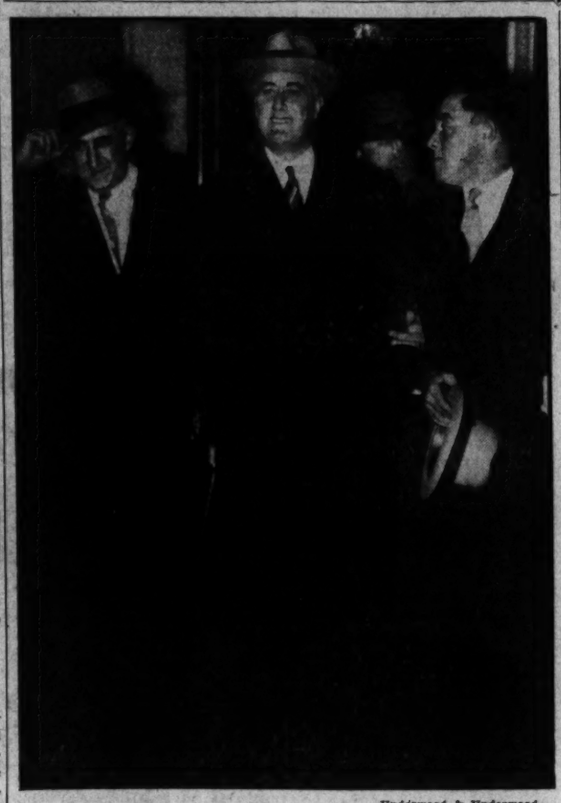
HOOVER-ROOSEVELT PARLEY DIMS HOPES FOR DELAY ON DEBTS



Underwood & Underwood.

President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, photographed yesterday as he returned to the Mayflower Hotel following his White House conference with President Hoover. He is accompanied by Prof. Raymond Moley (left), of Columbia University, and Gus Gumrick, his personal aid and bodyguard.

Issue Expected to Be Left Up to Congress.

LEADERS MET BY GOVERNOR

To Head South Today; White House Talk Sets Precedent.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Herbert Hoover and Franklin Delano Roosevelt, President and President-elect, sat down yesterday in the White House to an around-the-fire discussion of Europe's war debts to the United States and American reaction to them. Under the glistening chandeliers of the red room the President and his successor discussed the problem created by the recent appeal of America's European debtors for a postponement of their payments on December 15.

Informality was the keynote of this meeting without precedent. Neither of the advisers of the two protagonists, Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills and Prof. Raymond I. Moley, carried documents nor brief cases. Cigars and cigarettes were puffed during the two hour and seventeen minute conversations and at the conclusion the following bare announcement was made from the Executive Mansion:

"The President and Gov. Roosevelt traversed at length the subjects mentioned in their telegraphic communication. It is felt that progress has been made. The President confers with the members of Congress tomorrow when the subject will be further pursued."

Rejection Seems Certain.

In the wake of this formal announcement, however, came the certainty that rejection of the European plea for postponement had been almost definitely decided on at the conference. Sources of information close to both the President and the governor intimated strongly that the debt matter would be brought into its proper sphere and turned over completely to Congress.

It was stated last night that to the suggestion that the war debts commission be revived to handle the problem, Gov. Roosevelt had replied that the subject was one for the present Congress.

The positive and definite rejection of any attempts to revise the debt figures in Congress was given added emphasis when it was officially re-

TROOP MANEUVERS RECALL B. E. F. ROUT

Bear No Significance to New Marches, However, Say Ft. Myer Officials.

Several detachments of the Fifteenth Field Artillery, stationed at Fort Myer, Va., arrayed in gas masks and steel trench helmets, marched and counter-marched through steady barrages of nauseous tear gas yesterday.

Even as the Field Artillery units went through the same type of offensive used against bonus marchers here last July 28, the District administration was indisputably in a state of perturbation as to possibilities of serious trouble in Washington when the "hunger marchers" army arrives to greet the gathering Congress, December 4.

"There will be no interference with constitutional rights," was the reiterated stand of the Commissioners.

Asked about the use of troops to curb chaos that might result in the face of possible police inability to cope with the hunger marchers, the answer was reiterated and became almost an echo:

"There will be no interference with constitutional rights."

All police leave has been canceled for the duration of the stay of the hunger marchers, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, announced yesterday.

Asked about police plans to use tear gas in emergency situations that might arise, Maj. Brown declared an ample supply was on hand.

All officials at Fort Myer declared that the tear gas maneuvers were part of the yearly routine at the post and that they had no connection with

ROOSEVELT IS GUEST OF PRESS AT DINNER

Garner, Farley and Several Other Leaders Attend; Air Stars Perform.

With more than 500 of its membership in attendance, the National Press Club last night entertained Franklin D. Roosevelt, Governor of New York and President-elect, at a dinner in the club's quarters in the Press Building. Speaker John N. Garner, the Vice President-elect, also was a guest of honor.

Gov. Roosevelt and his friends were received in the club by a reception committee headed by the president, Bascom N. Timmons.

The governor was accompanied by James A. Farley, chairman, and Frank Walker, treasurer, of the Democratic national committee, Col. Louis McHenry Howe and Prof. Raymond Moley, of Columbia University, close associates of the governor, and M. H. McIntyre, press representative.

The governor made an extemporaneous talk "off the record" in which he thanked the newspapermen for their cooperation and their kindnesses and expressed his thanks at being able to be back in Washington at such an affair.

Mr. Farley and Mr. Walker also spoke along the same lines.

A telegram from Gov. Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky was received and read during the dinner. It announced that the governor had appointed Mr. McIntyre a colonel on his staff.

Eddie Dowling acted as master of ceremonies at an entertainment which followed the speeches. John Charles Thomas, noted barytone, Countess Olga Albani, the Pickens Sisters, the Rhythm Kings, Dr. Rockwell and the Rollickers were the featured artists. They were furnished by the National Broadcasting Co., whose president, M. H. Alyesworth, was among the guests.

MANY NOMINATIONS DUE TO BE SHELVED

Senate Likely Will Shift 100 Appointments by Hoover on to Roosevelt.

(Associated Press.)

With some exceptions, more than 100 nominations to be submitted to the short session of Congress by President Hoover probably will be pigeon-holed by the Senate until President-elect Roosevelt takes office and makes his own appointments.

This has been the custom when changes of administration take place. It was so when Wilson succeeded Taft and when Harding took office in 1920. It would be a rare procedure, if not unprecedented, should the Democrats let many of Mr. Hoover's appointments go unchallenged.

A definite policy on nominations will be determined at a Democratic caucus before the session begins December 5. Then it will be decided which of a select few will be unopposed, probably a commission member or two who are Democrats and nominations of a temporary character, such as that of Roy D. Chapin, of Michigan, who was given a recess appointment August 8 as Secretary of Commerce.

List May Be Small.

Of course, in view of the circumstances, Mr. Hoover may decide to cut his nomination list to a minimum, and there is also the equal division of the present Senate to be considered, but Democrats usually have the support on such occasions of a few Republicans, primarily independents, and sometimes of regulars also.

President Hoover made 30 recess appointments, excluding postmasters, since the adjournment of Congress last July and 55 nominations, including 46 postmasters, remained unconfirmed at the last session.

Among those on which the Senate did not act last session and which have to be submitted again if the President still wants them approved are Federal Judges James H. Wilkerson, of Chicago, who sentenced Al Capone, and Kenneth Mackintosh, of Seattle, a member of the Wickersham commission, who were named as circuit judges.

Opposed by Labor.

Organized labor fought Wilkerson's appointment in committee last session, because of the injunction he granted in the 1922 railway shopmen's strike.

There has been no indication that this opposition would cease. Senator Glenn (Republican), Illinois, Wilkerson's proponent in the judiciary committee's inquiry, was defeated in the recent elections.

The nominations held up last session included Marcel Garsaud, of Louisiana, to the Federal Power Commission, opposed by Senator Long of that State; Earnest A. Burgueres, to be commissioner of immigration at New Orleans, and Fred A. Bradley, customs collector at Buffalo.

Other Recess Appointments.

Among the recess appointments which also must be submitted to the approaching session along with any new nominations the President has in mind are F. Lammot Belin, of Pennsylvania, Ambassador to Poland; Norman Armour, New Jersey, Minister to Haiti; Paul Knabenshue, Ohio, Minister Resident and Consul General at Iraq, and Atlee Pomerene, Ohio, and Charles A. Miller, New York, to the Reconstruction Corporation.

The rest of the list includes Vulcsko Vaiden, Virginia, Federal Farm Loan Board; T. V. O'Connor, New York; Samuel S. Sandberg, California, and Hutchinson I. Cone, Florida, Shipping Board members; Franklin W. Fort, New Jersey; William E. Best, Pennsylvania; H. Morton Bodfish, Illinois, and John N. Gries, Ohio, Federal Home Loan Board.

ROOSEVELT DESIRES SHORT SESSION BEER

cents a pint, including a 3-cent tax, and 1½ cents each for the cost of the beer and the bottle. That would have left them a 4-cent margin and would have permitted the sale of beer at 5 cents a glass.

"Now they tell us they'll have to get 20 cents a pint, which would make it sell at 10 cents a glass. That is too high and they are not going to get away with it. If the price of beer is too high the average man will not be able to buy it and that will cut down Federal revenue. We are not going to have any profiteering, or stamp out one beer racket to let another flourish."

O'Connor's bill provides for sale of beer by bottle only and he said strong pressure was coming from brewers to permit it to be sold by the barrel. "I have no objection to the sale of beer by the barrel, but I am going to stand for a tax equal to $7.50 a barrel as compared with the war time tax of $6," he said.

Representative Beck (Republican), Pennsylvania, head of his party's wet bloc, and Representative Bacharach, of New Jersey, Republican member of the ways and means committee and an antiprohibitionist, both said the method of distribution provided in the beer bill will be the most troublesome phase to be worked out.

"We will have to overhaul the O'Connor bill," Beck said. "Already the idea of confining the sale of beer in bottles has met some opposition." The brewers would be heard, he said, but precautions would have to be taken to protect the consumer and insure revenue for the Treasury.

The question of how to amend the Volstead act to permit beer of alcoholic content not in violation of the Constitution is another problem. Representative Dyer, of Missouri, ranking Republican on the judiciary committee, said his group should handle it.

Speaker Garner suggested that the judiciary and ways and means committees meet jointly to work out the questions of legal beer and taxation in order to assure speedy action.

PRESIDENT AND ROOSEVELT CONFER ON DEBTS APPEALS

ported from Italy that Mussolini had decided to pay the Italian debt due December 15. At the same time that the Italian announcement was received here the Polish Ambassador, Tytus Filipowicz, was formally preparing the State Department for a postponement appeal similar to the British, French and Belgian notes.

President-elect Roosevelt lost no time in securing a first-hand estimate of the sentiment in Congress relative to the debts. He dined as the guest of the National Press Club last night, but returned soon after a brief address to the journalists present to meet Speaker and Vice President-elect John N. Garner at the Mayflower Hotel.

Talks With Party Leaders.

There he held a conference with the Democratic members of the Senate finance and the House ways and means committees. The President-elect will continue his trip South to Warm Springs, Ga., when he leaves at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

In addition to Speaker Garner, those attending the conference with Gov. Roosevelt at his hotel last night were: Senators Kings, of Utah; Hull and McKellar, of Tennessee; Harrison, of Mississippi; Swanson, of Virginia; Costigan, of Colorado; Connolly, of Texas; Ashurst, of Arizona, and Thomas, of Oklahoma, and Representatives Rainey, of Illinois, Democratic floor leader; Byrns, of Tennessee; McDuffie, of Alabama, the Democratic whip; Collier, of Mississippi, chairman of the House ways and means committee; Vinson, of Kentucky; Johnson and Jones, of Texas; Ragon, of Arkansas, and Bulwinkle, of North Carolina.

Following the conference it was learned that while no decisions were reached a variety of subjects was discussed. The debts subject was given prominence, but it shared the discussion with farm relief, the likelihood of a special session of Congress and Government economy.

During his 24-hour stay in the Capital, the President-elect will have created a precedent for future historians to comment on. This is the first time that an outgoing executive has ever invited his successor to the White House before the date set by law for the inauguration.

Gov. Roosevelt was escorted to an open White House automobile when he got off the train yesterday afternoon by the President's naval aid, Capt. Walter N. Vernou, and the chief of the division of protocol, Warren Delano Robbins. Mr. Robbins is a cousin of the President-elect.

Greeted by Crowd at Station.

A crowd of almost 1,000 people stood in the cold and sunshine waiting for the President-elect. Before he emerged from Union Station, however, the governor was greeted by a small delegation of prominent Democrats from the District of Columbia, which included John F. Costello, the Democratic national committeeman for the District; Daniel C. Roper, ardent Roosevelt supporter at the Chicago convention, and John B. Colpoys.

The cavalcade came out of the Union Station slowly and proceeded up Pennsylvania avenue to the south gate of the White House grounds. There the first car bearing Secret Service men and detectives turned in closely followed by the car of President-elect Roosevelt and the rest of the Roosevelt party proceeded to the Mayflower Hotel.

Those who were in the governor's party were his private secretary, Col. Louis McH. Howe, James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee; Frank J. Walker, the treasurer of the Democratic party; Charles Michelson, director of publicity, Prof. Moley accompanied the governor.

Irwin Hall Hoover, who for the past 40 years has introduced the visitors to the White House, met the President-elect and announced him:

"The Governor of New York."

Debt Problem Reviewed.

In the easy atmosphere of the red room, the former war-time friends of the Wilson Administration renewed acquaintance. The erstwhile food administrator and the one time Assistant Secretary of the Navy sat down to review the possibility of dealing with the war debt, and its corrolary problems of disarmament and international economics, in a spirit of common weal.

Meanwhile the crowd outside the White House saw the lights of the Executive Mansion go on. The motor cars remained in the driveway outside the south gate, with dimmed lights, but, after more than two hours, the sirens of the motor cycle escort began screaming, and the crowd stirred in anticipation of seeing the new President. The cars swept by the crowd at the gate and they cheered noisily, one enthusiastic onlooker crying:

"Hooray for President Roosevelt, the friend of the people!" All along the route, however, from the station to the White House and from the White House to the Mayflower, there were comparatively few spectators.

Roosevelt Is Silent.

After his White House conference, the governor received the press for a short while in his apartment. He refused to make any observations on the result of his conversation with the President and insisted that the White House statement covered all he wanted to say.

It was tacitly admitted by those in close contact with the governor that no agreement had been reached by him and the President with regard to the procedure for dealing with the debt problem in Congress. Gov. Roosevelt decined to go beyond the limitations of his telegram of acceptance in reviewing the problem with the President.

Sources close to the governor indicated that he had received from President Hoover a graphic expose of the world problems inherent in the debt settlement. The cause of disarmament, the future of the world economic conference and perhaps the outlook in the Far East hinged to a great extent on the generous reception by the United States of European appeals at this time for clemency on the debt payments.

Occasionally the President would ask his Secretary of the Treasury for verification of some minor detail in the historical background of the debt problems as he was sketching it, but in the main the President himself led the conversation.

The President himself will take up with the members of both the Senate finance and the House ways and means committees that rank highest in both parties the problem of the debt payments today at 10 o'clock. At that time he will probably ask them for their views on the recent appeals of the British, French, Polish, Czechoslovakian and Belgian governments for postponement of their December payments. The response is expected to be almost unanimously opposed to any revision of the debt agreements, and the opposition from the legislative members of the Government is, in general, so emphatic that they will in all probability be opposed even to any re-creation of the debt-funding commission, by which the President last session had hopes to secure some amelioration of the debt agreements for Europe.

Opposition Move Today.

The Democratic members in Congress who yesterday lunched with Bernard M. Baruch, of New York, will be the entering wedge in the debt-opposition move today. Six lunched with the New York financier, who is known to be a consistent opponent of the policy of leniency with European debtor nations of the United States. The President-elect will see the same leaders and several others in his Warm Springs vacation.

The President-elect will be bound solely by the sentiment that is so palpable in Congress, it is definitely believed by those around him. He is known to feel that Congress is the ultimate source of authority for all debt action and in yesterday's conference with the President made his present disinterestedness patent and convincing. Another reason for the reticence of the President-elect is the short time which he has been able to give such a complicated and esoteric matter as the intergovernmental debts.

Gov. Roosevelt has been occupied in studying the texts of the British and French notes that had been transmitted to him for his information by the Secretary of State. Reply to these notes has been postponed pending the outcome of yesterday's conference. Both the London and Paris governments have been anxiously awaiting with mounting misgivings the result of this conference. They have not been able to glean much comfort from the rising tide of congressional opposition to granting further delays in payment. Their last hope was in the conference last night.

The debt problem falls naturally into two distinct phases—the phase that includes the December 15 payments, totaling $124,000,000, which can be handled on the responsibility of the President alone, and the more extensive sphere of governmental policy with regard to the entire question of war debts which can be handled only by the President coming into office on March 4.

Mussolini's "Master Stroke."

However, as the British, French, Belgium and Czechoslovakian notes all requested postponement of the due date next month for their payments, as well as a general reconsideration of the debt problem in its entirety, President Hoover preferred to withhold his answer to the first until he could sound out his successor in regard to the second proposal from Europe.

The only country which has indicated its intention of paying promptly without having recourse to formal governmental grace is Italy. The Italian payment is for $1,245,437, and is one of the smallest amounts payable that date. To all intents and purposes Mussolini has cleverly seized the present moment to make a master stroke of national psychology. Just when the other debtor nations of the United States are calling upon this country for additional time beyond the limits of the original Hoover moratorium to pay their debts, Italy has scrupulously adhered to the letter of the bond and gives every indication of paying her interest on the due date.

Congress has given no indication that it would entertain any thought of postponement. The temper of the various congressional leaders has been categoric and positive against any further terms to the recalcitrant debtors of this country. Under the terms of the loan contract, England, which is the only country with a principal amount due next month, could request postponement.

Garner Congratulated By Roosevelt; Now 64

Speaker Garner was congratulated by Gov. Roosevelt yesterday, and it wasn't over election returns.

On the way to the National Press Club dinner in honor of the President-elect, some one asked what the date was. Quickly came the reply from a member of the party that it was Tuesday, November 22.

"Yes," remarked Garner, "it's my birthday."

"Well, congratulations," said Roosevelt, as he extended his hand to his running mate.

IRISH LEADERS SEE WAR WITH BRITAIN

Preparations Are Reported in Progress at Dublin for Independence Conflict.

By W. G. QUISENBERRY.

(Copyright, 1932, by the United Press.)

Dublin, Nov. 22.—Armed warfare between Ireland and Great Britain within the next six months is seen as a strong possibility by some leaders of the Free State left wing Republicans.

The Central organization, therefore, is straining itself to prepare for hostilities. It is confident that the Republican movement will be victorious and that Ireland will be, before long, a united nation under its own, independent government.

Headquarters for the revolutionary movement is on the top floor of an old, soot-darkened building in St. Andrews street, Dublin. At an appointed hour this correspondent met today with members of the council of the Irish Republican army.

The ancient walls of the place are covered with posters, photographs and other mementoes of the Easter rebellion.

Most of the council members present were in prison last year. These included Frank Ryan, editor of the Republic; George Gilmore, charged with managing one of the army's largest arms and ammunition caches, and Michael Price, one of the highest commanding officers of the Republican army.

Price has increased the army's strength from 20,000 men to more than 30,000. This increase was made possible by President Eamon de Valera's defeat of the Cosgrave regime and subsequent release of important army leaders from prison.

"I regret to say," Price declared, "that I have been unable to reequip the recruits fully so far, but they are constantly drilling. The army is stronger than it was in 1916. We believe Britain will not give up Ireland without a fight, and we are ready to fight as a nation.

"We expected De Valera to restore the republic. We are now confronted with a revolutionary situation that demands revolutionary measures. De Valera will not fail us."

Only after the interviewer had proved conclusively that he was not a British newspaperman would the army leaders, all veterans of five years of strife and rebellion, consent to discuss their plans.

They are preparing, they said, for inevitable open warfare.

Garner Will Stay Clear Of Speakership Contest

(Associated Press.)

Other members of the House may be lining up votes or worrying about who is to be their next Speaker, but Vice President-elect Garner, their present leader, said yesterday he will not take a hand in the contest.

"I'll give everybody here all the help I can until next March 4," Garner told newspapermen, referring to the fact that he moves to the Senate on that date. "But, when it comes to Speakership, I expect to tell them, 'that's your problem, work it out to suit yourselves,' and I'll bet that I'll be friends with the next Speaker."

Truck Halted, Firemen Continue on Street Car

Philadelphia, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Stranded on the street as their hook-and-ladder truck broke down, eight firemen today transferred their light equipment to a street car—and answered the alarm.

The fire followed an explosion in the Safety Glass Co. and resulted from a jammed air-presser device.

The stalled firemen, in rubber coats and fire helmets, unloaded axes and other equipment and put them on the trolley car with the command to the motorman "to step on it."

Several women passengers excitedly watched the transfer—and kept their seats.

Jay Cooke, Friend Of Hoover, Is Dead

News of Death of Retired Banker Is Received in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Jay Cooke, retired banker, Republican national committeeman from Pennsylvania, intimate friend of President Hoover, and grandson of the man who helped finance the Civil War, died suddenly today at Andover, England.

Word of his death, caused by heart disease, was received by his son, Jay Cooke 2d. Mr. Cooke, who was 60, and his wife went abroad last September with Mr. and Mrs. Syden Emlen Hutchinson on a shooting trip, and had planned to return to Philadelphia in December. Mrs. Cooke will return with the body on a liner due in New York next Tuesday.

Born in Philadelphia April 22, 1872, Cooke was a grandson of Jay Cooke, founder of the First National Bank of Philadelphia, who came to the aid of President Lincoln during the dark hours of the Civil War and by his financial genius raised funds which helped save the Union.

Germany Scores Blast Evidence

Authenticity of New U. S. Claims Challenged at Rehearing of Case.

(Associated Press.)

A challenge to the authenticity of new American evidence to prove complicity of German spies in the destruction of the Black Tom Terminal and Kingsland munitions plant was advanced by Germany yesterday in concluding arguments before the German-American Mixed Claims Commission.

The commission is rehearing the case on an American plea of discovery of new evidence. It previously had handed down an opinion favorable to Germany.

The American case has hinged on two separate sets of documents—one relating to the destruction of the Black Tom Terminal of the Lehigh Valley Railroad and one to the destruction of the Kingsland, N. J., plant of the Canadian Car & Foundry Co., just before the United States entered the World War. The new evidence offered in the Black Tom case was an alleged secret spy message, written in invisible ink and sent from Mexico to the United States.

John Simpson Is Urged As Successor to Hyde

HITLER TO ANSWER HINDENBURG TODAY

One Group of His Advisers Urges Acceptance of Chancellorship.

Berlin, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Besieged by two groups of conflicting advisers, Adolf Hitler, leader of the National Socialists, decided today to put off until tomorrow his reply to President von Hindenburg's reiterated conditional proffer of the chancellorship.

For the purpose of getting a brief respite from the almost continuous political conferences of the last few days, the Nazi chieftain dropped negotiations tonight and went to the state opera to hear Wagner's "Die Meistersinger."

Hitler's decision will be set forth tomorrow in a letter to the president in reply to a communication received from him this afternoon. In that communication the aged field marshal reiterated that whoever heads the new cabinet must be sure of a safe and continuous parliamentary majority.

One group of the Hitler advisers urged that all conditions laid down by the president be accepted. It was their theory that once Hitler was ensconced in the chancellor's chair, Von Hindenburg would judge him by his work and would give him an increasingly free hand. Among the men who took this view were Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank; Dr. Wilhelm Frick, long a Hitler lieutenant; and Capt. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, who was speaker of the last and short-lived Reichstag.

Hitler himself chafed at the idea of bowing to the parliamentarism which he has been fighting. Gen. Franz von Epp, one of the Nazi members of the new Reichstag, and several other advisers agreed with him, taking the position that he could not barter with other party leaders in an attempt to line up a safe majority.

Confronted with this division of opinion among his associates, the Nazi leader decided to sleep over the matter.

CATHOLIC EXPANSION WORK TO CONTINUE

Leaders at Chicago Session Are Told Fund Is Only Slightly Reduced.

Chicago, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The Roman Catholic Church was placed on record today as favoring no retrenchment other than that absolutely necessary in its expansion program for 1933.

Cardinals, archbishops and bishops of the church met with prominent laymen at the Catholic Church Extension Society and were informed the fund for extension work was only 10 per cent less than last year.

"The work of the church must be carried on with renewed vigor in these times of stress," said George Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, a leader at the conference. "In fact, there is a greater need for vigor at present than in many years.

"Our people, many of them, need the solace of the church. And by their generosity, those more fortunate ones have indicated no slackening in their willingness to assist."

The extension society, it was announced, has a fund of $1,300,000 for use during the next year in helping to build churches, schools and seminaries. Another important function of the society is aiding in the training of young men for the priesthood.

Spokesmen for the meeting said there would be little change in expenditure of the society's funds, except that requests for financial assistance to poorer parishes, particularly those in agricultural areas, were greater.

Birth Control Hit By Catholic Men

Resolution in Pittsburgh Backs Laws Banning Data Dissemination.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Assailing birth control as "moral leprosy," the National Council of Catholic Men today adopted a resolution calling for support of existing laws banning dissemination of information on the subject.

"Advocates of this pernicious immorality never cease," the resolution said, "to endeavor to win converts to their cause and the perils of distress now passing has provided willing listeners to the siren call for the limitation of the family on economic grounds, although opposed to the unchangeable laws of God and the welfare of human society."

Recognizing the stage and screen as having a proper place in the educational and cultural life of the Nation, the council urged determined opposition to productions "subversive of morals and destructive of Christian principles."

Army Plane Bombs Site With Material for Cabin

Honolulu, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—An Army bombing plane today lifted a heavy load of sheet metal, lumber, nails and other building material over the Waianae Mountains, a few miles from Honolulu and dropped the cargo at a spot where the Territorial board of forestry wished to build a cabin.

Services of the Air Corps were obtained because the vegetation was too dense and the mountain sides too steep to permit surface transportation.

SIR WALTER SCOTT MANUSCRIPT STOLEN

Valuable Relic Taken From Locked Display Case at Columbia University.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The theft of an original Sir Walter Scott manuscript owned by J. P. Morgan was disclosed today when police throughout the United States and Europe were notified of its disappearance from an exhibit at Columbia University.

The volume was one of three comprising Scott's own pen-written manuscript of "Guy Mannering."

It was the first acquired by the late J. Pierpont Morgan when he began the foundation of his famous private library. It had been given to him by his father, Junius Morgan, in 1882.

The first of the three books had been on display in a locked glass case in the center of a brilliantly lighted Avery library at Columbia during the month of October, while the centenary of Scott's death was being observed.

The loss of the volume was discovered October 24 by the Avery librarian, but was kept a secret in the hope the thief would return it.

As New York detectives were assigned to the case, they said the purloiner of the book had rivaled in skill the criminals who stole the priceless Mona Lisa from under the watchful eyes of guards at the Louvre.

They expressed a theory the volume is being held for ransom.

Roger Howson, university librarian, in a formal statement, said the set is of inestimable value, but that the missing volume is "unmarketable" by itself.

Book experts pointed out that the value of the two volumes remaining in the Morgan library is ruined by the loss of the third.

It was on these statements police based their ransom theory.

Howson and his assistant were the only ones with keys to the glass case.

"It seems that two or three thieves worked together to steal the manuscript," the librarian said, "since it must have been taken while the exhibition was open to the public.

"One or two confederates must have shielded the case from view by pretending to examine its contents, while another worked with a pass key.

"Whoever took the manuscript evidently didn't know what he was doing. He left two more valuable manuscripts, "Ivanhoe" and "Waverly," which were in the same case, and apparently he failed to realize that any one who would be likely to purchase such a manuscript could not fail to recognize it as belonging to the Morgan collection."

Lieut. C. R. Darnall Weds in California

Miss J. A. Alcott Becomes Bride of Capital Man in San Francisco.

San Francisco, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Miss Jane A. Alcott, 23, of Mount Holly, N. J., became the bride of Lieut. Carl R. Darnall, 28, of Letterman General Hospital in the Presidio Chapel here today.

The romance is said to have begun in Philadelphia when Lieut. Darnall was attending Jefferson School of Medicine. Lieut. Darnall, an interne at Letterman Hospital, is the son of Brig. Gen. Carl R. Darnall, retired, of Washington, D. C.

Lieut. Darnall was born in Washington and lived here for many years. He attended Central High School from 1919 to 1922. He was commissioned a lieutenant in the Army following his graduation in medicine last June at Philadelphia. His parents live at 1816 Lamont street northwest.

Hoover Dam Site Is Moved 20 Feet

Shift Upstream Is Made to Provide Greater Horsepower.

Boulder City, Nev., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The site for Hoover Dam, to be the world's largest structure of its kind, has been moved some 20-odd feet upstream to make room for bigger and better generators.

Recent conferences with power engineers from Los Angeles and contractors for the power house equipment disclosed that use of power by Los Angeles will require that the generating units be designed for both 50-cycle and 60-cycle operation. The generators will have to have a very large flywheel effect to improve the system stability. This meant much larger generators than were originally planned and larger power houses on the Arizona and Nevada sides of the river below the dam. To make room it was necessary to fix a new sit for the dam up the river.

Resulting from new plans, installed capacity of the Hoover Dam power plant will be 1,800,000 horsepower, instead of the 1,000,000 to 1,200,000 originally planned. This exceeds the combined ultimate capacities of the Niagara, 557,500; Conowingo, 594,000, and Muscle Shoals, 600,000-horsepower projects.

El Salvador Seeks Aid In Denouncing War Pact

San Salvador, Republic of El Salvador, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Foreign Minister Leonidas S. Pacheco left today for Guatemala, where he will ask that government to join President Jimenez of Costa Rica in denouncing the Washington pact of 1922 under which Central American countries agreed not to recognize governments gaining power by military force.

Dr. Pacheco later will visit Honduras and Nicaragua on the same mission. El Salvador is interested vitally in President Jimenez's stand since it is now controlled by a government which gained power in a revolution.

Greece to Meet Part Of Interest on Bonds

Athens, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Today's newspapers said the Greek Legation at London had been instructed to inform British holders of Greek bonds that the Greek government will pay 30 per cent of the interest due on foreign loans and will give bondholders facilities for inquiring into the financial situation in order to prove the good faith of the government's declaration that it would be impossible to pay more.

Blair P. Scott, Churchman, Suicide in 17-Story Plunge

National City Christian Elder and Descendant of Novelist Carefully Planned Fatal Act, Notes Reveal; Compared Himself With Gandhi.

Instantly killed in a seventeen-story plunge from a window of the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, in New York City, the body of Blair P. Scott, Baltimore attorney and an elder in the National City Christian Church here, was found yesterday crumpled on the roof of the hotel annex.

Mr. Scott, widely known religious writer, spent much of his time in Washington. Although maintaining offices in Baltimore, associates declared last night that he traveled extensively between here and New York. He lived here for some time during the construction of the National City Christian Church.

According to hotel officials, Mr. Scott registered at the Waldorf-Astoria two days ago. In his room on the seventeenth floor were found a number of notes, addressed to the hotel management, the press, and employes of his brokerage business in Baltimore.

Mr. Scott had apparently planned for some time to take his life. A letter was received yesterday at his office in Baltimore, describing his intentions. The office called the New York hotel a short time after his body was found.

The note addressed to the press read in part:

"I have been examining myself to see how I could contribute my mite to helping the unfortunates to a better chance. As an Anglo-Saxon I am willing to meet the challenge of Mahatma Gandhi and give my life (or this sense of it), as he seems willing to do, that self-love, self-interest, self-justification may not triumph over our people.

"Life is sweet to all of us, but ideals must not perish from the earth if man is to progress spiritually. I am extinguishing this sense of consciousness as an evidence of my desire to interest our people in the forgotten man's first right."

Mr. Scott was 60 years old. He had visited Washington at frequent intervals recently to conduct the "Little Forum," a religious meeting held in the Willard Hotel. His attorney, Arnold L. Davis, of New York, declared Mr. Scott was a lineal descendant of Sir Walter Scott.

Dressed in dinner clothes when found, Mr. Scott's attorney said he had planned to "keep a certain engagement" a short time before his fatal leap.

He was the grandson of the Rev. Walter Scott, who with Alexander Hamilton and others, founded the Disciples of Christ.

Mr. Scott was a close friend of the Rev. J. Earle Wilfley, pastor emeritus of the National City Christian Church. He was a member of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church and was a main contributing factor to the erection of the new church.

Among his other business connections, Mr. Scott was president of the Standard Reserve Deposit Co. of Baltimore.

In a note left to the management of the Waldorf-Astoria Mr. Scott declared:

"When my motive is revealed in the morning, the act may not appear so embarrasing." He left a check covering his hotel bill.

Mr. Scott is said to have a wife and daughter in California.

Green River, Wyo., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—A new hitch-hike technique has been developed by Cy Richards, 18, which requires not even the jerk of a thumb. The youth was found lying at the edge of the Lincoln highway as if in a swoon. But it was Deputy Sheriff Johanson who went to the rescue and not a Good Samaritan driving eastward. Sometimes, Richards admitted to the officer, the "gag" works.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Two-year-old Forrest Key supplies what it used to take to make a news story. Forrest bit his bull pup on the ear in a moment of anger. McCandless Nominated As Hawaiian Governor

Honolulu, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—After a bitter interisland contest, the Democratic central committee of Hawaii today selected Lincoln N. McCandless, delegate-elect to Congress, as its choice for Territorial governor, with Delbert Metzger, Hilo attorney, alternate.

Democratic leaders expressed the opinion McCandless would not resign the delegateship to become governor, but would submit the name of Metzger to President-elect Roosevelt for appointment. McCandless, who is 72 years old, after ten campaigns for the office of delegate to Congress, defeated Delegate Victor S. K. Houston, Republican, in the election, November 8.

PARLIAMENT OPENS WITH ROYAL POMP

King George States Problem of Unemployment Cause of Greatest Anxiety.

London, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—King George opened Parliament today with all the usual dignified and ancient pageantry, but as soon as the ceremonies were over the House of Commons had a rough-and-tumble debate on the pressing problem of what to do about the unemployed.

This issue was discussed at considerable length in the king's speech and subsequently in Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's exposition of teh government's policies.

The attack came from George Lansbury, leader of the Labor party, who declared that the speech from the throne "was not worthy of Parliament or of being put into the king's hands."

The ancient pageantry of the ceremonial opening of Parliament provided the Labor leader with his text.

Plans Are Called Humbug.

Comparing the ceremony with the distress in London's slums, he said: "I would like to take the king and that whole assembly down two of the streets in my division."

Mr. Lansbury characterized the government's plans for dealing with the jobless problem as "humbug."

It was in a gorgeous setting that the king read the speech, written for him by the cabinet, which said that the persistence of the unemployment problem "causes me the greatest anxiety." There was, incidentally, no mention of the war debt negotiations with the United States in the speech from the throne.

Greatest of Social Problems

In the vaulted chamber of the House of Lords the king and queen sat on their golden throne chairs, the queen a little lower than the king. The Prince of Wales was seated below the dais. The lord high chancellor, Lord Sankey, handed the monarch the address. King George read it and returned the parchment. This completed the royal role in the ceremony.

"Large numbers of my people still are unable to find employment," the speech said, "and the persistence of this situation causes me the greatest anxiety. Unemployment as we have known it for some years is undoubtedly the greatest of social problems.

"In particular I am distressed that many young men and women have never in their lives had an opportunity of regular employment. * * *
My government intends to bring forward measures dealing comprehensively with unemployment insurance and with the treatment of those unable to obtain work, and the considerations I have mentioned will be borne in mind in framing their proposals."

This declaration was followed up by Mr. MacDonald, who pledged the government to face the unemployment question resolutely and to seek not for a temporary but for a permanent solution.

MORE SCHOOL FUNDS SOUGHT FOR 1933-34

Arlington County Committee on Street Names Also Ready to Report.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Harry A. Fellows, chairman of the Arlington County board, addressing the meeting of the Arlington County Parent-Teacher Association Council yesterday at Stonewall Jackson School, Ballston, explained in detail provisions of the budget relating to the schools.

He pointed out that with a bond issue outstanding amounting to $1,350,666, carrying an interest rate of $65,126, that 39.8 cents of every dollar in taxes raised is devoted to the schools of the county for all purposes. Of the $2.45 tax levy $1.05 goes to schools.

To maintain the present efficient rating which the schools of Arlington County enjoy it appears that, with continued increase in enrollment, next year it will be necessary to increase the amount set aside for schools.

Chairman Fellows congratulated the association on the work which it is doing in the county and declared that much of the efficient work being accomplished is due to the work of this association.

County Manager Roy S. Braden announced yesterday the street naming committee, which for the last several months has been making a comprehensive study of the situation in the county regarding the duplication of street names, has now completed its work and is ready to make recommendations to the county board.

This joint meeting, Braden stated, will be held in the near future and it is hoped that it may result in a uniform naming of all streets in Arlington County.

Owing to tomorrow being Thanksgiving Day, the weekly meeting of the Arlington County Monarch Club will be held on Friday at 12 o'clock at Windsor Arms, on Glebe road.

The second annual get-together luncheon, given by the Arlington County Kiwanis Club officials of the District of Columbia and Arlington County, will be held today at 12:30 o'clock at Windsor Arms, on Glebe road.

A musical program is being arranged by the program committee, under direction of John F. Webster, vice president, and a short talk will be given by E. J. Murphy, a former president of the Washington Club. Amos C. Crounse, head of the local club, will preside.

Foreman Freed of Blame In Fatal Fall of Worker

Lee Raymond Burch, construction foreman on a Federal building at Tenth street and Constitution avenue, yesterday was cleared of a manslaughter charge in connection with the death of Lewis Marlow, a workman, who was fatally injured November 4, when a plank broke and he fell to the ground.

Burch had been held by the coroner's jury but the grand jury found no evidence of blame on his part and he was acquitted through the medium of an ignored indictment.

Army's Desertions Cut In Half by Hard Times

(Associated Press.)

Army desertions fell off nearly 50 per cent in the 1932 fiscal year.

There were approximately 2,800 desertions, compared with 5,076 last year, says the annual report of Maj. Gen. J. F. Preston, inspector general.

Separations in the Army by purchase of discharge, sentence of civil court, minority and fraudulent enlistment were also less this year than in 1931.

Improved conditions in this respect, Gen. Preston attributed "to unemployment in civil life, which is further reflected in the Army in the more numerous and better type of applicants and enlistments."

POLICE ARE ORDERED TO ARREST DUMPERS

Refuse Heap on Boulevard in Prince Georges County Described as "Bad."

Reporting that the trash dump between the Edmonston road and the Baltimore boulevard was in "bad condition," Dr. A. B. Hooton, county health officer, yesterday recommended to the Prince Georges County commissioners that the county police be instructed to watch for and arrest persons dumping matter here.

Dr. Hooton also sent to the commissioners, at their regular meeting yesterday, a report on the Lady Astor Kennels on the Marlboro pike just over the District line. A number of dogs were fairly noisy, he said, but there was no bad odor and the proprietor agreed to follow his recommendations in regard to disposing of waste.

A letter in which the Bowie district road committee defended their repairs to the High Bridge road also was received. Complaints had been made by Clara Lehman that the road was in bad condition. The district committee retorted that the condition was due to rain which fell while construction was going on, and ended with a suggestion that the commissioners appoint a new committee of "live wires" who could perform "superhuman tasks."

The commissioners received a letter from the Cheverly Citizens Association approving of the proposed widening of the Defense highway and asking the commissioners to work for this action. A complaint about a dangerous intersection where Addison Chapel road joints River road in Beaver Heights was referred to Seat Pleasant district road committee.

Dr. R. W. Brooks Is Reelected.

Dr. R. W. Brooks, pastor of the Lincoln Congregational Temple, was reelected for the fourth time as president of the Interdenominational Ministers Alliance of Washington and vicinity yesterday. Other officers named were Dr. W. O. Carrington, vice President; the Rev. R. A. Fairley, secretary, and Dr. D. E. Wiseman, treasurer. The alliance adopted a resolution supporting the prohibition amendment.

BRYAN DAVIS NAMED IN FRAUD TRUE BILL

Embezzlement of $12,809 Is Laid to Former Takoma Park Treasurer.

Indictment alleging embezzlement of $12,809.66 of the town funds of Takoma Park, Md., was returned yesterday by the Montgomery County grand jury at Rockville, Md., against Bryan Davis, former town clerk and treasurer of Takoma Park. Davis had been removed from office by Mayor Frederick L. Lewton shortly before the result of an audit by the D. N. Burnham & Co., of Washington, revealing an alleged shortage in the town books, was made public.

Davis at present is at liberty on bond of $5,000 posted when he waived preliminary hearing in Montgomery County police court after a warrant for his arrest had been ordered by State's Attorney Stedman Prescott following presentation of the audit report to Mr. Prescott by E. Barrett Prettyman, corporation counsel for the town. Attorneys for Davis, J. Bond Smith, of Takoma Park, and F. Barnard Welsh, of Rockville, say that the shortages are based on presumption that the money had been paid to Davis, and predict that they will establish his innocence.

The grand jury completed its work yesterday and presented its report to Judge Charles W. Woodward in Montgomery County Circuit Court. The inquisitorial body reported that it had examined 192 witneses in the 72 cases presented for its study and had returned 63 presentments.

The body commended "able and efficient manner" in which the county identification bureau is being conducted by Detective Theodore Vollten and the county commissioners for their "aid in advancing this valuable department of the police force." The grand jury expressed the opinion that the efficiency of the chief of police, Alvie A. Moxley, and his force is responsible for the small number of cases presented to it.

State's Attorney Prescott, Clerk of the Court Clayton K. Watkins, and the court bailiff were commended for the courtesy and aid they offered the body in its work. The grand jury reported that it had inspected and found the jail, courthouse, county buildings and other property in excellent condition and that the almshouse especially was well kept.

Herndon Man Is Fined For Disturbing Peace

Two trials were held yesterday in the Circuit Court of Fairfax County, Va., before Judge Walter T. McCarthy. Minor C. Mock, of Herndon, was fined $50 and costs on an appeal from a justice of the peace court decision. Mock had been found guilty of disturbing the peace and of firing shots at the home of C. Ramsberg, in Herndon, about a year ago before Justice George Williams and had appealed the sentence.

Lester Nalls, of Falls Church, indicted several months ago for manslaughter, pleaded guilty to reckless driving and was fined $50 and costs. Nalls was the driver of the car which struck R. L. Rickert, in Vienna, one night last spring. Rickert died later in a Takoma Park hospital.

STREET REPAVING IS UP TO COMPANY

City Council in Alexandria Decides It Can Not Act to Have Work Done.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 823.

The Alexandria City Council last night received an estimate from the city engineer of $9,000 for repaving portions of King street, from which the tracks of the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Electric Railway are to be removed, but it was decided that the city at this time can not take any action in this regard, and that the railway company will be required to repave the street in the center and for a distance of 2 feet on either side of the tracks with material similar to that already in place. The removal of the tracks on Cameron street was started yesterday.

A petition from R. E. Grover for the rezoning from "A" residential to "D" commercial of a lot at the southeast corner of Lee and Franklin streets was opposed by several residents of the First Ward, who claimed that such rezoning would not only interfere with tentative plans for the ultimate beautification of the river front but would also materially reduce the value of their properties. However, the council granted Mr. Grover's petition, which was presented through his attorney, T. R. Dyson.

A resolution seeking to appropriate $5,800 for the construction of a storm water drain on Clyde avenue from Peyton avenue to Belfonte avenue, and on Belfonte avenue from Clyde avenue to Hoofs Run, was held over under the rules. A number of residents of the affected area appeared before the council and stated that serious damage to their property had been done as a result of the accumulation of storm water. Councilman E. C. Davison, in advocating adoption of the resolution, stated that the territory which was annexed to Alexandria three years ago has not received the consideration in the matter of street and sewer improvement to which it was entitled in the annexation agreement, and urged that this improvement be financed by a loan if necessary.

The board of women managers of the Alexandria Hospital has issued the annual Thanksgiving appeal for that institution, asking donations of food, household linens and money. The money heretofore has been placed in a fund toward a needed addition to the hospital, but announcement is made this year that any money will be used toward the new heating plant recently installed.

Colleen Murray, alias "Red Hot," colored, 48, died Monday night in Alexandria Hospital as the result of injuries received Sunday night while at the power plant of the Virginia Public Service Co. Murray was hit by Al J. Harris, colored, 33, of 914 North Lee street. Dr. W. E. Beattie, coroner, held an inquest yesterday and gave a verdict that Murray came to his death as the result of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Harris was held on a murder charge following an investigation in police court yesterday. Harris at first denied hitting Murray, but later admitted it. He claimed the dead man attacked him first in a quarrel over a woman.

A man described as Howard Gray, 35, reported to be from West Virginia, is reported dying in the Alexandria Hospital as the result of injuries received in a fall from a Southern Railway freight train as Manassas, Va., on Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Josephine A. Bowie, 64, widow of William Bowie, died on Monday in a Washington hospital and funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Knight, 50 Craik street, Rosemont Park. Besides her daughter she is survived by two brothers, Isaac S. Groves, this city, and John T. Groves, Burnleya, Va., and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Fair, Alexandria.

Mrs. Annie Elizabeth Meyers, 71, widow of Ernest Meyers, died yesterday at the Alexandria Hospital. Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Friday at her home, 405 Washington avenue, Mount Ida. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery, Washington.

Commander Louis T. Gulliver, of the U. S. S. Constitution, was principal speaker at the assembly exercises of George Mason High School in Alexandria yesterday. He delivered an illustrated lecture on "Old Ironsides."

The Alexandria Kiwanis Club will meet at 12:30 p. m. today in George Mason Hotel, when John H. Trimyer will present as speaker the Rev. E. W. Aaron, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Vocal selections will be by Fred Petitt, accompanied by Mrs. Petitt. This will be the last time the luncheon is to be served by the women who have served the past year in connection with the Bicentennial observation.

11 Agencies Spend $114,484 on Needy

Expenditure for Month Is $81,000 More Than Period in 1931.

Eleven relief agencies spent $114,484 in direct and work relief in Washington during last September, $4,000 more than was spent during August and $81,000 more than in September of 1931, according to a report yesterday of the Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.

An increase of 1.1 per cent in expenditures for relief by 978 agencies in 124 cities, the bureau reported. This slight increase followed a 8.1 per cent gain from July to August.

The rise in relief expenditures, it was said, has been mainly in general relief. According to the report, the number of families aided through general relief and special allowances continued to rise more rapidly than the amount expended, the report stated.

Legal Sorority Grateful to The Post.

Eta Chapter, Kappa Beta Pi legal sorority, expressed their appreciation to The Washington Post in a resolution adopted recently. The resolution read: "The splendid cooperation can only react to the best interest of the sorority."

Blackmail Charge Ignored.

Ralph H. DeWitt and his wife, Mrs. Helen L. DeWitt, were cleared of a charge of blackmail yesterday when the District grand jury, after an investigation, refused to report an indictment against them.

CHILD CONFERENCE HELD IN ROCKVILLE

Judge Waxter, of Baltimore, Speaks on Juvenile Court Work.

The juvenile court is a child study clinic and not an institution to ferret him out for criminal tendencies, Judge Thomas J. S. Waxter, of the Baltimore Juvenile Court, told a child welfare conference held under the auspices of the Maryland League of Women Voters yesterday at the Rockville Courthouse.

Miss Lavinia Engle, director of the Maryland league, reviewed conditions in the State and said that while the Maryland concept of leadership in social welfare work is that leadership should come from the private group it is necessary that the State should respond with leadership in meeting child questions where the usual agencies fail. Judge R. Granville Curry, of the Montgomery County Juvenile Court, told of the progress made by his court.

Dr. Edwin W. Broome, county superintendent of schools, told of the efforts made by the county schools in reaching and solving the problem child's case. Miss Willie Greene Day, executive secretary of the Montgomery County Social Service League, spoke on the work being carried on by her organization, which was lauded by several of the speakers.

Several other prominent child welfare experts spoke. This was the first of a series of conferences which are planned.

Man Is Put Under Bond On Counterfeit Charge

Charged with passing a counterfeit $10 bill, Nathan Davis, of Washington, was held yesterday for Federal action in bond of $5,000 after a hearing before United States Commissioner J. Frank Parran in Marlboro. At the hearing Federal agents testified Davis passed one of the bills to Arnold Milliner, who operates a roadside stand on the Baltimore boulevard.

Three men living near Clinton, Md., also were held for the Federal authorities on liquor charges after a hearing before Commission Parran. They are Albert and Walter Moore and Albert Butler, and were arrested after a raid on a 200-gallon still near Clinton.

Tennessee Vote Fraud Charged

Bogus Poll Tax Receipts Distributed in County, Probers Are Told.

Jonesboro, Tenn., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Testimony that 2,000 bogus poll tax receipts were printed in Washington County and at least 10 or 12 handed out for use in the August 4 primary was given at a hearing today before Representative J. E. Nelson (Republican), of Maine, member of the special House election committee here to investigate the congressional election in the First District of Tennessee.

Nelson came from Washington on the complaint of Representative O. B. Lovette, of Greenville, who, running as an independent Republican, was defeated by former Representative B. Carroll Reece, of Johnson City, in the general election. Lovette also was defeated by Reece in the primary. Lovette charged excessive use of money and fraudulent voting in both the primary and the election.

Nelson heard testimony of Frank Haws, county trustee here, that 2,000 bogus poll tax receipts were printed, 1,000 of them having been returned to him while the remainder still are missing.

Former Bookkeeper Indicted.

Rose Helskell, a bookkeeper formerly employed by the Mechanical Engineering & Construction Co., was indicted by the District grand jury yesterday on a charge of embezzling $2,425 from the company.

TAX REASSESSMENT PREPARED IN COUNTY

Bethesda and Wheaton Area Residents to Receive Notices Shortly.

Residents of the Bethesda and Wheaton districts of Montgomery County, Md., will receive notices shortly of the assessments placed against their property in accordance with the reassessment law passed by the 1931 State Legislature.

Hearings at which protests against the assessments will be considered will be held at frequent intervals by the Montgomery County commissioners, beginning December 8 at 10 a. m. in the hearing room of the commissioners at Rockville Courthouse.

Hearings will be held each Thursday thereafter until the task is completed. Under the terms of the law one-fifth of the county is reassessed each year. The first general reassessment is for the area embracing Bethesda, Chevy Chase, Potomac, Glen Echo and Cabin John, of the Bethesda District, and Silver Spring, Takoma Park, Wheaton, Kensington and Forest Glen, of the Wheaton District.

Automobile tax bills are to be mailed out this week to county owners. J. Forest Walker, county treasurer, stressed that a receipted automobile tax bill must be obtained before 1933 license tags can be purchased. All motorists were warned that they should have their automobiles tested and inspected by an approved garage in order that they can secure license tags.

Police Radio Description In Pink Elephant Class

Light-skinned colored man, 38 to 40 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall, 150 pounds, wearing dark trousers and bluish apron over a brown sweater, light cap, a small Charley Chaplin mustache and long nose.

No, that's not a description of a character in opera bouffe. That was a description given over the police radio of a man wanted for shooting at another man. Some credit should go to the announcer for the characterization. Evidently he has been listening to the newsreel spielers.

Hoover Train Plot Revealed as Hoax

Watchman Admits Story of Attack Close to Tracks False.

San Francisco, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Dan O'Connell, chief of the special agents of the Southern Pacific Co., said tonight that Charles E. Fish, railroad watchman, had admitted his story of being attacked and shot while he was guarding the right of way near Palisade, Nev., during President Hoover's trip to Palo Alto was a hoax.

O'Connell said Fish, after much questioning, admitted he had shot himself and made up the story "to obtain notoriety." He said Fish had obtained the dynamite from an old abandoned mine nearby and scattered it near the bridge on which he had declared he was attacked and shot.

O'Connell said he did not know what action the railroad would take against Fish for halting the train and delaying its westward trip, but assumed the watchman would be discharged.

CHEST DRIVE NEARS CLOSE

word pictures of the destitution and despair that must result if the Chest fails; late into the night the staff of the Chest and volunteer workers pored over lists of prospects and givers in order that no potential contributor should fail to have an opportunity to subscribe.

Yesterday's reports, showing 15,418 new contributors with total receipts of $184,045.95, wiped 27 more "black" days off the calendar and provided for the work of the Chest's sixty-three agencies through August 25. The total received to date, $1,572,705.56, provides approximately 237 days' operation of these agencies and leaves the Chest facing the necessity of providing $6,629 per day for the 128 "black" days still left on the calendar.

One of the unsolicited gifts received by the Community Chest yesterday was that of Sir Ronald Lindsay, Ambassador from Great Britain, who sent a check for $250 to Mrs. Frank B. Noyes, expressing cordial wishes for the success of the Chest campaign.

Urges Redoubled Efforts.

Chairman Newbold Noyes at yesterday's meeting, urged redoubled efforts, redoubled zeal and redoubled devotion to the cause of suffering humanity upon every worker present.

"The thing that is true," Mr. Noyes said, "is that during the remaining 36 hours if you don't fill up that calendar, people are going to be hungry and in distress here in Washington. You can, if you will, put this campaign over. The only way we can get subscriptions is for you to continue your dedication to this job. Be courageous, not discouraged. Pat yourselves on the back and say that you have done a fine job. You have done a fine job. Come to the meeting tomorrow night and report your success."

Coleman Jennings received the honor banner for the highest percentage dollar quota team in the special gifts unit; Lawrence W. Moore, of the United States Tariff Commission, for the highest percentage of quota in a Governmental department of 100 to 1,000 personnel; Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, for the District of Columbia, for the highest percentage of a department of more than 1,000 personnel in the governmental unit; Mrs. F. Kerby for the honor team of the metropolitan unit; J. S. Gorrell for the honor division of the metropolitan unit; William Montgomery for the highest percentage of 100 per cent firms area in the group solicitation unit; Arthur D. Marks for the highest percentage of 100 per cent firms in any section in the group solicitation unit.

Introduces Honor Guests.

Chairman Noyes then introduced the honor guests of the day, including Miss Ethel Barrymore, dean of American actresses, now appearing at the National Theater; Mrs. Duncan Phillips, painter and wife of the director of the Phillips Art Gallery, Mrs. Frederic A. Whiting, wife of the president of the American Federation of Art; Mrs. William Adams Slade, wife of the librarian of the Folger Shakespeare Library and president of the Y. W. C. A.; Mrs. Edwin B. Parker, and "the lady who first introduced me to Washington, my mother, Mrs. Frank B. Noyes."

Chairman Noyes also introduced a number of prominent business men, including Clarence F. Norment, jr., of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co.; William F. Ham, of the Potomac Electric Power Co.; Julius Garfinckel, of Julius Garfinckel & Co.; D. A. Skinner, secretary of the United States Chamber of Commerce; Rear Admiral H. V. Butler, commandant of the navy yard. He also introduced Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, chairman of the speakers unit; Mrs. Wilson Compton, vice chairman; E. Claude Babcock, secretary of the Civil Service Commission and chairman of the men's organization of the speakers unit, and J. F. Moulton, in charge of the group solicitation committee of the speakers unit.

Rabbi Abram Simon, the principal speaker, told of the origin of the "Garrison finish" expression, due to the ability of a jockey named Garrison to lift his horse out of the ruck in the final stages of the race. He urged every worker present to bend every endeavor toward making a "Garrison finish" by tomorrow night.

Attack on Discouragement.

"I hope that not one of you is at all discouraged," Rabbi Simon said. "Success is usually found in the closing hours. You are prepared for the best, but not for the worst. Go into the finish with enthusiasm and a feeling of encouragement and I believe you will win in the last few hours.

"Success is its own contagion. You can impart your enthusiasm or your discouragement to other men and women. Therefore enthusiasm is the watchword. Give twice the amount of enthusiasm, twice the amount of zeal. Say in your own hearts that we are going to make this campaign a victory over disease; a victory over discouragement; a victory over depression, and a victory for our own glory."

Following the reports led by the various unit chairmen, Mr. Noyes again called attention to the few hours that remain and urged every worker to be present tonight at the closing meeting at Wardman Park with the largest possible report that can be obtained.

Appeals were delivered last night over the radio by Mr. Noyes, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal Bishop of Washington; the Right Rev. William F. McDowell, Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church here, and Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the late President Wilson. Each speaker pleaded with Washingtonians to come to the rescue of those in distress by pushing the campaign to a successful conclusion today.

Talk by Tumulty.

Declaring that the public alone can solve the city-wide problem of relief from cold and hunger, Mr. Tumulty said: "You are the jury that must upon your honor decide the issue involved in this important case. You know the clients of the Community Chest. You know they are the poor, the sick, the hungry, the cold, the discouraged, and the helpless little ones—the children."

Firms added to the list of those reporting 100 per cent contributions from employes were:

Arcade Sunshine Laundry, Dupont Laundry Co., East Washington Savings Bank, Evangeline Residence, Maloney Concrete Co., F. P. ROTATING OF JOBS SET AT NAVY YARD

New Plan Ordered by Adams to Provide Work for Men on Furloughs.

To provide employment for men now on furlough without pay, Secretary of the Navy Adams yesterday ordered commandants of all naval districts to inaugurate December 1 a plan for rotating of jobs.

In the Washington Navy Yard, the plan will apply within a trade, officials said, as obviously a machinist can not do boilermaker's work and vice versa. Specialists within a group, however, will share the work with their own craftsmen, so that none may be without an income. The new plan will also affect the 3,848 civilian workers at the Navy Yord here.

It is reported that at present 56 men in various trades at the Navy Yard are on indefinite furloughs, and these will be given early opportunity for employment.

The new rule also applies to men whose wives work in the Government service and who were slated to lose their jobs through dismissal under the economy act.

Commissioners Award Three Sewer Contracts

Three sewer contracts were awarded yesterday by the District Commissioners. Peter M. Aiello, of Baltimore, was given the job of constructing the Takoma Park storm water sewer at a cost of $6,139.18.

James Parreco & Son, of Washington, was given the contract for building a replacement sewer in the vicinity of Tenth and C streets northeast for $4,907.68, while the Stowell Construction Co., Alexandria, won the job of the East Deanwood service sewer in Forty-third street, between Foote and Eads street northeast, on a bid of $2,020.09 any possible ordering of troops into Washington.

On July 28 last, when the bonus army was evicted from Washington, the Sixteenth Field Artillery was among the troop units engaging in the action. Prior to July 28 maneuvers in preparation of carrying out the so-called "white" plan—the type of military movement used in civil disorders by the United States Army—were carried on and included tear-gas barrages.

Children to March.

Confronted with what advance agents of the "hunger marchers" term a "mighty prelude" to their advent here, District Commissioners last night were undecided as to their attitude toward the proposed Thanksgiving "child misery" demonstration.

The possibility of preventing the children's demonstration by enforcing the rigid Federal laws against juvenile delinquency has been looked into, it was admitted. At the Commissioners request the office of Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride has submitted an opinion on the applicability of such statutes to such a demonstration and has also been in touch with the Department of Justice.

Benjamin Retaliates.

Herbert Benjamin, representative of the national hunger march, retaliated against probability of invoking juvenile delinquency laws with the statement that the 100 children expected would be accompanied by doctors, nurses, welfare workers and teachers, thus precluding any claim of delinquency.

The declaration that no mass picketing effort would be made at the White House by the children was made yesterday by Benjamin. It was indicated at police headquarters that no attempt would be made to interfere with the juvenile protestants as long as mass picketing was not attempted.

Will Go to White House.

Benjamin said the children would seek to present a petition to the President asking alleviation of conditions affecting boys and girls and then leave the White House for a convention at a yet unappointed place.

Most of the children are expected to assemble from Baltimore, a few from Washington and the remainder are said to be groups purportedly representing children in a number of large Eastern industrial cities.

The annual Christmas party for needy children given by police at the Fourth Precinct station will not be called off because of the impending arrival of the hunger marchers, Maj. Brown announced last night.

May Delay Canvassing.

The four policemen who usually solicit food and gifts for the children may not start their canvassing as early as usual, Maj. Brown said, because of the need for men to handle the marchers. As soon as the marchers have departed the men will be given leave to solicit gifts, Maj. Brown said.

Contrary to reports published in an afternoon paper, the police chief said no order has been given for the abandonment of the party.

Mayor in Iowa Refuses Hall to Marchers' Unit

Atlantic, Iowa, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Mayor L. M. Getz refused to allow members of a party authorities termed "hunger marchers" from Omaha and Sioux City to use the city hall for a mass meeting when they arrived here today to enlist recruits for their trek to Washington. The party numbered about twenty.

"I am not in sympathy with your movement," the mayor told S. A. Krieger and F. A. Haden, of Sioux City, and Cecil Wallace, of Omaha, leaders of the band. "The city and Cass County can't afford to feed you, but I will give you 2 pounds of coffee provided you move out of the city at once."

announcement that all Bolivian prisoners henceforth must work for their keep.

Dr. Juan Jose Soler told the neutral commission that, contrary to Bolivian accusation, Paraguay had cared well for prisoners of war, but, in face of Bolivia's refusal to indemnify Paraguay for their maintenance, the captives would be forced to labor behind the lines in accord with The Hague treaty of 1899.

Benefit Cut Hit By Veterans Body

V. F. W. Leader Asserts Bonus Should Be Paid Immediately.

"There can be no thought of trading off disability allowance or other benefits now provided by law for disabled former service men for a cash settlement of the adjusted service certificates," L. S. Ray, vice chairman of the national legislative committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said yesterday in commenting on the report that the Veterans Bureau is considering a plan of prepayment of the bonus certificates.

"We agree with Gen. Hines," he said, "that the question of cash settlement of the bonus is one that must be taken care of without delay, and the Veterar of Foreign Wars i in full accord with the thought that settlement should be made with as much saving to the Government as possible, provided, however, that the veteran shall suffer no loss.

"The Veterans of Foreign Wars maintains that the full face value is past due, and Congress will be asked to make immediate cash payment of these certificates."

appointment came as a "complete surprise" to him. He said the appointment was offered to him by long-distance telephone this morning and he came to Olympia and accepted it.

The new senator was born in Hickory County, Mo., and married Emma Kindley, of Bentonville, Ark., January 21, 1904. Ten years after coming to Washington he had charge of construction of the Chilkoot Pass Aerial Tramway in Alaska.

He has been engaged in logging activities in this State since 1906. He is a member of the F. & A. M. and the Shrine. He is a Presbyterian.

Grammer's appointment came as a surprise to political observers of the State. Mark Reed, Republican national committeeman, and William C. Butler, Everett banker, had been given the inside track for the appointment by political writers.

Gov. Hartley described his appointee as an "upstanding man with the courage of his convictions."

"I have known Mr. Grammer for 30 years," the governor said. "He will be a credit to himself and to the Nation and is a fit man to follow our late senior senator."

Drinks of Capital Students 95 P. C. Alcohol, Court Told

Boston, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Testimony to indicate that liquor containing as much as 95 or 96 per cent alcohol could be swallowed was introduced today at a hearing before United States Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney on the question of removing Max Reisman, of Boston, to Kansas, in connection with the sale of alleged poisonous Jamaica ginger there.

Several days ago Dr. William F. Boos testified that a liquor such as Jamaica ginger, which contains 80 to 85 per cent alcohol, could not be swallowed because it would produce choking.

The prosecution today offered the testimony of Peter Balaer, Government chemist at Washington for 25 years, who said he had seen 83 per cent solutions drunk and that he knew students at a university in Washington had drunk mixtures containing as much as 95 per cent alcohol, and that he had done so himself.

He brought a bottle to the courtroom which he said contained a mixture containing 95 to 96 per cent alcohol and offered to drink it, but Commissioner Jenny ruled that he might become suddenly intoxicated, and therefore his testimony might become valueless.

United States Attorney S. M. Brewster, of Topeka, Kans., who came to Boston to aid in bringing about Reisman's removal to Wichita for trial there did, however, take a drink from the bottle.

A brief illness was fatal to Joseph Henry Bagley, 59, vice president and Washington representative of the American Bank Note Co. He died yesterday morning.

Mr. Bagley was a resident of Washington for 40 years and last lived at the Shoreham Hotel. He was unmarried and has no immediate survivors. He was a fellow of the Royal Geographic Society of London and a member of the Metropolitan, Chevy Chase and Gibson Island Clubs.

Mass will be said at the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle at 9 o'clock this morning. Burial will be at Grand Rapids, Mich., his birthplace, Friday.

Chesterfields are milder for the simple reason that they are made of milder, riper tobaccos, blended and cross-blended, and seasoned with just enough Turkish to make them taste right.

One more thing. Chesterfields are pure . . . just as pure as the water you drink.

NO AGREEMENT.

The conference between President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt does not appear to have yielded results which will give any satisfaction to foreign debtors. The White House statement that "it is felt that progress has been made" probably will be construed as meaning that the two executives stand about where they stood before the meeting was held. Gov. Roosevelt doubtless learned much, but it does not appear that any information imparted to him caused him to give any promises.

The intimation in Gov. Roosevelt's telegram accepting the invitation to confer with President Hoover signified that he regarded the question of postponement of debt payments due next month as a matter concerning the present administration and the present Congress. It does not seem probable that the conference changed this opinion. Gov. Roosevelt could not join the President in pressing upon Congress an acceptance of the debtors' plea for postponement without also permitting it to be understood that he favored reconsideration of the entire debt question. If he is to be free to deal with this question after he becomes President he can not afford to make commitments now.

Conferences between the President and members of Congress, and conferences between Gov. Roosevelt and Democratic members will define the probable attitude of Congress toward the proposal of the debtors for postponement. The readiness of Italy to pay its debt installment can not fail to diminish the force of the appeals which the other debtors have made for postponement. Vague assurances that world economic conditions would be bettered by the transfer of Europe's debts to American shoulders will not have much weight in view of the Italian government's sturdy action in carrying its own load. Great Britain and France are known to be capable of paying the relatively small installments due next month, and it is equally clear that their release from these payments would not have sufficient importance to change the world's economic currents.

Information not now in possession of the public or of Congress may have some effect in changing the attitude of Congress, but the apparently sterile result of the Hoover-Roosevelt conference gives reason to presume that no such information exists. The British, French, Belgian, Czechoslovak and Polish notes asking for debt relief conveyed no hint of critical conditions which could not be confided to the world public. The plea for debt postponement and eventual cancellation is based upon the suggestion that universal debt cancellation would restore good feeling and confidence. This fails to take into account the fact that cancellation can not extend to Americans. They can not cancel any debts owed by the United States. The Liberty bonds must be paid in full, with interest, and if Europe does not pay, Americans must assume the burden.

It could not have been possible in a two-hour conference for the two executives to explore the various methods by which European debtors might provide equivalents for debt payments, in the form of tariff concessions, transfers of territory, or otherwise. Gov. Roosevelt's campaign suggestion that liberalization of the American tariff might open the way for Europe to pay by selling goods to this country had already met with opposition from President Hoover. Consequently there could have been no agreement yesterday on this point. Probably it was not even discussed.

If Gov. Roosevelt was persuaded to advise Democratic members of Congress to look favorably upon a plan to re-create the World War Debt Commission he does well to keep the fact a state secret, for the reason that any step in this direction would be inconsistent with his desire to draw a clear demarcation of responsibility between the Hoover administration and his own. In his conferences with Democratic leaders in Congress he is more likely to seek information than to give advice as to any action to be taken before March 4. Today's conference at the White House, to be attended by Democratic as well as Republican leaders in Congress, is expected to disclose President Hoover's attitude as to the re-creation of the debt commission and the reaction of Congress to the idea. The general belief that Mr. Hoover is anxious to set up the commission for the purpose of reconsidering the debt situation is based upon his request of a year ago.

PREVENTING MONOPOLY.

Judge Nields' consent decree dissolving the alleged radio monopoly built around the Radio Corporation of America takes its place beside the packers' consent decree and the breaking up of the Standard Oil Company as a landmark in the enforcement of the antitrust laws. The decree is in the nature of an agreement rather than a judicial decision. Trial of the charges against the General Electric Company, the Radio Corporation, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and others was dispensed with because the defendants agreed to carry out the orders of the court as specified in the decree. In this way the law is enforced, the interests of the public are protected and further costly litigation is avoided.

The defendant companies have agreed to divest themselves of their holdings in Radio Corporation; to give up their claims to exclusive rights over numerous patents; to break up their interlocking boards of directors, and to refrain from entering into any combination or agreement for joint endeavors. The court retains jurisdiction over the case, and it may be opened at any time if the parties to the agreement fail to carry out their stipulations.

In this period when widespread demands for modification of the antitrust laws are heard, it is encouraging to find that those statutes are effective in preventing monopoly. The American people frown upon exclusive control by one combination over any field of commercial enterprise. Wherever it is practicable they demand freedom of competition among all who care to participate in an industry. In a country of such vast financial and industrial interests, protection of the public against monopolies is a grave responsibility of the Government.

Radio is a comparatively new industry. It is especially important that it be allowed to develop without monopolistic restraints. It is not uncommon for combinations to buy up all new patents in an industry and thus throttle any development that would interfere with their interests. The Department of Justice must be ever on guard against restraint of trade in whatever form it may appear.

Some interests are advocating the creation of an interpretative body to inform combinations how far they might stretch the antitrust laws without breaking them. This decree indicates the impracticability of such a move. Only the courts can authoritatively interpret the law and apply it to a given case. Where violations of the law are alleged and there is no criminal intent, the rights of the parties can be defined by consent decrees.

SENATE STILL REPUBLICAN.

Latest indications are that the Republicans will remain in control of the Senate during the short session of Congress. While the question may remain uncertain until Congress has assembled, the prospects of a Democratic reorganization are not as bright as they seemed to be immediately after the election. Karl C. Schuyler, Republican, has won the right to represent Colorado in the Senate during the "lame duck" session. His Democratic opponent, Walter Walker, who had been appointed to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Waterman, will have no opportunity to occupy the seat. Mr. Schuyler will be a senator for less than four months, but his victory will be a major factor in deciding control of the Senate when it meets two weeks hence.

The death of Senator Jones will not have any effect upon control of the Senate, because Washington has a Republican governor who has named Maj. E. S. Grammer, a member of his own party, to fill the vacancy. This will give the Republicans 48 members, as against 47 Democrats and one Farmer-Laborite. Reorganization could be effected only through a Democratic-insurgent coalition, and there are many reasons to believe that the Democrats will shun an agreement of that kind. In the new Congress they will have a clear majority of their own and will not have to depend upon the insurgents for support. The tendency will be toward a widening of the breach between the Democrats and insurgents rather than cooperation. The so-called progressives may expect to become the real "forgotten men" of Congress.

Furthermore, most of the insurgent Republicans hold committee chairmanships which they are loathe to lose. It is not to be supposed that they will vote themselves out of such positions to favor a party that has no further inclination to cooperate with them. The usual tactics of the insurgents is to hang on to their chairmanships under the pretense of being Republicans and then to fight every measure that is sponsored by their party. There is no reason to believe that their attitude has changed.

The best interests of the country would be served by maintenance of the present organization in the Senate until the new administration is ushered in on March 4. A realignment of committees in the short session might seriously interrupt the extensive program of legislation that is awaiting action. Under any circumstances the Democratic party can not put its policies into effect during the short session. It would make a serious mistake to take over the Senate with that end in view, with the Republicans holding an actual majority of the membership and with a Republican in the White House.

DR. LOWELL RETIRES.

Nearing his seventy-sixth birthday, Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard University, has resigned after serving twenty-three years as head of that institution. He has rendered distinguished service to the cause of education. In retiring during his seventy-fifth year he follows the action of his predecessor, Dr. Charles William Eliot, who served as president forty years.

Dr. Lowell is Harvard's twenty-fourth president, the line extending back to 1640 when the first executive head took office, five years after the founding of Harvard College. The expansion of the university under Dr. Lowell has been remarkable in many ways. The attendance has increased from less than 4,000 to more than 8,000, with corresponding amplification of grounds and buildings making the university equipment one of the most complete in the world. Dr. Lowell's administration also has seen the endowment fund grow from $23,000,000 to $124,000,000.

These more material benefits must be largely credited to Dr. Lowell's leadership, but his pride, naturally, has been in the scholastic progress that has been made. He inaugurated the tutorial study system and introduced the concentration and distribution system of college courses, general examinations and reading periods, and the important innovation of dividing the college into seven integral units under the house plan.

Dr. Lowell has set no exact date for finally severing his connection at Cambridge, and will remain in office until his successor is chosen, which will probably take place before the end of the school year.

FUTURE OF MAN

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

"Possibly modern man was not evolved until 50,000 years ago," declared Dr. Barnes, Bishop of Birmingham, in his inaugural address to the Birmingham and Midland Institute.

"At all events, it is hardly probable that he has been so long in Europe. But the pace of his progress has been, measured in terms of the progress made by earlier human forms, rapid in the extreme. Once the human brain, as we know it, had been evolved, modern civilization became possible."

Some of the most impressive and bizarre developments of the past were sterile, said Dr. Barnes, referring to prehistoric animals. Save for a few fossils, the world was as though they had never been.

Was man similarly destined to pass from the earth and would some other type become its lord? Was his earthly race nearly run or only just begun?

If we might judge by the length of the characteristic epochs of the past, several tens of millions of years should pass before man disappeared.

He might even, by conquering the minute organisms which caused disease, prolong almost infinitely his time upon earth.

He alluded to the fragility of our civilization and said that other civilizations in the past had perished and had been followed by the disorder of barbarism.

"Within our western civilization, which has become a pattern to the whole world, there are," he continued, "so many discontents, animosities, and stupid prejudices, that it may easily decay after a series of crises of which the most destructive finds its type in the Great War.

"Decay, if it comes, will not be catastrophic. We shall have a sort of recovery following each grave crisis. But on each occasion recovery will be on a lower level.

"At successive stages medicine will be a little less rational, religion a little more barbarized, amusements more vulgar and inane, the intellectually weaker strains in the community somewhat more numerous. So the decline to the Dark Ages will take place."

RETURN.

The going back is difficult. The little house of old
Has lost the charm which once it had when we were young and bold.
For strangers live across the street and strangers dwell next door.
And though the road is much the same, our friends are there no more.

We loved it in our golden days, when all its paint was new,
But now we find that going back is difficult to do.
For wind and weather, time and grief have brought about a change.
And all the faces everywhere upon the street are strange.

Time was when happy mothers wheeled their babies up and down,
But now you'll find the brides and grooms live not so close to town;
And all the countless joys we knew, which proudly we recall,
Like us have moved away from there and can not be found at all.

The going back is difficult. However man may yearn
To find the scenes of yesteday, he never can return;
For wind and weather, time and grief will take their toll in change,
And all the old familiar haunts are tramped by people strange.

He May Resemble a Hard-Boiled Egg Because the Egg Is Yellow Inside

By ROBERT QUILLEN

YOU can trace the history of the race in the development of the individual.

When the world was ruled by claw and fang the great man was the one who wielded the biggest club. He fought the saber-toothed tiger, cracked skulls by the way of argument and caused the weak to tremble as he boasted of his exploits and victories. He was a bad hombre.

The hero of boyhood is like the hero of the caveman. The young individual, like the young race, values most the qualities that are most essential in a fight.

In the sedate nineties every normal boy east of the Rockies dreamed of running away to be a cowboy and a two-gun man in the West. He would shoot from the hip and his name would terrify the natives.

Modern boys have heroes who fly the ocean or knock home runs or carry the ball to the goal line, but the change is more apparent than real. They still revere physical prowess and their ideal is a winner. They still adore a hard guy and abominate a sissy.

If their minds become mature as their bodies do they learn that numerous other things are more important than the ability to knock a man down. They learn that life in this crowded world requires tolerance and patience and some regard for the other fellow's rights. They become, in short, courteous and civilized.

But if their minds remain adolescent their ideals at 30 or 40 are still unchanged and they still aspire to be "tough guys."

The A. E. F. contained a number of that kind in leather puttees. A few are found in every police force. And you find them occasionally in appointive offices, serving the public or bossing the works.

Wherever they are, they are tough. If you fail to notice it they will tell you about it. Their yes-men find frequent occasion to remark in wide-eyed admiration how dreadfully hard-boiled they are. They talk straight from the shoulder—which means they are ill-mannered and boorish.

They aren't hard guys in the presence of their superiors. They get tough only when they have the upper hand.

Men who abuse their authority at the expense of the helpless aren't bad hombres. They are yellow. Their hardness is a remnant of the boyhood yearning to be a two-gun cowboy. It is kid stuff.

It is the young corporal, never the general, who cusses to show the prisoners how dangerous he is.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Garner's Successor.

Houston Post.

It would be a humiliation to the Democracy of Texas, indeed, if a Republican should succeed John N. Garner as representative in Congress from the Fifteenth district. Texas is the banner Democratic State again. Texas has been honored by the Nation in the election of her favorite son to the Vice Presidency of the United States. The representation of Texas in both House and Senate at Washington is solidly Democratic. In view of all this, wouldn't it be too bad, if a Republican should slip into Congress from Texas in the near future?

But that is exactly what may happen if the Democrats of the Fifteenth district do not take steps to thin out aspirants in their party for Mr. Garner's seat in the House.

Fast Work.

Boston Transcript.

Former President Coolidge says that the national transportation committee, of which he is chairman, with former Gov. Smith as one of his associates, will not make a report for at least two months. But, at that, the committee will set a record for expedition in such investigations. It was appointed only a few weeks ago on the initiative of savings banks, insurance companies and other large holders of railroad securities. Mr. Coolidge denies a report from Washington that the committee has already decided to recommend the remodeling of the capital structures of the railway companies.

Democrats' Great Chance.

Minneapolis Journal.

With the great overturn in Congress, and a new broom poised over the Federal departments for the first time in twelve years, the opportunity is at hand for a Democratic drive on unnecessary Government costs, including the high cost of nepotism, which might serve materially to buttress in power the party that puts its own President into the White House and its own majority into the House of Representatives next March.

Low Motor Tag Tragedy.

Detroit News.

As the autopsy proceeds, the deeper wounds inflicted in the recent political upheaval are only just coming to light. There has been pathos, of course, in the thought that long-established jobholders, in some cases with whole tribes of relatives on the public rolls, are to be pushed forth into a cruel and dislocated world. But only now has it occurred to us that hundreds must suffer the ultimate in degradation, the giving up of their low number license plate, at the end of the year.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"Domestic Violence" Clause Should Be Invoked Against the Hunger Marchers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The administration and the officials of the District of Columbia will not be able to plead that they were unable to foresee what is bound to occur when they permit the proposed "hunger march" to enter Washington.

They know that the previous marches were organized by Communists as merely preliminary to more serious offensives. They know that what happened then has been characterized by significant similarity in England and other countries. They know that these marches on Washington and London are not spontaneous movements but have been deliberately organized under the direction of Moscow. They know that the march about to take place is for the avowed purpose of intimidating Congress. They know that the Communist leaders of the march desire nothing more earnestly than that there shall be serious disorder, destruction of property and bloodshed. All of these things are well known and admitted and yet our benign authorities, to whom we residents of Washington must look for protection, intend, deliberately, to permit this invasion because of one clause in the Constitution concerning the right of the people to petition the Government. They seem to forget the fact that this right is predicated upon peaceable assembly and peaceable petition. Our authorities know full well that the march is planned to be far from a peaceable one and that it is sure to result in serious trouble.

There is another clause in the Constitution which provides for the protection of the people against domestic violence, but that seems overlooked in the hysterical effort to offer every opportunity to those who are threatening the peace of the city and perhaps—and quite probably—the very lives of many of our citizens. By no stretch of imagination can the clause permitting assembly and petition be interpreted as having been intended to authorize or even encourage such a situation as the recent bonus invasion which led to the use of troops.

Let the marchers come to the District line if they desire. Let a few of their representatives be permitted to submit their petition to a committee of the Congress. The marchers will then have had their right respected of peaceable assembly and petition in every reasonable respect. But do not, in the name of sanity, allow an unruly and desperate mob to enter the town for the admitted purpose of blackjacking the Government through mass disorder. Such a program is the very essence of pusillanimous folly.

JAMES BENNY.

Republican Says His Party Must Eradicate Disloyalty If It Is to Come Back.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Anent the defeat of the Republican party in the election just past, a major factor in this defeat was the disloyalty of several pseudo-Republican senators. These men have never been and never will be Republicans.

A review of the antics of these men will show that they place selfish interest ahead of party interest.

Since when has loyalty ceased to be a virtue? A disloyal person has no value. The opposition knows this. They accepted their assistance, but they don't want anything else from them.

The Republican party must eradicate disloyalty within its ranks to succeed. These men must get out or be thrown out.

Every American has a right to his views in this country, but each one should get a party to fit his particular needs. If no party exists that will fit his needs, let him start one of his own, and not sail under false colors.

Nation Can Not Have Two Liquor Systems, One Legalizing Traffic and the Other Outlawing It.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The liquor traffic is now, first and foremost, a question of interstate commerce and is therefore national in scope. There is no longer room in our national household for two antagonistic systems, one legalizing the liquor traffic and the other outlawing it. So closely knit together are we that either dry towns, cities, counties and States must submit again, far beyond the worst experience of former times, to the imposition of the liquor traffic upon them against their will, or towns, cities, counties and States where public opinion lags behind must submit to the national outlawry of the liquor traffic. One or the other of the systems must go. If choose we must, which way does the voice of reason, conscience and patriotism tell us that the American people in the end are sure to go?

LYNDON B. PHIFER.

Maintains That Dry and Wet Question Had Thorough Test in Late Election.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The statement just released by the so-called dry forces alleges that in the recent elections the "politicians had maneuvered the situation so there was no effective way in which the dry vote could be registered." The statement goes on to allege that for the foregoing reasons the election does not constitute a wet mandate in any sense of the word.

How about the State primaries which preceded the national election, such, for instance, as those in North Carolina and Florida? The statement evidently overlooked these small matters through oversight. In these two States and in a number of others, it can not be said that there was "only one way to vote," for in all of them a wet and a dry were contesting for the nomination. Both sides of the issue were fully discussed before the voters. Look at the results.

V. F. W. LEADER RAPS BONUS BARTER PLAN

Hines' Proposal for Payment With Benefit Reduction Is Criticized.

Kansas City, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Opposition to any plan for immediate cash payment of the soldiers' bonus which would sacrifice disability payments was voiced here today by R. B. Handy, jr., national adjutant of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who said he spoke for the organization.

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, announced yesterday at Washington that he was considering possible plans for the payment of the bonus, one of which would repeal nonservice disability allowances.

Handy, at national headquarters of the V. F. W. here, characterized such a plan as "another ruse designed to block present demands for cash payment and further the attack being made on compensation and hospitalization benefits for disabled veterans."

"Any attempt to pay off the so-called bonus in part or the whole by the sacrifice of the welfare of disabled veterans who are receiving either compensation or hospitalization will always be strenuously opposed by the Veterans of Foreign Wars in general," he said.

(Associated Press.)

A new idea on the bonus has been presented to Representative Bacharach (Republican), New Jersey, who sponsored the 50 per cent loan bill of two years ago.

It is a move to return adjusted service certificates to the Government to help it.

Bacharach said he yesterday received a letter from Warren S. Hood, of the Vineland, N. J., American Legion Post, saying:

"I have been approached by several men in the local post of the American Legion who are desirous of offering, as a matter of help to the Government, to return their adjusted compensation certificates either in full or in part (some have already borrowed 50 per cent). Would it take legislation to enable the Government to accept these gifts or can it be done without action on the part of Congress?"

Bacharach said: "This is certainly in contrast to the many appeals that have been made for cash payment of the bonus, particularly during these times."

Roosevelt's Maryland Plurality Is 130,130

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—There should be no difficulty in remembering Maryland's vote for President this year, even if you haven't taken a memory-training course or have no flair for figures.

Official returns show Gov Roosevelt received 314,314 votes and that President Hoover had 184,184, giving the Democratic nominee a plurality over the President of 130,130.

The other candidates' votes are not so easy. Norman Thomas, the Socialist candidate, was given 16,489 votes; Verne Reynolds, Labor, 1,036, and William Z. Foster, Communist, 1,031.

DOUBTERS SCORED BY WIFE OF ROBINS

Defends Family Statement That Dry Leader Suffered From Amnesia.

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Col. Raymond Robins remained under a physician's care today while his wife took up his defense against persons who, she said, have discredited the family's statement that the noted prohibition leader suffered from amnesia while living under the name of "Reynolds Rogers."

"Of course, I know there are always people who are inclined to be suspicious in cases like this," Mrs. Robins said, "but what can we do about it? They can go on believing such things if it gives them any pleasure.

"Those of us who know about such cases, know that his behavior was not unusual for a victim of amnesia. His recovery is the result of a perfectly natural process under the circumstances."

Mrs. Robins spent the entire day with her husband. She said that he appeared in a far better mental state than Monday afternoon when he "went through the strain of regaining his memory and identity."

In a statement she said:

"We spoke of many things, but I did not wish to make him think about the last two months. However, Col. Robins informed me that he had no recollection of the first few days following his disappearance from New York. On the other hand, he seemed to remember Whittier and spoke with great appreciation of the kindness of the McHan family, at whose boarding house he had lived."

Dr. M. A. Griffin, who has treated Col. Robins since he was brought to Appalachian Hall Sanitarium here, said in a bulletin today that his patient was showing "continued improvement." No one, however, will be allowed to see him except Mrs. Robins, the physician said.

John C. Dreier, of New York, Robins' nephew, said after a brief visit to his uncle that Robins' mind is "apparently clear" and that there are "no signs" that he is lapsing back into a clouded mental condition. He said Robins would remain here "indefinitely."

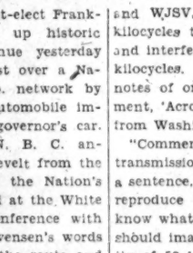
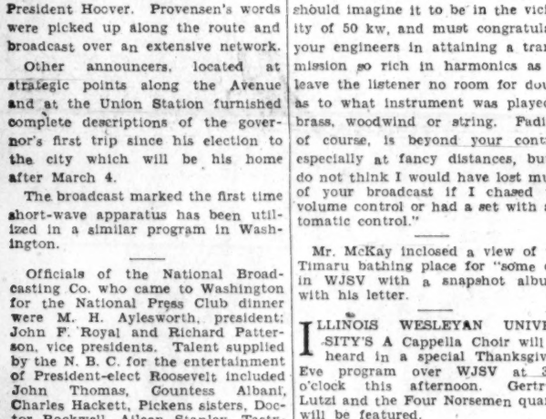
YESTERDAY'S ANSWER





Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE trip of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt up historic Pennsylvania avenue yesterday afternoon was broadcast over a National Broadcasting Co. network by short wave from an automobile immediately behind the governor's car.

Herluf Provensen, N. B. C. announcer, followed Roosevelt from the time of his arrival in the Nation's Capital until he arrived at the White House for his debt conference with President Hoover. Provensen's words were picked up along the route and broadcast over an extensive network.

Other announcers, located at strategic points along the Avenue and at the Union Station furnished complete descriptions of the governor's first trip since his election to the city which will be his home after March 4.

The broadcast marked the first time short-wave apparatus has been utilized in a similar program in Washington.

Officials of the National Broadcasting Co. who came to Washington for the National Press Club dinner were M. H. Aylesworth, president; John F. Royal and Richard Patterson, vice presidents. Talent supplied by the N. B. C. for the entertainment of President-elect Roosevelt included John Thomas, Countess Albani, Charles Hackett, Pickens sisters, Doctor Rockwell, Aileen Stanley, Tasty-east Jesters and Hugo Mariani's orchestra. The program was not broadcast.

THE visits of the postman to the studios of WJSV in the Shoreham Building are being awaited eagerly these days. Nearly every delivery brings the first of the foreign mail since the openng of WJSV. Harry C. Butcher, Columbia manager here, received fourteen letters from New Zealand yesterday. Extracts from two of them, which he forwarded to this column, are given:

"I turned in to your station on 1,469 kilocycles on Friday, October 28, about 5 p. m.," writes James R. Bain, member of the NZ DX Club at Taranaki, New Zealand. "This being our summer time, I heard quite a number of items. These were of a various nature, but were comprised mostly of orchestral dance items, some having vocal choruses and being of a light, popular nature. You were heard at intervals giving the call WJSV. You signed off shortly after this and gave your frequency as 1,460 kilocycles, and said the station was owned and operated by the Old Dominion Broadcasting Co., of Washington.

"I have often picked up this station on my four-tube receiver, so thought I would drop you a line giving you an idea of how your signals are being received. You are generally heard at good volume with no distortion although interference is sometimes bad from one of our local stations."

ANOTHER of the letters dated October 18, is from H. W. McKay, 7 Ranfurly street, Timaru, New Zealand, who writes:

"Last evening at 6:22 o'clock (New Zealand standard time, which would be about 1:22 a. m. E. S. T.), I picked up your transmission on 1,460 kilocycles. The piece being played was, I think, "Sylvia," at the end of which I heard an announcement, but it was too weak to decipher. However, signals improved and I heard the organ playing "Mandalay." Toward the end of this item reception was wonderful, the sonorous bass notes of the conclusion, were as if I was listening to the real organ instead of a phonograph record from a wireless station 8,000 miles away. Naturally, I felt bucked and immediately sent for some neighbors to come in and enjoy the broadcast.

"At 6:36 I set the volume control to give good loud speaker strength to be heard through a passage to a room about 20 feet away (my wife is an invalid in bed) and the following items were all recorded from there without touching the control except once."

Here Mr. McKay sends a list of all the numbers which he heard. He reports that at 6:59 "there was a very strong uplift in signal strength, strangely without any sacrifice of tone, causing me to turn volume control down quite a bit. During this number, I took a test with KFI, which is our strongest American station, and gave KFI a rating of R-4, and WJSV, R-6. With KFI on 640 kilocycles there was much less noise and interference than WJSV on 1,460 kilocycles. Back on 1,460 to get final notes of organ and your announcement, 'Across the Beautiful Potomac from Washington.'

"Comment on the quality of the transmission can be summed up in a sentence, 'I wish our stations could reproduce as faithfully.' I do not know what power you were using but should imagine it to be in the vicinity of 50 kw, and must congratulate your engineers in attaining a transmission so rich in harmonics as to leave the listener no room for doubt as to what instrument was played—brass, woodwind or string. Fading, of course, is beyond your control, especially at fancy distances, but I do not think I would have lost much of your broadcast if I chased the volume control or had a set with automatic control."

Mr. McKay inclosed a view of the Timaru bathing place for "some one in WJSV with a snapshot album" with his letter.

ILLINOIS WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY'S A Cappella Choir will be heard in a special Thanksgiving Eve program over WJSV at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon. Gertrude Lutzi and the Four Norsemen quartet will be featured.

Father Bernard R. Hubbard, S. J., explorer and scientist, known as the "Glacier Priest;" Frazier Hunt, correspondent, and Edward Tomlinson, lecturer and writer, will be heard on the program broadcast by WRC at 10:30 o'clock tonight. Father Hubbard will tell of his adventures in the frozen North.

Harry Von Zell, announcer, will endeavor to whet the Thanksgiving appetites of radio listeners when he invades the kitchen of the Waldorf Hotel to interview Oscar, maitre d'hotel, on the subject of preparing a turkey dinner (WJSV, 10:30 a. m.).

Accompanied by Howard Barlow and his Symphony Orchestra, Nino Martina, young Italian tenor, will be heard over WJSV at 11 o'clock tonight. He has chosen "Il Mio Tesoro," from Mozart's opera "Don Giovanni," and "Gia Il Sole del Gange," by Scarlatti. In addition he will offer one of his first English songs, "By the Bend of the River."

VETERANS at the Naval Hospital will be entertained in their recreational hall this afternoon at 3 o'clock when Max Lowe's Riviera Orchestra from the Shoreham Hotel will go over there to give a program. Barnee will direct the orchestra. Appropriately, "Anchors Aweigh" will open the program and to make sure that the Marines are pleased, Barnee has a special arrangement of "The Halls of Montezuma." Costumes will be used during the rendition of "Mysterious Mose," written by one of the boys in the orchestra, and "School Days."

Patients who are confined to their beds will hear the program through ear phones.

An electrical transcription of President-elect Roosevelt's address to members of the National Press Club last night was recorded for the archives of the club by the National Sound Studios. This record may be broadcast or played on a phonograph whenever the occasion arises. The Press Club has recordings of the voices of all the Presidents since Warren Harding.

The 300th natal anniversary of Benedict Spinoza, Duth-Jewish philosopher, will be observed today (WJZ network, 2:30 p. m.).

A. F. L. IS REQUESTED TO FORM NEW PARTY

Project Is Reported Likely to Fail as Similar Proposals in Past.

Cincinnati, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—A proposal that the American Federation of Labor form a new political organization—a "labor party"—was made before its annual convention today by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

Indication, however, were the project would fail, as similar proposals have failed in other years, for the federation's executive council, in a surprise move, offered a supplemental report affirming the organization's nonpartisan stand on governmental problems.

The metal workers' "labor party" resolution expressed dissatisfaction with the programs of the Republican and Democratic parties. It asked the federation to "abandon the traditional nonpartisan political policy and sponsor a genuine labor party."

"The resolution was introduced as United States Senator James J. Davis, former Secretary of Labor, was telling the delegates "politics should now take a long vacation and the incoming government should have our most hearty support on all measures which will promote the best interests of the people of the country."

It promptly was shunted to a committee.

Davis urged his labor audience to "quit this nonsense" of having faith in America without "works to justify our faith;" asserted the Government should have "emulated the ordinary prudence of the great corporations," and added, "I believe with all my heart that the creation of a sinking fund to be used by the Government in times of depression, providing for the erection of much-needed public works, is a modest proposal, but would do much to restore business confidence and aid labor."

He declared, too, for immediate modification of the Volstead act and for realignment of the tax structure of the country.

Business of the convention as a whole moved sluggishly. Committees wrestled with almost 50 major recommendations for legislation to aid the workingman, among them suggestions for Government ownership of banks; compulsory shorter work days and work weeks; various forms of unemployment insurance; and one, from the Pennsylvania State Federation, urging that "the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be so organized as to advance credits to employers of labor who are prepared to give jobs without earning profits."

St. Lawrence Waterway Project Draws Protest

St. Louis, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—A demand for modification of article 8 of the St. Lawrence seaway treaty, which would internationalize Lake Michigan, was made by the Mississippi Valley Association at the close of its annual convention here today.

The remainder of the treaty which is now pending before the Senate, was indorsed by the association, composed of shippers, business leaders and waterway advocates of the Mississippi Valley. A resolution asked modification of the treaty to provide for "a continuation of a sufficient amount of existing diversion of water from Lake Michigan to insure a commercially navigable waterway from the lakes to the gulf."

Norman Thomas Starts Drive Against Sales Tax

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Socialism, through Norman Thomas, protested tonight the possible enactment of a sales tax.

"Our Socialist campaign goes on immediately," Thomas declared, "to block the sales tax, both because it is unjust in its burden upon the workers and because it will still further injure any true resumption of prosperity."

Man Dislocates His Jaw While Taking Big Yawn

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 22.—It isn't even safe for a man to take a big healthy yawn when he arises early in the morning, according to Henry Jenkins, of Millwood, near here, who suffered a dislocation of the jaw bone as he stretched his arms high in the air and yawned to his heart's content.

While sitting on the side of the bed, Jenkins is said to have yawned widely. Unable to get his mouth shut after the yawn or even to speak, members of his household rushed him to Dr. C. H. Iden, at Berryville, who reduced the dislocation, permitting his jaws to close again.

Today, Jenkins appeared none the worse for his experience.

Mexican Tombs Yield Old Indian Paintings

Mexico City, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The tombs of Monte Alban in the State of Oaxaca, scene of the richest archeological discoveries of this continent, today yielded evidence that the ancient Zapotec tribe of southern Mexico was expert in the civilized art of relief painting.

Dr. Alfonso Caso, government archeologist, announced that paintings had been found on the floor and door jam of a dust-filled tomb. The paintings were done in brilliant greens, reds and yellows, and the colors were well preserved, he said. It is not yet possible to determine what the ancient artists portrayed or what significance their work may have.

'Poison' Found in Water Laid to Practical Joker

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—State chemists today reported that a fine, white powder found in the water pitchers of the judiciary and the district attorney shortly before court opened yesterday, was nonpoisonous, and either limestone dust or marble dust.

None of the water had been drunk as the pitchers and their contents were hurried away for analysis immediately the foreign substance was discovered. Authorities were inclined to believe some one had tried to play a practical joke.

Two Fishermen Escape Death on Burning Tug

Erie, Pa., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Two Erie fishermen escaped death this afternoon when they were forced to abandon their burning tug and row to shore at North Girard, Pa., 15 miles west of here. The craft, the Helene, was bound for Port Clinton, Ohio, to fish out of that port.

The fire started when a small motor back fired. Capt. F. G. Shaw and Fireman Clyde Fahlman, the survivors, remained on the tug until all hope of saving the ship was abandoned.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

This navy blue evening gown is most unusual and elegant. The very high front and black decollete gives it an extremely graceful appearance, and it is fashioned on empire lines in the new "velours raye." (Courtesy of Heim, Paris.)

THOSE intermediate eyes!

There are really only two decided eye colors, and these are blue and brown. Some darker brown eyes, of course, are called black. And rarely, oh how rarely, one sees a deep blue that seems to be violet. But between brown and blue, ah me, oh my! "Hazel, grayish, brownish, bluish, gold flecked, greenish," oh, what they don't call them!

If you have those intermediate eyes (the expression is original), the colors you wear must make a determined effort to make your eyes seem a certain color. This type would avoid all the pastel colors, for they would have no coloring effect on the eyes. All the deep, rich, dull tones would lend color and depth. If the hair is quite, quite dark, then those with intermediate eyes can wear rich, vivid colors, for the hair is the necessary contrasting color note. Otherwise the best colors for this type are the medium ones and those that lend color.

The coloring of the skin would of course have some bearing upon the colors one wore, regardless of the eyes. Thus, if you had very white skin, and greenish eyes, green would be quite becoming, because it would make the eyes seem an interesting green. But should your skin be olive or yellowish, green would be very unbecoming, for while it made your eyes seem green, it also would make your skin seem sallow. The golden blonde, or even the drab blonde with bluish eyes can make them seem a lovely, deep blue by wearing blue near her face, or just vivid bits of blue in her accessories. Should she wear yellow, for instance, her eyes would remain colorless and plain, whether or not the yellow was becoming to the rest of her coloring.

Since eyes are the windows of the soul and personality, why not keep them paramount when selecting colors to wear? The plainest woman can be attractive if she has beautiful eyes, but who can be beautiful or even interesting with colorless and expressionless ones? Rich, dull, medium tones for those with intermediate eyes then, and remember to be unusually careful in your color selections.

We have designed some Christmas cards this year! I'll bet you have never thought much of handmade cards before—but if you see these, you will be amused and delighted, I'll promise you. Not only because they are so very original, but because they are elegant as well, something that you would gladly pay much more for than you will have to if you make them with your own clever fingers. Just a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post will bring to you the leaflet of how to make delightful and novel Christmas cards at home. And I'll promise you that one of the ideas in this leaflet, at least, will get a laugh, if nothing else!

"Velours raye," sometimes called "velours paysan," is all the vogue this winter in Paris. A most elegant and delightful evening gown employs this material for its fashioning, and in navy blue, of all unusual evening gown colors! Even the cut is unusual, decidedly high waisted, and with a high-throated decollete. The designer is Heim, of Paris—and don't you somehow spot this the minute you see it?

A LITTLE FRENCH.

Brocart (bro-kay) is "brocade." Domas (dah-mah) is "damask." Estame (eh-stahm) is worsted. Calicot is calico, pronounced as in English.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

RECENTLY I met a pair of hands I hadn't seen in three years.

Hands her husband still loves to hold, after ten years of happy married life, and that's more truth than poetry. The lips belonging to the hands told a very sad story of financial reverses. Four years ago there was a maid, a cook and a governess for the children. Today, no help and a thousand more duties.

"But," I marveled, "how do you keep looking so lovely, and your hands still the beautiful, graceful snow-white twin pictures?"

The answer was the proverb—the one about necessity being the mother of invention.

First, there's a first aid kit in the kitchen with an ointment for burns, an antiseptic for cuts and brusies, bandage, adhesive tape and what-not. Even the handiest and "carefulest" housewife gets a bang or burn occasionally; but with these first aid there's less chance of a lingering blemish. Right?

Then, right on the kitchen shelf next to the handy utensils for cleaning and cooking there are beauty articles; a good skinfood, a hand lotion, and always a half of the lowly but beneficial lemon.

Warm water is used instead of hot or very cold water as much as possible, mild soap and cleansing agents ditto. When strong soaps or powders are necessary and very hot water, rubber gloves are worn. Cotton gloves for dusting and gardening. Handles on the small dish mops, handles on cleaning scrapers, &c., all help.

And, whenever the hands are immersed in water whether they are being washed or washing something else, they are rinsed thoroughly, dried and treated to a semi-creamy hand lotion that feels velvety and not sticky and makes the hands feel likewise. The lemon is for vegetable stains on hands, or discolorations under the nails. The skinfood is for a thorough bedtime treatment. It is massaged generously over the back of the hands, particularly over the knuckles, around the nails, and on the palms at the base of the fingers where hard calluses sometimes form. A pair of loose cotton gloves slipped over this creaming, cream and gloves left on overnight, and in the morning, presto, new smoothness.

Tomato juice is another handy stain remover.

Another trick: Just before any work that may leave dirt or grime under the nail whites, moisten a little soap and apply the soap paste under the nails. Then the grime or soot instead of sticking under the nail, will stick to the soap and when that is removed the nail will once more be clean and white.

If you have to do your own manicuring, you will profit by the hints contained in my hand bulletins; the one on fingertip grooming, and the other on beautiful hands to match the face. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for both.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

WHAT DOES THE TONGUE SAY?

WE old-fashioned doctors may know mighty little about these new fangled diseases, but we were expert at judging how our patients were progressing by watching their tongues. Examining the patient's tongue was one thing we never failed to do. If we went to see a man with typhoid fever and we found his tongue dry and red, we knew he was in trouble, or headed that way, even though some symptoms pointed the other way.

If the tongue was swollen, showed the pits of the teeth on the side, and had a coat on top, the patient was given a purge, and probably got no food for a while. If the coat, instead of being white, was brown and dry, the indications were more serious. A pointed red tongue caused us to look for trouble in the abdomen.

These up-to-the-minute doctors have so many fine laboratory tests that they are disposed to forget the help they might get from having the patient stick out his tongue for examination. Drs. W. H. Oatway and W. S. Middleton want to get the tongue back into the physician's amphitheater.

They propose to make a picture of the tongue of certain patients and to file it as a part of the record. A piece of glazed paper is smoked and thus covered with carbon. The tongue is dried and the paper is pressed down on the tongue, removed, shellacked, dried, and put in the files. A duplicate piece of freshly shellacked glazed paper, unsmoked, is immediately applied to the tongue. The carbon left on the tongue in the first test is picked up by the shellac, making a picture that is even better, in most cases, than the first one. One of these is called the negative, the other the positive.

MANY POSSIBLE CAUSES.

R. S. writes:

1. What significance has heartburn besides indicating that the foods which cause the condition should be avoided?

2. Does it necessarily mean that the heart is not strong?

3. Can you suggest some speedy relief of the condition other than the baking soda and water remedy, which does not appear to be favorably thought of in some quarters?

REPLY.

1. It may be a symptom of ulcer of the stomach or duodenum, and possibly of cancer. Probably the most frequent cause is infected gall bladder or gall stones, although nervousness and constipation was right up in the same class. Drinking whisky, excessive smoking, eating highly seasoned foods and other dietary indiscretions are among the causes. Adhesions and chronic appendicitis are also among the causes.

2. The heart is another story. However, people with heart disease and broken compensation sometimes have heartburn.

3. A popular antiacid is milk of magnesia. I am sure there are 100 preparations for you to choose between.

TRY FOOT POWDER.

M. G. writes: My feet ache and burn. I am all right in the morning, but by noon I am in misery.

REPLY.

Get a good foot powder. Wash your feet and then dust them with this powder. Dust well the inside of your shoes.

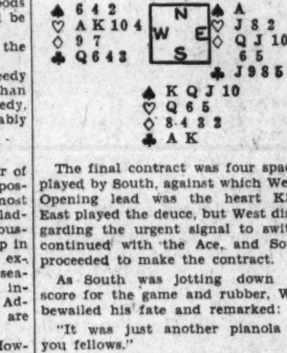
AN OBVIOUS "PIANOLA."

THE term "pianola" has been used by Bridge players in an obvious sense—that is, to designate a hand which plays itself.

Recently I watched a Rubber game, in which North and South were having all the "luck," when along came the following hand:

South—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The final contract was four spades, played by South, against which West's Opening lead was the heart King. East played the deuce, but West disregarding the urgent signal to switch, continued with the Ace, and South proceeded to make the contract.

As South was jotting down the score for the game and rubber, West bewailed his fate and remarked:

"It was just another pianola for you fellows."

"No," South replied, "not a pianola; just a gift from you. Had you not led the second round of hearts, there was no possible way in which I could have avoided losing 1 spade and 3 heart tricks. Don't blame your luck; just blame yourself for poor defensive play."

South was exactly right. The hand was not a pianola. It was not even a hand that South could play himself. He needed the assistance of West as a "pumper."

NO MORE BACKACHES

LIKE so many other women—perhaps like yourself—Mrs. Burroughs used to suffer with severe backaches every month. Then she tried Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Shortly afterwards she wrote to us, "I believe it to be the best medicine I ever used. I sleep well, my nerves are better, my appetite is improved and I am getting stronger all the time."

What Today Means to You

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF November 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:15 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., from 11:30 a. m. to 12:45 p. m., and from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:15 a. m. to 10:30 a. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m.

Influences operative on this November 23 should prove conducive to study. Your powers of concentration should be at their highest. You will find that problems coming to your attention will be easily solved. Take care, however, not to be hasty in your reasoning; don't jump at conclusions. Affairs of the heart will not prosper.

The child born on November 23 will have an exuberant disposition. He will be fond of animals and will take good care of them. At school he will do moderately well, but his interest will be more in the outdoors. He should show himself particularly adept in some sport. The child will show flashes of temper, but he will not hold a grudge.

If November 23 is your birthday, you will probably be able to make out of yourself a better than average success. You are one of the few people who realize early in life that the ability to think is one of man's greatest possessions, if not the greatest. Your mentality is not greatly above that of the average man, but in your case you strive to use your mind—to think with it. You are a very frank person, sometimes to the point of being considered blunt. Your straightforward manner and naturally jovial nature enable you to make friends easily.

Born on November 23, you may be led into any one of a number of fields of endeavor. You would be outstanding in the field of education, in the medical field, or in almost any field where your inherent creative ability could be employed. You would seem to have an inventive turn of mind which, if properly developed, might prove advantageous to you.

You are a person who enjoys freedom, and most particularly is this true in your marriage relationship. To feel that you were tied down in any way by your mate would irk you no end. Yours is not a suspicious nature and you could not tolerate any one who is. If you are a woman, you are inclined to be bossy and at times to exhibit nagging tendencies. Guard against these if you would keep your home a happy one. Without trying, you are attractive to the opposite sex.

Successful people born on November 23:

Franklin Pierce, fourteenth President of the United States.

William Dennison, statesman.

Josiah D. Whitney, geologist and educator.

John W. Ellis, jurist and Governor of North Carolina.

Fanny Ward, actress.

G. B. McClellan, former Mayor of New York.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

KITCHEN FOR CONVENIENCE.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

No one kitchen plan suits everybody's needs, but certain pieces of equipment are required in every kitchen—stove, sink, work table or work surfaces, refrigerator and storage places—and these must be arranged in step-saving sequence to form a compact work area. It is, of course, easier to make and carry out a plan for an unbuilt house than to adapt an old house to a new arrangement of the large equipment. Sometimes, however, it pays to change things about, even to the extent of moving plumbing pipes and fixtures or electric wiring.

"Let's think of the way we do our work in the kitchen," says Dr. Louise Stanley, who is chief of the bureau. "First comes food preparation. Vegetables are prepared near the sink, short mixing jobs near the stove, longer jobs at a work table, which should be located near the main storage center, with staple supplies at hand. The height of these working surfaces should suit the worker, and if jobs are to be done sitting down, it is important to have knee-room under the table or cabinet. The stove should be within easy reach of the sink and the work table.

"The serving center is a collecting station between the stove, the refrigerator and the dining-room. If there is a pass cupboard between the kitchen and the dining room, the lower shelf, open to both rooms, becomes the serving center. A wheel tray might be used near the stove if there is no pass pantry.

"The sink or dish-washing center should always have a drainboard to the left, and since the kitchen may be used by a left-handed person, another drainboard on the right is desirable.

"In any case there should be space to the right for stacking dishes, and a dish closet above the left drainboard or within reach of it. A narrow shelf above or near the sink provides for soaps and cleansing materials, and it is convenient to have one a little wider to keep the double boiler on, with cereals and the coffee pot and coffee, for quick breakfast getting. Small utensils, such as paring knives, the can opener, strainers and the dish scraper, can be hung within easy reach of the sink.

"You have probably seen many sinks right in front of a window. This gives good light and air, provided there is no glare. A window in the wall at right angles to the sink often gives just as much light with less objectionable glare. The stove should be at right angles to the sink or just across from it if the kitchen is narrow.

"Storage space should be adapted to the size of the articles to be stored and placed near where the particular articles are to be used. A place for vegetable storage may often be provided underneath the drain cabinet at the left of the sink. This should have outside ventilation if possible, controlled to prevent freezing. The large one-purpose movable kitchen cabinet is now being replaced by built-in units placed where needed.

"Most important of all is compact arrangement. This is in large part determined by the size and proportion of the room, the location of the door and windows and the provisions for water and gas. So if you are building it is important to sketch out the plan for the architect in advance and show him just how you want your kitchen equipment arranged before he finally fixes the structural features. In general, you will find that a rectangular kitchen permits a more satisfactory arrangement than a square one. Be sure that the width is not too great. So far as you can, keep the work space free from doorways, so it does not become a pathway. Good ventilation should be provided and good light at the work surface and stove. Artificial lights should be placed high enough and so arranged as not to throw shadows on the working surfaces."

STOKOWSKI EXCELS IN CAPITAL PROGRAM

Philadelphia Symphony Wins Long Applause in First Concert of Season.

Leopold Stokowski, a program of Brahms and Wagner and the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, proved an irresistible combination of things musical at Constitution Hall last night in the opening concert of the season by the visiting aggregation brought here under the local management of the T. Arthur Smith Concert Bureau.

Washington had been waiting eagerly for the much-heralded, all-classic program of the Philadelphia Orchestra, which has rejoiced Philadelphia and New York this season and last night's feast was by no means disappointing.

In recent years many of the Stokowski programs have been replete with fascinating modern music. But to the genuine music lover there is no substitute for Wagner, Brahms and the great masters of melody who formed what has come to be known as the classical school. That Conductor Stokowski is a profound and satisfying student and interpreter of Wagner is no musical secret. But last night he excelled even his own great reputation in this regard. And his Brahms! How Johannes himself would have appreciated those matchless presentations of the movements of his First Symphony on which he had worked for ten years before it was finally produced.

As usual, Stokowski had his men in perfect control. From the first movement with its chromatic phrase reappearing in all the movements with great variety of treatment to the finale, the crown of the work, the enraptured audience was thrilled again and again by the recurring beauties of the symphony. In the finale the hymn-like theme, suggestive of Beethoven's "Ode to Joy," recalled the verdict that the development of this theme to the final climax is one of the master achievements of symphonic music. Needless to say, the dynamic leader made the most of it and the storm of applause which followed the last notes of the symphony was a sure testimony of what his large audience thought of it.

A melodic charm which had something akin to the fascination of Schubert distinguished the allegretto. Nor should be passed over without mention the second movement and its middle section with its outstanding orchestral tone coloring.

The greatest music of love in the world is Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde," and its vivid reading last night by Stokowski in a continuous arrangement of the Vorspiel, Liebesnacht and Liebestod was a joy and a delight. The harmonies with amazing prodigality told and retold the story of unrivaled love and the poignant beauty of the Liebestod was the fitting climax of an evening filled with the treasures of some of the world's greatest music.

So far as this city is concerned, there can be more all-classical Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra programs without protest from the thousands who will attend its every appearance in Washington this season.

Gold Inlays Discussed By D. C. Dental Society

Two Washington dentists, Dr. Thomas J. Rice and Dr. Charles R. Shelton, were essayists at last night's meeting of the District of Columbia Dental Society, held at George Washington University. They discussed the making of gold inlays.

Dr. Vernon J. Lohr, Dr. James W. Brown, Dr. Henry A. Swanson and Maj. William F. Scheumann discussed the papers from the floor. Dr. Jerome S. Livingston and Dr. Bertram S. Taylor were elected to membership. Announcement was made by Dr. Charles D. Cole of a dance and card party to be given by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the District of Columbia Dental Society at Wardman Park Hotel on December 12 for the benefit of the clinic maintained at Children's Hospital by the auxiliary.

Merchants Will Offer Yuletide Wares Early

In response to an appeal from the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, Washington merchants have decided to place their Christmas wares on sale earlier this year in order to facilitate early shopping, it was announced yesterday by Edward D. Shaw, executive secretary of the association.

Figures collected by the association show that the Christmas season in most cities is spread over a five-week period instead of a one-week rush as in former years, and efforts will be made to make this the case in Washington this year. Christmas merchandise will be on sale after Thanksgiving Day.

There will be no extensions of the deadline for using 1932 tags, Mr. Van Duzer said, all present plates being void after midnight December 31. The new tags are yellow numerals on a black background, just the reverse of this year's colors.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THE appearance of Miss Ethel Barrymore in "Encore," at the National Theater this week, regardless of any eventuality that may overtake the Wittgenstein - Gibney comedy, can not but have a stimulating effect upon public interest in the forthcoming film release of "Rasputin," the much discussed picture in which the theater's first lady will be supported by her scarcely less distinguished brothers, Lionel and John. For, where Ponce de Leon failed utterly, Miss Barrymore obviously has succeeded gloriously in discovering the fountain of perpetual youth.

Ethel Barrymore

This was instantly recognized by Monday night's brilliant audience when Miss Barrymore appeared upon the scene. It was not the star of "Scarlet Sister Mary" who flashed before them, but the radiantly lovely young actress of a decade or more ago, when her presence in a role meant that it would be marked by a commanding and regal beauty. A growing volume of applause signalized the audience's happiness at seeing again before them the imperious Ethel of a supposedly bygone day.

This is a happy augury for the pictorial as well as histrionic impressiveness of the role of the Czarina in the forthcoming screen subject dealing with the hypnotic power of the inscrutable monk over the reigning house of the late Romanoffs. It means that the picture's quality of beauty will be appreciably enhanced by the presence in a pivotal role of an actress as completely equipped for her task before the cameras and microphones as for those duties which confront her behind the footlights.

Whether "Rasputin" comes to Washington as a road-show production or as a regular booking in one of the first-run picture houses, its appeal to discriminating amusement-seekers will have been inestimably increased by the earlier visit of "Encore."

If one were called upon to express a further opinion with regard to the current comedy contrived for Miss Barrymore's expert coquetries by the Messrs. Wittgenstein and Gibney, it would be that such astonishing metamorphoses frequently can be wrought in vehicles of such gossamer and inconsequential content purely by the method of treatment that anything can happen to "Encore" as its star and her supporting cast acquire greater familiarity with their roles and so are able to gloss over by spirited reading and spontaneous action the play's farcical absurdities, which now seem so obtrusive.

The miracle that one might fear can not be achieved even by this augmented deftness and perfected technique would be to make "Encore" a play of sufficient dramatic substance to justify so distinguished an actress' presence in its stellar role.

After all, there has always been a place on the stage for farce and legitimate burlesque.

To the gourmets of the theatrical and brokerage sets it will come as a happy announcement that Master Charles Warren McClintock, returned to the placid shores of the Potomac last Saturday night from the turmoils of "the road," has applied for a renewal of his commission as first lord of the galley aboard the S. S. Frantic, captained by that doughty old seadog, Frank P. Morse, who on Monday christened new gaming rooms up Fifteenth street way. Both were active entr'acte lobbyists at Monday night's opening of "Encore."

Chef McClintock, you should know, can prepare to the queen's taste any dish you mention, so long as it is "Mulligan!"

In addition to the usual promotional panegyrics, there are other pertinent facts that point to an unusual quality of excellence in "Call Her Savage," the new vehicle of the new Clara Bow, soon to be seen locally.

For instance, two who have received the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences' accolade in their respective fields were concerned in its preparation and production—Edwin Burke, adapter, and Lee Garmes, photographer.

Mr. Burke was awarded highest honors for the superiority of his script for "Bad Girl;" Mr. Garmes for the superlative photography he contributed to "Shanghai Express."

Before leaving Washington for a Thanksgiving holiday at his home in Georgia, Carter Barron, city manager of the Loew interests in Washington, was the recipient of an invitation from President L. Brittain, of Georgia Tech, to be his guest, with Mrs. Barron, at the University of Georgia-Georgia Tech football game, the big gridiron event of the year in the Southeast, on Saturday, November 26. This is an honor that is highly cherished, since State dignitaries, from governor down, look upon it as a mark of distinction to be accorded places in the president's box on this gala occasion.

As has been previously remarked, the run of "Air Mail," a Universal picture of more than ordinary novelty and thrill, will be inaugurated in the Rialto Theater with a midnight performance tonight, beginning, I believe, at approximately 11:15.

The Metropolitan is moving its opening day from Friday to Thursday this week in order to crash Richard Barthelmess in "The Cabin in the Cotton" upon an expectant public as a special Thanksgiving holiday attraction.

Also opening its run of three days tomorrow will be the Washington Drama Guild's production of "The Squall," its first offering of the season, in Wardman Park Theater. "The Squall" has been directed by Dennis E. Connell, and numbers among its cast a considerable number of former professional players now resident in the Capital.

Mr. Percy Hammond, the scholarly drama critic of the New York Herald Tribune, was somewhat chagrined recently to discover in his printed words that he had described as "comic" something to which he had intended to refer as "cosmic." It was similarly a surprise in reading the Tuesday review of "Encore" to discover that I had said, "A love affair to her is an expensive and well-rounded episode," when what I had in mind was "expansive." For once, however, a typographical error fell not too far from the truth!

Reverting briefly to the opening of "The Cabin in the Cotton," at the Metropolitan on Thanksgiving Day, it is worthy of note that the chief auxiliary feature of the same bill will be the first of the two-reel Vitaphone subjects marking the return to the screen of a 12-year exile, "Hey, Pop," his first comedy since the advent of sound to the screen, presents Roscoe ("Fatty") Arbuckle, recently seen in person in Washington, as its star. "Hey, Pop," is the first of a series of Arbuckle comedies for Warner Brothers.

Since celebrating the return of Scott Kolk, a local boy who made good out of the city, to familiar fields of activity in this space yesterday, there has come to hand a list of other noted entertainers who will share honors on the same bill at the Silver Slipper Supper Club when it gets going under new management tonight. They are Eleanor Terry, from Ziegfeld's "Hot-Cha;" Kern Sisters, of "Vanities;" the Piquette Trio, from the Folies Bergere, Paris; Adele Girard, of George White's "Scandals;" Jimmy Roy, of "The Vanderbilt Revue," and Ramona, also from the Folies Bergere.

Among the "name acts" announced for early appearances at the Silver Slipper are Gus Van, Eddie Jackson, formerly a third of the team of Clayton, Jackson & Durante; Chaz Chase, familiar to Washington audiences, and Mary Nolan, of stage and screen fame, formerly known as Imogene Wilson.

And over at the Club Michel, as a special holiday enticement, they are giving away another brace of round-trip week-end air jaunts to New York City. What the lucky winner will really get at No. 1 Thomas circle tonight will be a round-trip ticket to Manhattan by air, complete accommodations at the Hotel Edison for two people and dinner and an evening's entertainment at the Hollywood Restaurant.

Sort of a case of "Wings Over Turkey," as you might say!

PARK GROUP BACKS HOUSING PROPOSAL

Plans for Improvement to Be Presented to Congress Are Approved.

Improvements in housing conditions throughout the city, as outlined for presentation to the next Congress by the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, were approved yesterday in a resolution adopted by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Particularly interested in the elimination of hundreds of alley dwellings, the commission delegated Col. U. S. Grant 3d, vice chairman and executive officer, to continue negotiations with an institute committee, in order to bring the housing solution more into line with the planners' wishes.

The program of Washington architects, designed to get remedial legislation and subsequently a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, in an effort to build better homes for Washington's poor, was outlined before the Park and Planning Commission by Louis Justement, chairman of the special housing committee of the architects' institute.

The resolution, as adopted by the commission, was announced yesterday by Col. Grant as follows:

"Motion unanimously carried that the commission expresses its appreciation of the helpful information contained in this contribution and its entire approval of the purposes of the measure, and authorizes the executive officer to continue negotiations with the committee of the institute of architects, so as to see what modifications of the bill can be made to help it serve more particularly the purposes the commission has in mind, namely, doing away with the slum conditions, without unduly increasing the tax burdens."

G. W. Tuition Cut For Workers, Aim

University Liberal Club Asks Reduction Due to Federal Pay Cut.

A reduction in tuition fee for Government employes studying at George Washington University to conform with the 8 1-3 per cent Federal pay cut was asked yesterday by the Liberal Club of the university in resolutions forwarded to President Cloyd Heck Marvin.

The club also asked that a course be introduced on social problems, consisting of nonpartisan lectures on economic, scientific and sociological subjects. The lectures should stress the way educated people may help in the solution of social problems, giving them a socialized rather than an individualistic interpretation, it was recommended.

The club indorsed the recommendation of Dr. Walter E. Clark, president of the National Association of State Universities, for development of a scientifically trained citizenry, wider democratic control and responsibility, greater leisure and larger financial returns to the working class. The proposal of Thomas W. Lamont, financier, for an examination "with unprejudiced eye of any new economic system or change of our present system," was also indorsed.

Federal Employes Back Fight on Pay Slashes

Members of Local No. 372, of the National Federation of Federal Employes, last night indorsed the program of President Luther C. Stewart for a campaign of education to point out to legislators in Congress the folly of salary slashes and cuts in essential governmental appropriations. The local met at 710 Fourteenth street northwest.

The meeting was advised that the application of the local for a charter to form a credit union had been approved by the commissioner of insurance of the District.

Indictment Returned After Fatal Stabbing

A charge of first-degree murder was returned against George A. Gaither, colored, yesterday when the District grand jury indicted him for the slaying of Walter Garner, also colored, October 27, in Cullinane's court.

Three colored women held as witnesses to the fatal stabbing were released when the grand jury refused to indict them. They were Mamie and Margaret Gatewood and Ellen Witherspoon.

Airport Employe Hurt When Propeller 'Kicks'

Struck when the propeller "kicked back" while he was cranking an airplane, George Brencherhoff, 34, of 33 T street northeast, an employe at the College Park Airport, yesterday suffered a fracture of his left collar bone.

He was treated at Emergency Hospital and later allowed to go home.

Page, Britten and Crosby To Be Slogan-Creed Judges

Are Named to Decide Prize Winners in Post-RKO-Keith's Contest Conducted in Connection With Showing of "The Conquerors."

Selection of judges for the slogan-creed contest being conducted by The Washington Post and RKO-Keith's in connection with the showing of "The Conquerors" is announced today. The three judges will be William Tyler Page, former clerk of the House; Representative Fred Britten, of Illinois, and Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, District Commissioner.

Since the contest provides the writing of a new slogan or creed to help Americans face 1933 with confidence, it is altogether fitting that William Tyler Page be one of the judges for it was he who wrote "The American's Creed" which is one of history's masterpieces. His creed is as follows:

"I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign Nation of many sovereign States; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

"I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies."

From this creed by Mr. Page it is possible that entrants will obtain ideas for new creeds. Or from the slogan used to advertise the picture, "You Can't Stop America," they may get themes for similar slogans.

First prize will be $25; second, $15, and third, $10. There will be ten additional prizes of sets of tickets to RKO-Keith's. All entries must be received by Sunday midnight. Winners will be announced next Tuesday. Employes of The Post and RKO-Keith's and their families are barred. Address all communications to "The Conquerors Editor," in care of The Post.

"THE CONQUERORS," Radio Pictures' Almization of a story by Howard Estabrook, adapted to the screen by Robert Lord, costarring Richard Dix and Ann Harding, with Guy Kibbe, Edna May Oliver, Donald Cook, Walter Walker, Marilyn Knowlden and Harry Holman. Directed by William Wellman. Previewed last Saturday midnight.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Here is a picture that has managed to catch something of the vital spark of America's greatness. Thinly cloaking some of the most significant qualities of our national character with the romance that spanned 60 years of the married life of a bride and groom who sought their fortune in the West following the panic of 1873, "The Conquerors" traces the economic growth of the Nation from a feeble beginning to the giant it is today, once more wracked by the disastrous, but by no means fatal, consequences of economic rashness.

Every time widespread depression has overtaken the United States the cry has been raised that "this is the worst panic of them all," but always recovery has been sure, if sometimes slow, and ever has the course of the Nation been toward finer, nobler and greater things.

It is not as a dreary historical tract that this picture teaches these inspiring lessons, but through the medium of a gripping dramatic story of personal fortitude, hardship, grim adventure and unquenchable faith. Without its closely woven narrative, tremendous sweep and epic grandeur, "The Conquerors," nevertheless, enjoys a close kinship with "Cimarron," its distinguished predecessor from the same studio. It deals with the builders of our national strength, through the simple movement of a story that wends its way from New York to Nebraska and there grows up with the country. This is a process that encompasses the lynching of the Slade gang of desperadoes, the starting of the first bank, the coming of the first children to the Standish home—twins—the opening of the first railroad and the momentous celebration attending the arrival of the first train, tragedy, death, war, the marriage of the second generation, old age—the complete span of a lifetime.

The pictorial symbolism of the passing of each period of "hard times" is contrived in the impressionistic manner of the Russians—in 1873, by the piling up and tumbling down of great stacks of silver dollars; in 1893, the cyclonic dissipation of huge hordes of paper certificates and in 1929, a cataclysmic avalanche, as of a universe in disruption.

These vivid indexes to the action are at times more eloquent than the detailed telling of the story. For "The Conquerors" is by no means the perfect picture. It presents occasional anachronisms, strains a little now and again for its comedy and gloats a bit over its tragedy. But, withal, it is a commanding example of optimistic, uplifting and thrilling screen entertainment.

As between Richard Dix and Ann Harding, in the pivotal roles of Roger Standish and his wife—the counterparts of Yancy Cravat and Sabra—the acting honors are preponderantly Mr. Dix's. His is a straightforward and stalwart portrayal of a rugged young pioneer who becomes in his old age a great financial power. The dual performance called for by the closing sequence of the play is intelligently and skillfully executed. Miss Harding, on the other hand, seemed to me to contribute nothing to the picture that might be construed as an earnest of her histrionic rehabilitation. In many scenes she is, to be sure, entrancingly lovely, but in many others she is, too, cold, restrained and unsympathetic, apparently unconscious of the emotional opportunities that lie all about her.

An especially fine piece of comedy character work is done by Guy Kibbe, in the role of the bibulous frontier doctor to whom alcohol is the ultima thule of existence; a vast internal solace and a perfect sterilizer for his surgical instruments! No less effective is the shrewd characterization of his vigilant and gallant helpmeet, played with her distinctive sort of acidulous charm by Edna May Oliver. A large number of others lend competent aid to this quartet of principals.

A cartoon comedy and the Pathe News are the only supplementaries of a feature that will buck you up physically, spiritually and emotionally by refusing to sell America short and making it inspirationally clear why.

ALL-AMERICAN CRITICS NOW FACE PUZZLING TASK

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE football situation in the East will be considerably clarified before the week has run its course with all four contenders for the sectional title risking their claims in combats that can truthfully be called titanic struggles.

Colgate, unbeaten and with its goal line uncrossed, tomorrow encounters a Brown team that has knocked off Yale, Harvard and Holy Cross. Army, still in the contender class despite a defeat by Pitt, will have its title claims wrecked or embellished by Notre Dame on Saturday. And Pitt, unbeaten, but tied twice, can do its cause a lot of good and just as much harm in the battle with Stanford on the same day.

At least two, maybe three, of these four teams now claiming Eastern honors will be forced to haul down their colors this week-end. Pitt is risking the most, for the Panthers' victory over Notre Dame gives them a claim to national as well as sectional honors that neither Brown, Colgate or Army can boast as a result of the nature of their schedules.

Colgate Most Likely To Triumph.

On paper, a day before the game, Colgate appears the most likely risk to win. A 14-to-0 victory over New York U. and a 16-to-0 defeat of Syracuse are the chief recommendations of Colgate which has had a comparatively soft schedule, but off these performances the Red Raiders are rated the favorite over Brown.

Brown's victory over Yale was achieved at a stage of the season when the Bulldogs had not reached their peak, and its conquest of Harvard is not being taken too seriously. Brown was able to humble Holy Cross only by a 10-to-7 score, and Holy Cross, be it remembered, lost to Harvard.

Colgate's defeats of New York U. and Syracuse are more significant. In the game against the Violets at New York, Colgate proved itself severel touchdowns better than the actual score, while Syracuse came back to tie the Columbia Team, which lost to Brown only 7 to 6.

Army-Notre Dame Game High Spot.

The Army-Notre Dame battle overshadows all else in point of interest. The Irish, slowly but apparently surely recovering from the shock of the defeat by Pitt in the last quarter of the upset at Pittsburgh, still can redeem its season by beating West Point.

A victory for the Army likewise will bring a deal of balm to the Cadets. Army also shows a defeat by Pitt as the lone black mark on its record. Needless to say the Cadets will come back with their shields or on them in the annual battle with Notre Dame. The crushing 46-0 victory over Harvard was an indication of the Army's power.

Hunk Anderson is eager to atone for the 12-0 licking at the hands of Army last year and since the Pitt defeat, he has overturned the personnel of the Irish eleven until he believes he is getting satisfactory results.

Pitt Likely Favorite Over Stanford.

Pitt will carry into the Stanford battle the memory of the 27-14 defeat inflicted on the Panthers on the Pacific Coast in 1930 by Southern California. Stanford is the first Coast team to be met by Pitt since that occasion.

Stanford has fallen on evil ways this season while Pitt, victor over both Notre Dame and Army, remains a national title contender. Southern California and U. C. L. A. have toppled Warner's Cardinals this year and the team appears below the Warner standard. Pitt will probably be the favorite in this clash between the Warner systems of Warner, the master, and Sutherland, the pupil.

4 Notre Dame Regulars Missing

Irish Handicapped in Crucial Contest With Army.

Cadets' Coach Must Select Quarter and Left End.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 22 (U.P.).—Two Notre Dame regulars were in the university infirmary tonight with the influenza and two others were on the injured list, probably lost to the team for their crucial game against Army at New York Saturday.

Both George Mellinkovich, leading ground gainer and high-scoring full back, and Jim Harris, left guard, were removed to the infirmary today with temperatures of 102, and are almost certain to be out of Saturday's game.

Harris was replaced by Harry Wunsch and Jim Leonard and Steve Banas alternated at Mellinkovich's place at full back today.

Coach Heartly Anderson assumed a pessimistic attitude after today's practice and predicted Army would win by three touchdowns.

"I hope we have a dry field," said Anderson. "Our only hope seems to be how well our passing attack functions."

More than 100 students crashed the gate to attend secret practice today and lend support to the team, but Anderson promptly herded his players into the gym to conclude the workout.

Army Must Name Left End And Quarter.

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 22 (U.P.).—Coach Sasse must decide shortly on Army's starting players at quarter back and left end for the Notre Dame game at New York on Saturday. Jack Lawlor, of Allston, Mass., and Curley Edwards, of Quincy, W. Va., are running neck-and-neck for the end berth left open by Dick King's broken leg. Joe MacWilliam, of Perth Amboy, N. J., or Felix Vidal, of Madison, Wis., will start at quarter. Army will hold its final heavy secret practice tomorrow.

Reider, Sebastian Back At Pitt.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Hopes of the Pitt Panthers for victory over Stanford brightened today as both Capt. Paul Reider and Mike Sebastian shared the right half-back post in an hour and a half drill.

Trainer Bud Moore assured Coach Jock Sutherland both men, who yesterday were reported suffering from injuries, would be ready for action by Saturday.

Pitt will work out at the stadium again tomorrow and then the varsity will leave town for a secret drilling ground some miles from Pittsburgh where the team will remain until the morning of the game. Stanford will arrive several hours after the Panthers depart.

Metric Measure for Track Meets Adopted by A. A. U.

Change From American to International System Effected; "Olympic Tax" Plan Vetoed; "Special Bouts" Ruled Out.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The Amateur Athletic Union adopted the metric system of measurement for all track and field events, ruled out all "special" bouts in amateur boxing tournaments and abandoned an attempt to raise Olympic funds by an "Olympic tax" on admissions in the closing session of the forty-fourth annual convention today.

The change to the metric system, the universal standard in European competition, came as a distinct surprise, for the question, a matter of argument for a number of years, was not on the convention program.

But the motion to supersede yards and miles with meters and kilometers was passed by a three-fourths vote of the delegates without a single dissenting voice.

This move obviously was aimed to bringing about a universal system of measurement for track and field events and, as a direct result, universal records.

Magee Urges Universal Standard.

Johnny Magee, Bowdoin track coach, who with A. C. Gilbert, chairman of the advisory board of athletics at Yale, led the discussion in favor of the change, advocated it in "fairness to American athletes."

"Sooner or later," he said, "we are coming to a universal system of measurement. It is obvious that the international metric system will not be changed so it is up to us to make our system conform. Only England and the United States retain the yards and miles. It is not fair to keep away from our competitors the chance to break all the real world's records simply because we do not run our races at meters. In fairness to American athletes we should make the change."

The change will be effective January 1 so that virtually all of the coming indoor season's meets will be run in accordance with metric measurements. Incidentally, all record holders at yards and miles, now listed in the books are virtually assured of going down as all-time champions at these distances since they seldom will be run again.

The change applies only to track and field. Not to swimming or other sports.

New Rule to End Race When Chest Hits Tape

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—An amendment to the rules governing finishes of running events which would make American rules conform to those of the International Athletic Federation, and which would have changed the result of two Olymic events, was adopted today by the annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union.

The rule provides that the winner of the race is determined when the chest hits the tape, not when the torso crosses the finish line as at present. If applied to the last Olympics the rule would have given Ralph Metcalfe a dead heat with Eddie Tolan in the 100-meter dash and Mrs. Evelyn Hall and Mildred Babe Didrikson a dead heat in the 80-meter hurdles. Under the old ruling Tolan and Miss Didrikson were declared the winners.

JACOBUS TO HEAD PRO GOLFERS

Bobby Jones Named Honorary Vice President.

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—For the first time in its history, the Professional Golfers Association of America will be led by a home-bred professional.

George Jacobus, 33, professional from Ridgewood, N. J., was elected president of the organization at its annual meeting today. He succeeded Charlie Hall, of Birmingham, Ala., who was named honorary president.

Bobby Jones, reported strayed definitely from the amateur rank by his decision to make motion pictures, was named an honorary vice president.

Alternates Eliminated From Title Play.

Elimination of alternates in the annual championship was the outstanding move made by the P. G. A. during the two-day meeting. The action was the direct result of last year's qualifying round, which was followed by reports that an attempt was made to buy a position in the qualifiers' bracket at Detroit. A full investigation was made and while the charges were not substantiated, the P. G. A. officials decided to take action. As a result, every qualifier must compete in the annual championship or leave his place vacant.

No attempt was made to name the 1933 Ryder Cup team during the meeting. Only three were recognized as certain members—Walter Hagen, of Detroit; Gene Sarazen, of New York, and Olin Dutra, of California—with Hagen the probable selection to captain the team again against England. Word was passed around that the other candidates for the team have to prove their game during the winter tournaments.

10% Race Winnings Tax Planned by Maryland

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 22.—A 10 per cent tax on all money distributed as winnings by the parimutuel machines at the race tracks is being considered seriously by State officials and the State's special tax investigation committee, it was learned tonight.

This tax, it has been estimated, would produce an annual revenue of several million dollars, the calculation being based on an average daily wagering of $400,000 in the 90-day racing season in Maryland.

There has been no definite decision as to whether this levy shall be adopted as a means of increasing the State's revenue from indirect sources for the purpose of relieving the direct taxation on real and personal property. It is one of the principal items for study in the program of the committee on tax revision, headed by Dr. Jacob H. Hollander, which will report back to the Legislature in January, it is understood.

COLGATE 7-5 CHOICE TO TRIUMPH

Brown Underdog in East's Title Game Tomorrow.

By JACK CUDAHY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—Colgate's Red Raiders are 7-to-5 favorites to defeat Brown's unbeaten Bruins for the Eastern football championship at Providence on Thanksgiving Day.

The precision with which Andy Kerr's Maroons have rolled up the best record of any college football team in the country, rather than the record itself, has given them the edge over the less-certain Rhode Island Bears.

Colgate has the remarkable record of 243 points in eight games, with not a single point registered against the team. This record was achieved by formidable power, accurate passing and a robust defense.

Made 84 First Downs To 15 for Foes.

The Red Raiders advanced in their last five games 1,344 yards by rushing while opponents made only 203 yards. They held rival elevens to 15 first downs while making 84, and raced 439 yards on forward passes, while rivals covered only 148 overhead. Their heavy, fast-charging line has prevented any of the eight opponents from passing their 20-yard line.

Meanwhile, Brown has totaled only 81 points in its seven games against 21 for rival teams. In their last four games the Bruins have not displayed the consistent attack or certain defense of the Raiders. Brown gained 640 yards by rushing, while opponents made 456. The Bears made less first downs—40—than their rivals—44. They were far inferior in the air, marching only 181 yards on forward passes, while enemies made 338 yards.

Brown's opponents have averaged more strength than Colgate's, but four of the Raiders' rivals were no pushovers; New York University, Lafayette, Penn State and Syracuse. Brown's schedule included Yale, Harvard, Holy Cross and Columbia.

Throw Away Dope, Say Brown Fans.

Brown's supporters, and there's an army of them, insist that all these records be tossed into the waste basket because they are meaningless. They claim that Brown is a team that can't be beaten because of its fighting spirit. It may not achieve great yardage in a game, but it can pack this yardage into long marches for the touchdowns that win games. They can come from behind, after wearing down the opposition, and win like true champions.

BETHESDA FIREMEN PLAY.

Bethesda Fire Department quintet will open its season tonight at 8 o'clock, meeting the strong Woodlawn Athletic Club in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School gym. The Firemen have added several players to their roster, and are gunning for the Montgomery County unlimited court title.

G. W.-Sooners May Draw 20,000

Oklahoma Is Slight Choice Over Colonials Tomorrow.

District Eleven Is Confident of Turning in Victory.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE most successful football season for George Washington since Dean Wilbur earned his first sabbatical year, comes to a picturesque ending tomorrow afternoon on the tattered brown turf of Griffith Stadium, when the colorful Bicentennial boys do battle with a regiment of he-men in Lord Fauntelroy panties—known to the profession as the Oklahoma University Sooners.

Lured by these panties—which seem to me to come closest to putting sex into college football—plus the possibility of a good day, and above all a good football attraction, the advance "gate" is beginning to look like a row of deficit figures, and a crowd of 20,000 or more is in prospect.

If such is the case it will bring G. W.'s average attendance for the year up to something like 15,000, which is a far cry from the days of the stunningly recent past, when the Colonials were as tame as courthouse pigeons and played their games in Central Stadium before a crowd made up, for the most part, by Cy and Mike McDonald.

Colonials Can Travel In Fast Company.

Came the yawn, and the Colonials have building themselves a grid machine that can travel in almost any company in the United States. A number of local fans are installing the G. W.'s as favories over Oklahoma, which is a bit optimistic but not altogether without foundation, considering the long trip and hard Nebraska game.

Promptly at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, when the locals rush out on the field in their freshly laundered Red, White and Blue uniforms, they will present a team in perfect physical and much improved mental condition.

Several things enter into this, particularly the mental part of the business. George Washington took a mental licking from Alabama in many ways, and the effects had not worn off when Tulsa crept up from behind and handed them a narrow beating. But in the Iowa game something snapped in the team. Plays began to click and an air of confidence was smeared thickly about the team, insulating it against the timorousness which long had been a standby of G. W. teams.

Players Showing New Affection for School.

G. W. goes on the field tomorrow confident that it will win. Its players, showing an astounding and somewhat lachrymosic affection for the old school, which they had never heard of half a decade ago, can not conceive of themselves losing their final game for the old institution. It is indeed a bunch of rip-snorting football players who will mangle the ball parks' turf tomorrow.

On the eve of the arrival of the Sooners (they come in at 11:30 this morning) the Colonials went through a brisk and confident workout yesterday, confined almost entirely to the breaking up of Oklahoma plays, as produced by those versatile grid chameleons, the freshmen. G. W. has been warned mostly against the astounding passing strength of the visitors. In the melee Ras Nielsen, dependable second-string senior tackle, was kicked on the back of the head and suffered a slight concussion of the brain. He was removed to George Washington University Hospital and there spent the night. Dr. A. F. Heath says he's o. k. now and may be able to take his place in the opening G. W. line-up—to be composed, as a sentimental gesture, entirely of seniors.

Dunlap Touted As Threat.

Further bogey stories about the invincibility of Bob Dunlap were rampant yesterday. Dunlap's kicking, running and passing looms as perhaps the only real cloud on the Colonials' horizon. The locals have been warned by Steve Hinsley, G. W.'s intrepid Midwest explorer, that if one of Dunlap's long passes ever connect with little Ab Walker, 140-pound jumping-jack back, it might be curtains. It will be recalled that G. W. showed a weakness in breaking up Tulsa's passing. And if Dunlap connects even with Stacy, or the Pansze boys, or big Fred Cherry, end, it will also be time for the G. W band to stop playing.

Speaking of bands, Oklahoma is bringing a 100-piece affair, with a guaranteed zoom-zoom. The Sooners' much-discussed silk uniforms weigh 7½ pounds, including the helmet, which is made of sponge-rubber and weighs only 8 ounces. The Sooners play dangerous, alert football, alive with surprises and manifold trick plays. It is their final game of the year, too, and they have their own ideas on who is going to win tomorrow's gigantic offering to the Great God Feetball.

PALADORS CHALLENGE.

The Palador A. C., 130-pound football team would like to arrange a game for Thanksgiving morning. Call Lincoln 3187.

Harvard Athletics Net $36,729 Profit, Despite Less Receipts

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 22 (U.P.).—The Harvard Athletic Association's income during the twelve months ended June 30, 1932, showed an excess over expenses of $36,729.36, despite a decrease in net receipts of $138,585.84, it was announced last night.

In that period the amount available for athletics and physical education, after deducting guarantees to visiting teams, amounted to $639,635.11, as against $778,220.97 during the year ended June 30, 1931.

As usual, football was the only sport to show a profit. The income from varsity football was $483,756.98, as against an expense of $110,776.97. Every varsity major sport team except varsity track decreased its expenses during the year. The total reduction in expenses of the association as result of rigid economies was $134,762.87.

Star in Oklahoma Back Field

who teams with his brother, Bill, in the Oklahoma back field, is famed in the Southwest as a blocker and interferer, but he will be seen in a ball-carrying role also against George Washington tomorrow.

MARYLAND U. PROMISED BATTLE

Hopkins, Better Than Usual, Rates Close to Old Liners.

ABOUT the two most evenly rated teams that have represented Maryland and Johns Hopkins since 1927 will clash tomorrow afternoon at Baltimore Stadium in the thirtieth annual renewal of a hoary old grid feud.

Maryland is below par this year and Hopkins is above. Even at that, Maryland looms as a favorite, but Hopkins is placing great importance on the fact that it hasn't played for two weeks, while Maryland suffered a bruising last Saturday afternoon at Washington and Lee.

Hopkins also points out that this is their final game of the year, and that the Blue Jays will be in there to step on Maryland's corns at every turn, while Maryland must maintain somewhat of a football decorum because of the fact that it meets Western Maryland in a brawl at Baltimore the following week-end.

Teams Bear Similar Aspects.

The teams bear somewhat similar aspects. Both have 30 men on the squad, and the preponderance of sophomores is great. Bill Hottel, the Maryland statistician-publicity man, in a typical handout bristling with facts and figures, estimates that Hopkins should win because it has a total of 63 years' experience on its team, as compared to a measly 61 for Maryland. As for the varsity, Hopkins is aeons older, being 28 years old in experience, as compared to the wet-behind-the-ears Marylanders, who are only 19.

Little to Continue As Columbia Coach

Signs "for a Further Period of Years" at $15,000 Per Annum.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Dr. Edward S. Elliott, director of athletics at Columbia University, today officially announced that Lou Little, head football coach of the Lions since 1929, had signed a new contract "for a further period of years."

It has been generally known for some time that Little had signed a new contract for three years at probably $15,000 a year, but university officials and Little declined to confirm it until after the end of the season, which closed for Columbia last Saturday.

Little's new salary, conforming to the times, is a reduction of $3,500 a year from the salary he is reported to have received under his previous three-year contract.

The Lions have enjoyed their two most successful seasons in years under Little, losing only to Brown, 7 to 6, in the season just closed, and winning from Princeton, Cornell, Navy and Virginia among others, and playing a scoreless tie with Syracuse.

Maryland Park Teams Lose in Title Games

Maryland Park High School Soccer Team was eliminated from further competition in State title play by the Lackey High School eleven in a game played yesterday at La Plata. Lackey scored near the end of the fray to earn a 1-0 victory. The game was in the second round.

In a first-round field-ball tilt, the Maryland Park girls' team bowed to Ellicott City High School, 13-7. The game was played at Catonsville.

TOM WHELAN IN FINALE FOR C. U.

Star Ends Career in Saturday Contest Against Loyola.

AN intensely interesting sports figure will pass from the picture Saturday afternoon at Griffith Stadium when Tommy Whelan zigzags through his last broken field for Catholic University, in whose football army he has gallantly fought for four thrilling years.

The curly-haired New York youth, perhaps the most perfect physical specimen among local college athletes, comes to the end of his college grid trail against Loyola College's Irish, a big durable, somewhat slow team from Baltimore, and just the kind of a foil against which Whelan can pull off his most dazzling football stunts.

Whelan has been C. U.'s main cause for football existence the past three years, and the tremendous zip concealed in his legs and hips have done much to yank the Cards from a journeyman team to a squad that is respected in wholesale lots. This year he has had other duties to perform for the team—a measure of passing and blocking which has taken the edge off his individual brilliancy.

To Be Old Self Again Saturday.

But Saturday he will be his old self again—a ball-carrying dervish perhaps unequaled in the history of local football.

It will be the swan song for two others who have done much to help cement Whelan's great name—Buster Sheary and John Jankowski, two of the best blockers in the business.

Local fans seem to have just awakened to the fact that C. U. is as good as any team here, and better than most of them. The advance sale for the Loyola tussle is reaching the proportions of a splendid crowd, perhaps almost 10,000.

Loyola has a big and powerful back field, with Maury Egan, 180-pound half back; Vince Carlin, 175-pound half back, and Al Cullen, 198-pound full back. Chris Kammka, pint-sized quarter back, is a triple threat. The Irish are a lot better off this year in the way of reserve strength. In the line they have Tom Farrell, 195-pound tackle; George Waidner, 203-pound 6-foot-4 tackle, and Capt. Mike Plotzik, 165-pound center, who was voted by Holy Cross last year as the best center that played against them.

GIBRASKI GETS GOLF ACE.

P. Gibraski, unattached professional, playing with Oscar Blanton, president of the Blanton Motor Co., registered a hole-in-one on the fifth at Beaver Dam yesterday. The hole measures 165 yards. Gibraski employed a No. 5 iron, and finished the 18-hole round in 74, two above par.

1932's Crop Of Standout Stars Few

Not Many Gridmen Have Responded to "Build-Ups."

List of Notables in All Sections Compiled by A. P.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—In a college football season marked by the reformers' happily conceived state of emphasis upon team play, rather than the individual exploit, the experts have been bequeathed a finely drawn skein of all-American yarn to unravel.

The job of knitting together a composite eleven, representative of the country's best gridiron speed, power and brains, not only is a source of headaches but beset this fall with an unusual shortage of definitely outstanding players.

The conclusion of the 1931 campaign sent an extraordinary crop of all-stars out of the collegiate ranks into the hands of ghost writers, the arms of professional football tacklers or the embrace of the silver screen.

Few Respond to "Build-Up" System.

The Booths, the Woods, the Shavers, the Pinckerts, the Schwartzes and the Dalrymples left big gaps in the ranks of the ballyhooed performers. Consequently the collegiate press agents were left with a brand-new set of performers, few of whom have responded to the "build-up" by saying it with touchdowns or blocked kicks.

Furthermore, this "new talent" situation has helped coaches in their aim to stress team play. Such teams as Auburn, Southern California, Texas Christian, Michigan, Brown and Colgate, although each possesses outstanding specialists, nevertheless have based successful campaigns mostly on "unit play." U. S. C., for example, lost one of the greatest quarter backs in the country in Orville Mohler, but this did not check the winning stride of the Trojans. Michigan also survived injuries to star performers without breaking its victorious march through the Big Ten.

Meanwhile reports gathered by the Associated Press for its eighth annual All-American consensus have developed the players most generally favored for all-star recognition in the major centers of action. Here's how the list shaped up today, with vital returns still to be tabulated later in the week.

Smith-Brown Standouts In West.

FAR WEST—Ernie Smith and Raymond Brown, tackles, Southern California; Mike Stepanovich, guard, St. Mary's; Dave Nisbet, end, Washington; George Sander, half back, Washington State.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN—Frank Christensen, full back, and Jack Johnson, tackle, Utah; Guy Martin, guard, Colorado College.

SOUTHWEST — Johnny Vaught, guard, Texas Christian; Harrison Stafford, half back, Texas; Madison Pruitt, end, Texas Christian.

SOUTHERN CONFERENCE — Don Zimmerman, half back, Tulane; Fred Crawford, tackle, Duke; Pete Gracey, center, Vanderbilt; Beattie Feathers, half back, Tennessee; Jim Hitchcock, half back, Auburn.

BIG SIX—Lawrence Ely, center, Nebraska; Dougal Russell, half back, Kansas State; George Sauer, full back, Nebraska; Paul Young, center, Oklahoma.

BIG TEN—Harry Newman, quarter back, Michigan; Joe Gailus, guard, and Lew Hinchman, half back, Ohio State; Paul Moss, end, and Roy Horstmann, full back, Purdue; Ivan Williamson, end, Michigan; Gregory Kabat, guard, Wisconsin; Gil Berry, half back, Illinois.

VALENCIENNES, OF HERTZ ENTRY, WINS BOWIE FEATURE

Owner, Rider Earn Double By Victory

Steffen, Pairbypair, Also Win for Mrs. Hertz.

Con Amore Second in Feature, Killed Off by Seven Veils.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

"THE old gray mare ain't what she used to be"—that's what the majority of selectors and horse players had come to think of Valenciennes. In fact, the 5-year-old daughter of Stefan the Great hardly has been earning her feed bill this year. Not one victory was shown on her 1932 record and her earnings revealed the mediocre figure of $750 in contrast to the $26,850 she collected for Mrs. J. D. Hertz last year.

But yesterday Valenciennes had her speed turned on in the stretch and Eddie Steffen rode home to a length and a half triumph over Con Amore, the even-money favorite. Third money was garnered by Scuttle. The victory gave Jockey Steffen and the Hertz stable a double, for Pairbypair, Steffen up, won the third.

Seven Veils Factor in Mate's Victory.

But it would not be fair to another gal to give all the credit to Valenciennes. In fact, Seven Veils was an important factor in the victory and shared in the spoils, being the other half of Mrs. Hertz's entry. And then Pat Remillard, riding Con Amore, should also figure while the palms are being presented.

Remillard's part came this wise. Meade, on Seven Veils, with only 100 pounds up, set a terrific pace away from the barrier, and Con Amore went right along. This pair battled for the lead going up the back stretch, and Remillard seemed to think the little filly was all he had to beat. In the meantime, Valenciennes and Steffen were tending to their knitting, leading only the slow-running Kincsen and the 150-1 shot, Light Breeze. Came the far turn, and Con Amore began to crawl up on Seven Veils, but the old gray mare was eating up ground now as she began to catch the leaders.

Straightened out in the stretch, the entry handed Con Amore the one-two punch. Seven Veils quit as Valenciennes struck her best stride. Somewhere in the juggle Con Amore became second, where she was to stay. Scuttle was first in the second division to take third money.

Fair Crest, carrying the light weight of the party—100 pounds—in the person of Willie Todd, showed the way to the 2-year-old maidens which competed at a mile and 70 yards in the opener. Al Jolson, half of the Grayson - Breckenbridge entry, was second, and Lower Ten, half of the Brandywine-Jeffords entry, was third. Mahomet and Standout, two heavily played juveniles, failed to figure in the important part of the race.

Acautaw, at Odds-on, Wins Second.

The Trueman-trained Acautaw left nothing to be desired by the favorite players. They went to him in a big way, and at some stages of the betting it looked like he might pay off with milk stoppers. However, after the formality of the running was over, the son of Trojan paid a $2.90 mutuel. It was a contest only because Albert Robertson, on the odds-on favorite, so desired. Acautaw won by a length from Happy Anne, of the Labrot entry, and Old Field, of the Adams entry, was third.

Pairbypair proved the second straight odds-on favorite to win, but the margin was not as great as the confidence with which the figure players went to the son of Noah. Pairbypair had a scant neck advantage over Scout Master, a 41.10 to 1 shot, while a nose away came Merrily On. Pairbypair held the lead from start to finish by distances varying from that neck to a length. Eddie Steffen had the winning mount and the mutuel struck the day's low mark with $2.60.

Late Date came through with a closing rush that accounted for the fifth race, over the mile and a sixteenth route. The sixth went to Banderlog, of the C. V. Whitney string, while Solace took the seventh, in a two-nose finish, with Fort Dearborn and Garlic. The decision of the judges was booed.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: BOWIE RACE TRACK.

Well, boy, held to two winners yesterday. Con Amore was outsmarted in the saddle. Miami has changed its mind about a $5 daily-double this winter and will offer the parlay wager at $2. The Florida track has also cut the admission to $1 plus tax.

I believe the Maryland tracks would profit by such a move. The avarage person thinks more of that admission price than $2 lost on a race and it is my belief that the track would more than make up the difference in increased mutuel play. At any rate, I'll see you today. BILL.

FIRST RACE—LADY LEGEND didn't fancy the track the last time and seems due to have a coming-out party today. Not far out of it in any of her starts. CORRYMEELA may surprise by taking the place from STAR FAIRY.

SECOND RACE—DROMBO moves into faster company but did so well for me last week that I can't pass him up. HELL DIVER and SUPERCHARGE appear the best of the others. The last named is a fine across-the-board proposition.

THIRD RACE—GENERAL A defeated this kind at Pimlico in a sprint race. Seemed to have all his speed in the last two distance races. Carries a big package but so do the leading contenders. GOLD STEP and HAPPY SCOT figure high. KAI-FINN improved the last time as I expected. I was told last spring to watch out for SILVER ROI. Stranger things have happened.

FOURTH RACE—Although ESPINETTA appears to have more than she can chew here at first glance, I'm giving her a chance. Holds terrific closing ability and the speedsters may run each other in the ground to pave the way for ESPINETTA. BOLD LOVER and POPPYMAN for the rest.

FIFTH RACE—There's so many in this field dropping down a couple of pegs that a gilt-edged investment appears impossible. Personally, I like THE CRANE. This one was out for all of it the last time and was poorly ridden although third. MODERN TIMES and TRIPLE THREAT for the rest.

SIXTH RACE—BOKIE B, with 100 pounds aboard, is a threat in this field. Beat fair ones on an off track. Starred on the half-milers on fast courses. Not to be trifled with despite the presence of NEGOPOLI and GAY PARTY in the field.

SEVENTH RACE—TRAFFIC JUDGE may draw To.d for a rider in this. Has his favorite weight of 103 and has worked well. RENEWED and MONOCLE for the rest.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAIR CREST, $24.20, $10.40, $6.10; AL JOLSON (C. T. Grayson-Brech Long entry), $11.20, $9.90; LOWER TEN (Brandywine Stable-W. M. Jeffords entry), $3.10.

FAIR CREST, squeezed back going to the first turn, went to the outside when straightened on the back stretch, reached the leaders steadily and moving into command in the final furlong was under severe pressure at the end. AL JOLSON, rated close to the pacemakers, displaced PROM GIRL when entering the home stretch, and then continued gamely. LOWER TEN, slow to settle in the early stages, moved up fast entering the home stretch, but was inclined to swerve to the inside during the stretch run. CORVINE raced well for the entire journey. MAHOMET closed strong from a slow beginning. She raced wide. STANDOUT could not threaten the leaders. FAIRLY WILD was never a factor.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Glenweld. For 2-year-olds, foaled in Maryland. Start poor from gates. Won ridden out; place, easily. Went to post at 1:35. Off at 1:44½. ACAUTAW, quick to get going, resisted keen contention from BALLY BAY in the first half mile, withstood a stout challenge from HAPPY ANNE and drew out slowly clear in the finish while under severe urging. HAPPY ANNE, rated close to the leaders, made a determined effort when entering the home stretch, but hung during the final furlong. OLD FIELD, away in a tangle, circled his field to close with good speed. TRUE SENTIMENT was unable to improve his position at any stage. SERENABIT was outrun. CANTERON was away very slowly. BALLY BAY stopped fast after a half mile. The last three at the break had scant chance.

FAIRBYPAIR, hurried to the front and rated under mild restraint until challenged, responded to stout urging and outstayed SCOUT MASTER in a hard drive. SCOUT MASTER raced to the winner rapidly when leaving the back stretch, drew on almost equal terms and fought it out with excellent courage. MERRILY ON, ridden hard the entire trip and saving all possible ground during the stretch run, NOAH'S PRIDE, a keen factor early, finished with belated speed on the outside. PORTER'S DREAM had no excuses. FREE PLAN was very green and broke very slowly.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,200; allowances. The Bouquet. For 2-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:46. VALENCIENNES, as usual slow to get into full stride, gained fast in the final half mile, wore CON AMORE down midway of the home stretch and drew out steadily when kept under strong pressure. CON AMORE, getting in her best form, raced SEVEN VEILS into defeat, but was unable to stall off the winner. SCUTTLE, kept close up, could not make up any ground in the final drive. KINCSEN, carried out by VALENCIENNES going to the first turn, was never serious with at any stage while racing wide and on her own courage. She appears in fine form.

MAGYAR was unable to make up any ground during the final stages. DYAK, steadied in front, quit after six furlongs.

BANDERLOG, crowded back going to the first turn, worked his way up on the outside when reaching contention, closed fast during the stretch run and was up nearing the finish. BROADWAY LIGHTS moved to the pacemakers with a rush, gained command in the final furlong, but could not resist the winner. WAR PLANE, in a tangle going to the first turn, circled his field and finished full of run. BLONDISH, well placed from the start, held on willingly for the final drive. MOVE FASTER, taken to the outside for the brief, lost much ground the entire trip, and weakened nearing the finish. FOXIANA, MONEL, HAGGERSON and RENAISSANCE were used up forcing the early pace.

SOLACE, badly bumped by FRIAR at the first turn, recovered gamely, came decisively for the final drive and was up in the concluding strides. FORT DEARBORN, going in improved fashion and hurried to the front, saved ground and held on in resolute fashion. GARLIC, bothered at the break when THE TOUT half-wheeled, but closer up than usual, swung to the outside for the final drive and held on stoutly.

ARMY - NAVY GRID GAME SELL-OUT

75,000 to See Service Classic on Dec. 3 at Philadelphia.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 22.—Navy varsity gridders today buckled down to the real task of the whole season's campaign, to point for the game with the West Point Cadets to be played in Philadelphia, December 3.

Based upon the season's record of the rival academies, it is realized on all sides that the Tars must be at the pinnacle of form, as well as physical condition, if they are to come up to the game with anything like an even chance. But there is hope, and added to that spirit is running high.

In the meantime, Capt. John W. Wilcox, jr., director of athletics at the naval school, announced that indications of a complete sell-out of tickets for the coming battle, were borne out. A big rush followed Navy's spirited showing against Notre Dame last Saturday. More requests are coming in by mail and wire, but the Navy Athletic Association announces with regret that it will be impossible to honor any more.

The situation bears out that prospective weather conditions, and decreased attendance at most grid contests this year because of the depression, has had little or no effect on the feverish interest that the service struggles attract from the public, as well as partisan supporters.

Franklin Field, the grounds of the University of Pennsylvania, where the game is to be played, will accommodate approximately 75,000 persons. The athletic bodies of West Point and Annapolis each handled something like 34,000 tickets through sale to association members and the public, and Pennsylvania authorities took care of the rest. The top price of tickets was $4.40.

3 Veterans Report For Gallaudet Five

With three veterans returning, Capt. George Brown, Helmo Antillo and Jimmy Rayhill, Coach Wally Krug anticipates a banner season for Gallaudet's basket ball team, which began Monday practicing for the impending campaign.

Gallaudet lost Wilbur Jensen, husky forward, whose sharp eye for the basket enabled him to gain a place among the leading scorers in District collegiate circles last season, and George Walnoha, center, through graduation. Krug, however, is hopeful of uncovering players capable of filling the vacancies from among the new recruits.

Seth Crockett, Stephen Kozier, Kenneth Burdette, Davy Davidowitz, Frenchy Higgins, Wells Logan, Emil Ladner and John Sianski are among those who came up from the junior team. Cecil Davis and Bob Layne, men who have had experience but did not play last season, are also expected out for the team.

TURKEY SHOOT SATURDAY.

Plans for a turkey shoot to be held Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock on the Shady Oak athletic field were completed yesterday by the committee in charge of the event. The field is located on the Marlboro pike about 2 miles from the District line. The Greater Capitol Heights Volunteer Fire Department is sponsoring the affair, and all proceeds will be used in purchasing new equipment.

Numerous prizes, including a special trophy for women, will be awarded the various winners.

Hitting the Headpin

JIMMY JOLLIFFE, who is carving his name in big letters on the maples this season, rolled a 441 set in the Personal Audit, Income Tax Bureau League, yesterday at Lucky Strike. Jolliffe rolled a 411 set the night before in the Internal Revenue loop.

The Personal Audit group rolls at 5 o'clock, thus enabling its members to roll again later in the evening. Jolliffe lathered the lumber for games of 140, 148 and 163.

Karl Gouchenour rolled a 158 game and Joe Harrison chalked up a 403 set to lead the Columbia Heights League at Arcadia. Swann's topped the teams with a 641 game and 1,867 set.

J. Kaufman's 140 game and 391 total for the three featured in the Men's Lutheran League meeting at Arcadia. St. Marks, with a 603 game and 1,688 set outscored its rivals.

The Misses Meyer and Broeker tied for high game in the Women's Lutheran League at Arcadia with 112 each, but Miss Broeker proved to be more consistent than her rival and finished with a 306 set. Zion's 475 and 1,344 scores led the team scoring.

The Columbians plastered the pins for a 1,656 set, or a new all-time record for the Washington Ladies' League while handing the Cardinals a three-game lacing at Columbia. The record set included a 559 game. Miss Hays' 133 game and 359 set took the individual honors of the evening.

St. Aloysius marked up a 542 game and 1,554 set to lead Section C, Holy Name League, last night at the Northeast Temple alleys. Orme, of the above team, stole the individual honors with his 122 game and 347 set.

King Pin's 554 and Shoe Mart's 1,586 topped the King Pin Business Men's League last night. Penenbaum's 366 set and J. Wolfe's 136 game were high.

Stocks Drift Lower Again As Quiet Dealing Persists

War-Debt Issues Blamed for Sluggishness; Sales, 535,080 Shares.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Except for wheat, which had a fairly brisk early rise, financial markets loitered along familiar and uninteresting roads today.

Stocks scarcely moved. There was little to choose among the general run of shares. Some finished with minor losses, others with equally narrow gains. The market firmed moderately in the morning, but improvement ran to fractions and when wheat tapered off quotations here tended to settle. Floor traders were still providing the bulk of the business. Sales amounted to 535,080 shares.

A break of about 4 points in Coca Cola was the only net change of consequence among familiar market favorites. Pressure against Radio relaxed, perhaps because speculators had found that selling of the shares yesterday made no impression elsewhere. U. S. Steel, American Telephone, American Can, Allied Chemical, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, New York Central, American Tobacco "B," Consolidated Gas and Standard Oil of New Jersey had negligible ups and downs. Loew's and National Biscuit lost a point each. General Foods was also heavy. On balance, the market averages were off two-tenths of a point net.

Wall street's decision to let the market drift pending clarification of the war debt outlook has made commission houses cautious in their attempts to interpret the recent lack of trend. Except for statements of a rather general belief that some of the December 15 war debt payments will be met, the attitude toward eventual solution of the whole problem seems to be "wait and see." The Hoover-Roosevelt conference has been awaited with wrapt attention, not only for its immediate results but also for possible light on the next administration's plans and policies.

Business news was mostly routine. Zonite Products Corporation omitted its dividend and the stock flopped about 2 points, although it reduced this loss. On the other hand, regular payments were declared by United Fruit, Gillette and Texas Corporation.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Tues.	Mon.
Advances	145	144
Declines	185	194
Unchanged	120	115
Total issues traded	450	453

Stocks.

Trading continued sluggish and stocks drifted two-tenths of a point lower. Sales dwindled to 535,080 shares. War-debt problems still produced uncertainties in Wall street and dealers and investors were cautious. The trend was mixed—Some shares closed slightly lower; others recorded small gains.

Bonds.

The market sank lower in listless dealings. An average loss of three-tenths of a point was recorded. Sales increased to $6,456,000. Foreign obligations were generally soft. Weak spots developed in Argentine, Australian and Japanese loans. United States issues sagged.

The curb marked time with other exchanges. Prices of leading securities advanced fractionally, or 1 to 2 points, and sales totaled 110,000. Industrial reports gave only limited information of value to dealers. Mining shares received some attention. Aluminum closed unchanged. Oils were moderately active.

Wheat.

Sudden aggressive buying changed the grain markets' trend and sent prices of wheat ¼ to 1 cent per bushel higher. The heaviest advances reached 2 cents at one time, but reacted on profit-taking. A good demand in Liverpool did much to offset bad results of lower British exchange. December wheat sold at 43 to 43¾ cents.

Cotton.

A better demand advanced cotton slightly, but a reaction followed. The general market stood at 1 point net higher to 2 points lower. March closed at 6.22. Southern selling and realizing trimmed the gains. Liverpool was relatively firm, and reported some American straddle buying there.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

(Associated Press.)

London—A rally in sterling exchange to $3.27¼ caused covering and an improvement in gilt-edged securities. The remainder of the market moved irregularly and the close was quiet but uncertain awaiting war debts payments problems.

Paris—Trading on the bourse was quiet but showed some less satisfactory indications in foreign markets, causing contraction in buying and some profit taking. The closing was dull.

Berlin—Prices on the boerse opened fairly firm and trading turned dull later. The closing was irregular with very little business done owing to political uncertainties.

BOND MARKET SAGS ON DULLER TRADING

Three-Tenths Loss Recorded as Sales Increase to $6,456,000.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The bond market was unable to find any fattening fare today and prices in most categories drifted feebly to lower levels.

While trading was somewhat more active than that of yesterday, when the turnover was the smallest in several years, it still was far under normal. Sales totaled only $6,456,000, while the Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 60 domestic corporate loans lost three-tenths of a point.

The market continued to reflect uncertainties connected with the war debt situation on which President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt conferred at Washington late in the afternoon.

Foreign obligations were generally soft, with some weak spots cropping out in the Argentines, Australians and Japanese. Argentine budgetary troubles unsettled the bonds of that country, the Australian dropped on the prospect of finding funds to meet the antipodean share of the British war loan payment, while the Japanese were under pressure because of the Empire's growing economic difficulties and the airing of the Manchurian adventure at Geneva.

Bonds of Australia were off 1¼ to 2⅞: the Argentines, 2 to 6, and the Japanese fractions to 1 or more points. The British, French, Norwegian, Finnish and Colombian groups eased while the Germans were only slightly lower. Italian government 7s firmed.

Although high-grade domestic securities were fairly firm throughout, and most of the secondary issues fluctuated in fractions, there were a few weak spots in all categories.

Among the heavier railroad liens were some of Rock Island, Southern Pacific, Erie, Delaware & Hudson, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Canadian Pacific, Canadian National, Canadian Northern "Soo" line and Southern Pacific. Firmness was shown by issues of Santa Fe, Union Pacific and Chesapeake & Ohio.

American Telephones exhibited quiet strength, the debenture 5½s reaching a new high for the year before easing slightly, while convertible 4½s equaled their 1932 top mark. Shell Union Oil loans were up a point or more. Paramount Publix and Paramount-Famous-Lasky bonds were off from ⅛ to 3 points, while both Youngstown Sheet & Tube 5s declined 6 to 8.

United States Government loans sagged, Treasury 3s and 3⅛s being the most active, with losses of 6-32 to 8-32 of a point. Liberty 3½s, however, advanced fractionally.

Big Business Aids Farmers In Stimulating Rural Buying

Chicago, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Big business joined hands with the farmer today in seeking a solution to restore the rural buying power to speed the return of normal economic conditions.

A committee of industrialists, financiers, manufacturers and business men met with farm representatives here yesterday as a committee sponsored by the United States Chamber of Commerce and agreed in a resolution that farm price conditions were "intolerable."

Appointment of a subcommittee from the committee's membership was announced and the subcommittee will collect plans to aid the farmer and present them to the committee at a later date, probably December 10.

The resolution said that within the last three years the farmers' prices shot down about $8,000,000,000, thereby nearly eliminating the rural purchasing power, reacting in closed factories, unemployment and general disorganization of business.

Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., chairman of the meeting, said: "We believe that prosperity would come to all of us if the farmer could get some of it."

Proposals for tax reduction, monetary stabilization, loosening of farm credit and control of surpluses were discussed. The resolution adopted said that "agriculture has found it particularly difficult to adapt itself to this post-war situation because it has been unable to use effectively such methods of control as the tariff and the corporate form of organization."

Stockholders Lose $6,000,000 in Iowa

Receiver Urges Action in Defunct Federal Surety Company.

Davenport, Iowa, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—A loss to stockholders of $6,000,000 in the defunct Federal Surety Co. of Davenport was revealed in the receiver's report filed today in Scott County District Court by attorneys for E. W. Clark, receiver.

The report detailed all transactions of the Federal Surety Co. since its incorporation in 1919. Judge W. W. Scott, before whom the report was submitted, indicated the facts would result in a grand jury investigation of former officers and directors of the firm.

The receiver recommended that such action be taken for alleged mismanagement of the firm's finances that allegedly made the company insolvent in 1928.

Business Men Ask Produce Price Rise

Committee Seeks Means of Aiding Farmers in Recovery.

Chicago, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—A committee of business men today sought to learn how farm product prices might be elevated and sound economical conditions restored to American agriculture.

Seventeen representative executives comprised the group set up by the United States Chamber of Commerce. They met in the office of Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co, and without ostentation began their study of the critical farm problems.

Sharing the work with Wood today were Burton F. Peck, Moline, Ill.; F. A. Thies, Kansas City, Mo.; M. L. Wilson, Montana State College; R. H. Rogers, Newark, N. J.; H. A. Wallace, Des Moines, Iowa; Earl C. Smith, Illinois Agricultural Association; Lyman Wakefield; Minneapolis; Harper Sibley, Rochester, N. Y.; C. R. Berrien, New York; Wendell Endicott, Boston; A. M. Stone, Dunleith, Minn.; A. C. Harrison, Santa Paula, Calif.; Sydney Anderson, Minneapolis, and John A. Law, Spartanburg, N. C.

Receiver Suit Hit By Associated Gas

Billion-Dollar Company to Open Battle to Halt Stockholder's Move.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The Associated Gas & Electric Co., billion-dollar public utilities holding corporation, filed an order in supreme court today requiring Philip Newbold, a stockholder, to show cause on Wednesday why he should not be permanently restrained from pressing a receivership action against the company in this judicial district.

The company contends that a motion for appointment of a temporary receiver filed here by Newbold last Saturday should have been filed in Tompkins County, since the company's principal office is in Ithaca, N. Y.

In papers filed with today's order, which was signed by Supreme Court Justice Abert Cohn, John M. Daly, vice president of the Associated Gas & Electric, quoted the civil practice act and the corporations law to the effect that suits to sequester property of a corporation may only be brought in the county in which its principal office is located. In filing his motion Newbold, who owns 100 shares of preferred stock of Associated Gas & Electric, asserted that the company had been "grossly mismanaged." He asked appointment of a receiver pending outcome of an accounting suit he has brought against the company.

CURB MARKING TIME IN NARROW TRADING

Leading Securities Advance Slightly; Sales Total 110,000 Shares.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The curb market did little more than mark time today, prices of leading securities moving fractionally higher in most cases and total transfers reaching about 110,000 shares, against 90,000 yesterday.

The usual channels of industrial reports offered little by way of new information which might stimulate activity one way or the other.

Electric Bond & Share typified fairly well the action of the market for principal stocks. It fluctuated in a price range of less than a point, and closed a small fraction higher. American Gas & Electric was up slightly and United Light & Power "A" declined a shade. Cities Service was unchanged. Niagara Hudson Power yielded a scant fraction.

Mining shares received some attention, Newmont gaining more than a point. Some of the lower-priced gold mining stocks were fairly active, but their price changes were negligible.

Aluminum Co., which usually describes a wide arc in its daily fluctuations, closed unchanged, after moving in a range of less than a point. Great Atlantic & Pacific, another widely moving stock, likewise showed no change for the day.

The oils were moderately active, Gulf and Standard of Indiana closing unchanged, while Humble Oil was off a scant fraction.

Haynes, Former Banker, Soon Eligible for Parole

On December 12, Harry V. Haynes, former leading banker of Washington, who was sentenced to four and one-half years in prison for violation of the national banking laws, will be eligible for parole, it was learned yesterday from the Department of Justice.

The granting of parole depends on the District Parole Board. Isaac Gans, chairman of this board, declined to comment on the case.

Demand for Dollar Cuts Pound Price to $3.25¾

London, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Continued demand for dollars in the exchange market on foreign account, and moderate London buying, caused further weakness of sterling today. The pound dropped to $3.25¾, a new low for the year.

Dealings were on a small scale. Uncertainty regarding the debts conversation at Washington was believed to be the chief factor. There is no evidence at present of the operation of the government's exchange equlization fund in an effort to support sterling.

Crude Oil Output Cut 23,250 Barrels

Week's Total Yield Placed at 2,111,100 Units; Exports Down.

Refineries representing 98.2 per cent of the estimated total capacity, operated at 58.5 per cent of thir capacity, reported daily average runs of crude oil to stills as 2,103,000 barrels. Daily average the previous week for refineries representing 93.4 per cent of total, operated at 59.3 per cent of capacity, was 2,135,000 barrels.

WHEAT VALUES GAIN ON HEAVIER BUYING

Prices Close ¼ to 1 Cent Up, With Other Grains Higher; Provisions, Mixed.

Chicago, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Sudden aggressive buying of December wheat, instead of heavy liquidating sales that have been the rule, led to rapid general upturns of grain values today.

It had been widely expected that as a result of liquidating pressure December wheat contracts would be forced to 6 cents a bushel discount under May. Today's quick reversal of trade conditions, however, narrowed the May wheat premium to 4⅜ cents as compared with 5½ earlier, and tightened up values all around, notwithstanding that the open interest in December wheat is about three times as large as a year ago.

After a jump that amounted in some cases to about 2 cents a bushel, wheat reacted on account of profit taking, and closed unsettled ⅛ to 1 cent above yesterday's finish; corn, ⅛ off to ⅜ to ½ up; oats, a shade to ⅜ advance, and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to an equal gain.

Reports on Crops.

Uneasiness over official reports of adverse wheat crop prospects in Kansas did a good deal to stimulate the general uplift of grain prices. There were also Argentine reports of light frosts. In addition to bullish Kansas advices, too, was word that no moisture had been received in dry sections of domestic winter crop territory elsewhere Southwest or West and that hauling of water for live stock and household use was not uncommon throughout large areas.

Liverpool cables telling of good demand for wheat abroad was an aid to offsetting new British exchange downturns that had exerted a transient bearish effect here at the outset. The cables said that on all price declines, the Liverpool market showed considerable resistance. Another strengthening factor was that Chicago houses with export connections were buyers of future deliveries.

Corn and oats were governed almost altogether by wheat action. Vesselroom was chartered for 620,000 bushels of corn to go to Buffalo.

Provisions ruled irregular, owing to the opposite course of grain and of hog values.

Capital Plan Urged By Cash Register

Company Proposes Change of Stock to Single Class Common.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Directors of the National Cash Register Co. have recommended a change in the company's capital structure which would result in creating for the company a single class of common stock. Stockholders will vote on the proposal at a meeting in Baltimore on December 15.

Under the plan, the company would increase its present issue of 1,190,000 shares of Class A stock by 238,000 shares. This would then be distributed as a split-up among the Class A stockholders. In addition, a new class of stock, consisting of 200,000 shares of Class C shares would be authorized. This stock would be exchanged for the present 400,000 shares of Class B stock on the basis of one-half share of the new C stock for each share of B stock.

Upon completion of the exchange, the Class A and C stock would be made into a single class of stock and the B stock would be retired. The directors also recommended that the company's capital be reduced from $42,213,335 to $24,420,000, and that the $17,793,335 difference be transferred to capital surplus.

COTTON PRICES GAIN ON BETTER DEMAND

Slight Advances Recorded; Market Closes 1 Point Up to 2 Points Lower.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Although a better trade demand was reported in the cotton market early today, it was supplied on a slight advance, and prices later reacted under Southern selling, realizing and liquidation. March contracts after selling up from 6.20 to 6.27 reacted to 6.22 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing steady, net 1 point higher to 2 points lower.

The opening was unchanged to a decline of 2 points in response to easy Liverpool cables and overnight selling from the South. These offerings were absorbed by trade buying which came partly from foreign sources, while there was also more or less covering on the early steadiness of the grain and stock markets. December contracts sold up from 6.04 to 6.11 and May from 6.31 to 6.37 on this demand, making net gains of 5 to 8 points on active positions, but buyers showed little inclination to follow the market up and prices eased during the afternoon. A little more Southern selling also developed toward the close, and last prices were within a point or two of the lowest for the day.

Foreign Buyers Active.

Brokers with Japanese, continental and Liverpool connections were reported among the buyers here during the early trading and reappearance of this demand as prices approached the 6-cent level for December promoted covering. The South was only a moderate seller, its offerings being just about offset by trade buying, while a good part of the business otherwise was attributed to further evening-up of December contracts. Trade interests were again buyers of December against sales of later deliveries, while switching from December into later months continued without any material change in the late month premiums.

Liverpool was relatively firm early and reported some American straddle buying there, with a continued good demand for cotton cloths, but prices there eased just before the local opening.

Reports from the South indicated no change in the Southern spot situation, and while trading here was a little more active, general business was again restricted by the disposition to await the outcome of international debt negotiations.

Exports today 27,716 making 2,753,380 so far this season. Port receipts, 25,640. U. S. port stocks, 4,774,339.

THE ONCE OVER

H. I. PHILLIPS

THAT HOOVER-ROOSEVELT CONFERENCE.

Mr. Hoover:

GOOD morning, Mr. Roosevelt; it is good to see you here—
(Why I should say a thing like that? You know it's false, I fear.)

Mr. Roosevelt:

Good morning, sir; and you are Herbert Hoover, are you not?
The name is quite familiar, but I don't recall the plot.

Mr. Hoover:

There's really nothing up my sleeve;
I merely thought that you
Might like a practice huddle just to see what there's to do.
Those foreign debts are up again and, as I'm soon to quit,
The big responsibility with you I'd gladly split.

Mr. Roosevelt:

'Twas nice of you to think of me in such a crisis hot,
But I'd have been as satisfied, dear Herbert, had you not.
You ought to do the pitching to the British and the French—
Till March I shouldn't do a thing but sit upon the bench.

Mr. Hoover.

Of course, I realize that I have four more months to serve;
I simply thought I'd like to see your fast ball and your curve.
You got so many votes I rather figured that you should Come in and start to worry while the worrying is good.
The voters they have chosen you their Home Run king—and how!
You should be glad to help a man with two strikes on him now!

Mr. Roosevelt:

My schedule doesn't call, my friend, for any game till spring,
But just the same I do not mind a little practice swing;
Just shoot the problem to me, as you see it, and I'll try
To help you out a little, though I can not tell you why.

Mr. Hoover:

Let us huddle and seem thoughtful; let us concentrate, dear Frank.
Are the movie men all ready? Good! Then let 'em turn the crank!

(They go into a huddle behind the line while 85 cameramen take pictures for the news reels. It takes some time. During the ceremony, both men forget what they were to discuss, but a secretary reminds them. They then go over the debt situation.)

Mr. Hoover:

You have seen the facts and figures and each solemn I. O. U.—
Can you tell a weary gentleman the proper thing to do?

Mr. Roosevelt:

It's a very simple problem; read my speeches and you'll see
That they cover quite completely every known emergency.
I would quote them for you, Herbert, if I knew just what I said—
But it's very hard to carry all one's speeches in one's head.
Briefly, Herbert, here's the thought that at this time I would implant:
Just collect what they can pay us and not one cent that they can't!

Mr. Hoover:

In a nutshell you have seen the light and opened wide the door;
What a funny thing I never, never thought of that before!

Mr. Roosevelt:

It is nothing. With a problem I go quickly to the mat—
You will find that nearly all T. R.'s fifth cousins are like that.

Mr. Hoover.

Thank you very, very deeply; you are very, very kind—
This just demonstrates how huddles take a load right off my mind.

Mr. Roosevelt.

You are welcome; there's no charge, sir, and I wouldn't take a dime;
If you meet with other problems, ring me up most any time!

France and England.

Three long cheers for Herbert Hoover! Three long cheers for Franklin, too!
Three long cheers for all the RED that's in the old Red, White and Blue!
Let them hold their little huddles for the news reel weekly show;
That they'll never get those war debts is a fact that both boys know!

INSIDE DOPE.

HI.—I'll be the first to let the fans in on the truth about that Yale-Harvard football game with its amazing outcome. Here goes: The Yale team wasn't the Yale team at all; it was really an Army eleven in disguise. SHERLOCK.

You're mistaken, Sherlock. It was the Yale team all right, but the Harvard squad was really the Bates second eleven.

Add similes: So smart he could follow a football game as shown in the news reels.

Board of Education Learns How Achievement Tests Are Held.

Members of the Board of Education turned students for two hours yesterday morning when they received a lesson on the manner in which achievement tests are conducted in the public schools.

The "class" was arranged by the personnel committee of the board, of which Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle is chairman, at the request of the board members who wished to learn details of the achievement tests.

The tests were explained by Assistant Superintendents Jessie La Salle and Howard H Long and by Superintendent Frank W. Ballou. The tests are used to determine the knowledge of students and to place them in the grades in which they rightly belong. In this way, bright pupils are not held back by backward ones, it was explained.

RIGID ENFORCEMENT OF TRAFFIC LAWS IS PROMISED FOR JAN. 1

Location File of Accidents Is Planned to Lower Toll of Street Deaths.

TRAFFIC TOLL TO DATE

Jaywalking and crossing intersections from behind parked automobiles are responsible for the greater part of traffic-pedestrian accidents. There have been 44 more deaths and 240 more injuries to date than during the corresponding period of 1931. The number of accidents has been decreased by 422. The figures are:

	1931.	1932.
Deaths	69	113
Injuries	3,181	3,421
Accidents	7,424	7,030

"Be Careful!"

A location file of accidents and a more stringent enforcement of traffic regulations, the violation of which lead to accidents will be put into effect January 1, in an effort to reduce the high mortality rate in traffic.

The wave of fatalities recorded in Washington during October was exceeded in only two other large cities in the country, according to statistics compiled pro rata, and made public yesterday by the statsitical bureau of the Police Department.

Ten deaths recorded to date this month due to traffic accidents are far too many in comparison to the average toll of a month. In 1924 the death toll of traffic was at its highest ebb with a tally of 91 deaths, and it stood as the record for deaths due to traffic until this year when to date the toll is recorded at 113.

Location File Approved.

Various expedients have been suggested to reduce hazards for pedestrians and motorists. The location file which will be instituted by J. G. Neff, police department statistician, has been approved by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, who is vitally interested in the safeguarding of citizens from danger on thoroughfares.

The file will be arranged to indicate the circumstances of each accident occuring in the city, and when it is noted that a number of accidents have been reported in one street, a study will be made to determine methods of safeguarding citizens.

Signaling devices will be placed at intersections where their use is considered beneficial. A statistical table will be taken to the scene, and if the great majority of the accidents involved pedestrians or if the greater portion of the collisions took place at night, measures to remedy the situation will be taken.

Physical Characteristics.

Physical characteristics at and near the intersection will be noted with the following details: Street widths, pavement widths, sidewalk widths, curb radii, street grades, pavement surfaces, location and character of obstructions to vision to pedestrian and vehicular movement, and traffic signs.

The surprising decrease in the number of deaths due to traffic in Indianapolis was cited by police officials, as a model toward which this city might strive. By the use of educational lectures by civic leaders, to children, pedestrians, and motorists, traffic fatalities have been reduced and by these measures and by a stricter enforcement of traffic regulations, a still further reduction is forecast.

Apathy Is Unforgivable.

Remarking on the lack of consideration given traffic casualties by citizens, Burton W. Marsh, traffic engineer, of Philadelphia, said in a recent publication in regard to statistical records, as follows:

"If traffic accidents were few, this apathy might be forgiven, but with a toll of some 34,000 lives and a million injuries being exacted yearly, strong condemnation is warranted. Truly the situation is worse than war, for our traffic casualties (for equal periods) far exceed those of the World War. Between 1913 and 1930, the death rate for other than automobile accidents decreased 30 per cent; the automobile fatality increased more than 500 per cent."

FUNERAL SET TODAY FOR VICTIM OF FIRE

Rites Arranged by Aunt of Dead Woman; Probe in Case Continues.

The "mysterious" woman who arranged for the burial of Margaret Hurley Roland, burned to death in a fire in her home in Seat Pelasant, Md., last night was revealed as an aunt of the dead woman.

The "mystery woman" did not wish her name to become connected with the case and, therefore, pledged the undertaker and Constable Earle Blackwell to secrecy. However, it was learned that Mrs. Roland would be buried in Congressional Cemetery at 10 o'clock this morning.

Police last night were at a standstill in their efforts to learn more about the woman who was found in the blazing house Sunday night. Her husband, Lyle C. Roland, who was charged with murder after a coroner's jury declared that he set fire to the house, has given authorities little help. It is known that the dead woman was a friend of Roland's previous wife.

Another mystery in connection with the case, that of a man who was seen to take some papers from a trunk in the gutted house Monday, was solved yesterday by Constable Blackwell. Blackwell said he sent the man to the house to get Roland's discharges from the Marine Corps and some other papers.

Woman Loses $10 To Bold Robber

He Motions Her Into Alley and Takes Money After Making Threat.

While walking by an alley near her home, Miss Eleanor DeAlfonso, 1350 Newton street northwest, reported she was held up and robbed of $10 yesterday afternoon.

She said a well-dressed man threatened her, saying, "If you want to keep your good health, don't make any noise." He motioned for her to accompany him back into the alley, and then robbed her. After taking the money, she said, he told her: "Don't tell anybody about this."

Miss DeAlfonso was so frightened by the boldness of the hard-boiled robber she could not say definitely whether he had a gun.

$2,000 LOOT TAKEN IN ROBBERY SERIES

$1,000 Fur Coat and Samples of Clothing Included; Oil Manager Held Up.

Robbers, burglars and thieves obtained loot totaling more than $2,000 in value in a series of holdups, housebreakings and automobile thefts yesterday and last night.

Raymond W. Thompson, of 1822 Nineteenth street northwest, manager of a filling station at New Jersey and New York avenues northwest, was held up and robbed of $25 last night by two young men. On entering the station one of the men drew a gun, commanding Thompson to "stick 'em up." They removed his money from his pockets and rifled the cash register.

Thompson said the men left on foot after warning him about spreading an alarm.

Eulogy

Longworth's Sister Tells of Her Biography of Late Speaker.

The Countess de Chambrun, sister of Nicholas Longworth, the late Speaker of the House of Representatives, described the biography she has written of him before the Women's National Press Club yesterday.

"I have tried to make a living portrait, an authentic portrait," she said, "Nick belonged essentially to the past. He had a sense of continuity.

"I have tried to show Nick as being of the soil on which his ancestors lived, his parents, his grandparents, his great-grandparents. Nick felt that keenly. He adored being in Congress because he was congressman from Cincinnati."

The countess is in this country to read proof of her book which she has titled, "The Making of Nicholas Longworth."

It was the countess' first speech. Ethel Barrymore, at the same table, had just mentioned in conversation the pleasure she had from hearing Alice Longworth's first speech, made during the campaign.

"And I knew Nick even longer than I knew Alice," she said. "He took me to a ball game in Cincinnati when I was 14."

Thanksgiving Day Rites Will Include Religious and Patriotic Themes.

Marking the end of the George Washington Bicentennial celebration, Thanksgiving Day will be observed by all Washington tomorrow with prayers of gratitude for benefits received and the bestowal of gifts on those in want.

The day will be a holiday for teachers and school children and Government workers, who will be released from offices at 1 p. m. today.

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University and president of the District Bicentennial Commission, has issued a proclamation asking residents of Washington to commemorate the memory of the Nation's founder and "recall with grateful hearts our heritage from Washington."

Quiet Day at White House.

A quiet observance of Thanksgiving is planned at the White House. The dinner will consist of the traditional turkey and trimmings. A few personal friends of President Hoover and Mrs. Hoover will partake of the dinner.

Employes of the Government Printing Office will gather in Harding Hall at 3:30 p. m. today for their annual Thanksgiving Day exercises. The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will deliver an address.

Open house for the needy of Washington will be held by the Volunteers of America at their relief mission at 471 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Roast pork will be the piece de resistance at the dinner instead of the customary turkey. Arthur E. Wise, regional commander, will be chief host.

Concert at Naval Hospital.

Central Union Mission will distribute approximately 200 baskets of Thanksgiving food at 2 p. m. today at the mission. Although this is 100 baskets more than were given last year, Superintendent John S. Bennett said that several hundred families who have applied will be denied because of lack of funds. The mission is preparing to feed more than 500 men tomorrow at its headquarters, 613 C street northwest.

Maxim Loew's Orchestra will give a concert at the United States Naval Hospital at 2 p. m. today. The veterans will make a presentation to the orchestra.

The Massachusetts Society of the District will inaugurate its social season with a Thanksgiving party at the Shoreham tonight.

Ceremony at Monument.

The District Bicentennial Commission will perform its final act in recognition of the Bicentennial at 10 a. m. tomorrow with the laying of a wreath at the Washington Monument.

Thanksgiving dances under the direction of the Community Center Department, will be held at the Buchanan School and the Hine Junior High School tomorrow night.

The Colgate University Alumni Association of Washington and the Brown University Club will hold a joint smoker at the Racquet Club at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

George Washington University will begin its Thanksgiving celebration today with the start of the two-day home-coming celebration of the university. President Cloyd Heck Marvin will receive visiting alumni at tea in the trustees' room from 2 to 3 o'clock and from 4:30 to 6:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The All-University Stunt Night will take place tonight in Washington Auditorium. The George Washington and Oklahoma football teams, which will clash tomorrow, will be introduced. An alumni home-coming reception will be held tomorrow night in the Chinese room of the Mayflower.

The first Thanksgiving Day service in the choir of Washington Cathedral will be held at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow. Special music will be given by the cathedral choir of men and boys under the direction of Edgar Priest. Bishop Freeman will preach.

Pan-American Mass.

A Pan-American mass will be celebrated in St. Patrick's Church at 11 a. m. Representatives of the Pan-American republics have been invited to attend.

Representative Sol Bloom, codirector of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, will address the Jewish Community Thanksgiving Day services tomorrow morning at the B'nai Israel Synagogue, Fourteenth and Emerson streets northwest. Rabbies of the city will participate in the service.

Indian, 90, Pays Little Heed As Riches Hang in Balance

JACKSON BARNETT,

90-year-old Creek Indian, is heap more interested in his gold watch than in a $200,000 trust fund. Barnett is shown with his wife, the former Anna Laura Lowe.

Toys With Gold Watch at Court Hearing Over Trust Fund.

Apparently more interested in a handsome gold watch with which he toyed throughout the proceedings, Jackson Barnett, picturesque 90-year-old Creek Indian who bears the distinction of being the world's wealthiest Indian, yesterday paid but scant attention when Government attorneys outlined to Justice F. D. Letts, in the District Supreme Court, the plan by which they hope to restore to the aged Indian a trust fund of $200,000.

The money, all in liberty bonds, is at the Riggs National Bank, where it was placed as a trust fund for Barnett. It is the contention of the Government that this fund should be restored to the Treasury Department where it will be administered for the benefit of the Indian.

Barnett frequently pulled his huge watch from his pocket, snapped open the face, and after grinning at it and proudly showing it, restored it to the pocket. The man's looks belie his age, for he gives the appearance of being much younger than 90. His wife, the former Anna Laura Lowe, some 40 years his junior, sat with him through the day's session.

The Government outlined its case, and then Justice Letts adjourned court until today. The suit arose out of a transaction in 1923 when Barnett gave away $1,100,000. Half he gave to a church organization and the other half to his wife. From this latter fund the $200,000 trust fund was established.

The half given the American Baptist Home Mission Society has been recovered. The theory of the Government is that Barnett was incompetent to give away such sums of money.

7 SERIOUSLY HURT IN CROSSING CRASH

Trolley Hurls Auto 25 Feet Onto Rockville Pike at Montrose Station.

Seven persons were seriously injured last night when a Rockville interurban street car crashed into an automobile at the Montrose crossing, knocking it clear of the tracks and onto the Rockville pike.

The six occupants of the car, Mrs. Mabel King, 40, her three sons and two daughters, of Halpine, Md., and also Charles Gilbert, 50, 2225 R street northwest, who was struck by the demolished car, suffered lacerations to the head, possible skull fractures and internal injuries. They were taken to Emergency Hospital for treatment.

After giving first-aid treatment and diagnosing their injuries, hospital physicians reported that Vernon King, 18, driver of the car, suffered lacerations and bruises about the head and body; Mrs. King had bruises on the right side and possible internal injuries; Willard, 10, received head injuries and a possible fracture of the skull; Carlton, 16, deep lacerations and bruises to head and body; Esther, 13, chest injuries, and Teresa, 14, cuts and bruises to head and body. Gilbert suffered head injuries, concussion of the brain and a possible fracture of the skull. He was walking on the pike when the crash occurred.

It is reported the King automobile had been driven onto the track from a side road, coming from behind the Montrose station. The car was knocked about 25 feet by the trolley car.

Four Arrested in Raids Without Warrants Freed

The District grand jury yesterday refused to indict four men who had been arrested in warrantless raids by police. All were charged with violations of the gaming laws. The four were Charles E. Martin, David Kaplan, David B. Cohen and Charles B. Stewart.

Martin was arrested at 2108½ Fourteenth street northwest, November 17. Kaplan was arrested in July in the rear room of a candy store at 1834 Seventh street northwest, and Stewart and Cohen were taken in a raid at 4034 Georgia avenue northwest July 5.

UTILITIES COUNSEL SCORES CLAIMS OF STREET CAR LOSSES

Brief Opposing Appeals on Children's Fares Questions Court's Jurisdiction.

Attacking the claims of the street railways as to the losses they have sustained under the 3-cent fare for school children, People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech and William A. Roberts, special counsel of the Public Utilities Commission, yesterday filed a 49-page brief in District Supreme Court in support of their motion to dismiss the appeals.

Analyzing the difference in the rate of fare granted school children and the adult token fare, the District attorneys pointed out that over a period of a year the losses reduced the rate of return of the Capital Traction Co. by only seventeen one-hundredths of 1 per cent, and that of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. by only thirty-seven one-hundredths of 1 per cent. Moreover, they point out that while the adult passengers' patronage has decreased in the last two years, the number of children's fares has increased.

Jurisdiction Is Questioned.

Both the District Supreme Court and the commission are without authority to question the constitutionality of the act of Congress which instructed the utilities body to put a reduced fare, with a maximum charge of 3 cents, into operation, the brief contends.

Aside from that, the act and subsequent order are sustainable as a police regulation or as a franchise tax, the District counsel contend, and Congress further is empowered to alter or amend the charters of the street railways.

Finally, the brief calls attention to the economic condition of the country, and points out that many parents would be hard pressed to obey the mandatory school attendance law if they were compelled to pay the full rate of fare for several children twice or four times a day.

Burden of Fares.

"With people struggling for actual subsistence, it is not difficult to see that there is little or no chance for them to be able to provide their children with transportation money, especially if it is to be substantial in degree," the document states.

Inability to get children to school, moreover, "will mean that they will be deprived of the greatest necessity of life," the brief continues. "Unfortunately the many additional hours of idle time would generate within them tendencies for evil."

"Would it not be contrary to the general welfare of the community," the brief asks, "to bring about such a condition? Or better, isn't it clearly in the furtherance of the general welfare that the companies in question be subjected to the small burden, if there be any, of carrying these children at reduced fare?"

Kahlerites Kamp Reunion Friday.

There will be a kamp reunion for all Kahlerites at 6 p. m. Friday. Registrations for the supper may be obtained at the Y. W. C. A. before tonight. An interesting program is being planned. Miss Gwynn, former program director, will be the guest of the evening, with her consular staff also present.

Members of the Wheatley family and school officials took part in a tree planting at the Wheatley School, at Montello avenue and Neal street northeast, yesterday, commemorating the George Washington Bicentennial and the memory of Samuel Wheatley, former District Commissioner, after whom the school is named.

Commander Charles Wheatley, U. S. N., son of the man after whom the school is named, delivered an address of appreciation.

Other members of the Wheatley family, including two grandchildren, Samuel 2d and Dorothy, took part in the ceremony. Brief talks were made by Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent of schools; Henry Gilligan, member of the Board of Education, and Mrs. Joseph N Saunders, president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers. Two Bicentennial songs were sung by the pupils of the school, numbering 700. The tree was taken from a seedling at Mount Vernon planted by George Washington.
